Russia Hurls Atom Threat At Germany

Says Future War Would Turn Area Into Cemetery

MOSCOW, April 27 (UP) —The Soviet Union warned West Germany tonight that a future atomic war would turn Germany into "a cemetery." It proposed a nuclear vacuum in both East and West Germany.

The note delivered to West German Charge D'Affaires Heinrich Northe by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, was the latest in a series of warnings from Russia to the western European NATO members about the dangers of another world war. Denmark, Norway and Holland have been similarly warned.

The details of the note were released by the Soviet news agency, Tass.

'Prepared to Agree'

The Soviets proposed acceptance of an East German Communist proposal to keep atomic weapons out of both the East and West German armies.

"As far as the Soviet government is concerned, it is prepared to agree with the western governments not to base atom arms on Germany territory," the note said.

It warned West Germany of the dangers of acquiring nuclear weapons for its newly-formed army. But it denied that the Soviet government had any intention

9-Day Siege Of Floods In Texas Goes On

DALLAS, April 27 (UP) —A six and a half million dollar flood on the Trinity River crested in the homes of 2,500 persons today while new weather fury spread to the southern and western parts of the state.

A nine-day seige of tornadoes, thunderstorms and floods went on without interruption.

In Dallas, a child was reported swept away at White Rock lake when he was trying to wade in flooded back waters. Police called for boats and searched for the body.

Some 120 miles south the rivers of Central Texas swelled over their banks again.

More Tornadoes

More tornadoes were reported and three inches of hail was on the highway near Muleshoe, Tex., in the western part of the Texas Panhandle.

The weather bureau said it had confirmation of a tornado moving just south of Sulphur, La., toward the northeast.

The Texas Highway Patrol reported a funnel dropping in and out of clouds near Fairfield, Tex.

The bureau said that another funnel cloud was sighted 30 miles southwest of Tenkiller, Okla., but the report went unconfirmed by Oklahoma authorities.

High water trapped a passenger train along the Rio Grande for awhile, today but all passengers and crew finally got out when water receded.

New severe thunderstorms were forecast for the Texas Panhandle.

In Sterlington, the code letters NC are now dialed before the "numbers," according to W. E. Whetstone, district manager of Southern Bell.

SCENE OF TRAGEDY

Members of a rescue squad bring the body of James Caldwell, 10, who drowned last night in Hog Bayou Canal, into shore. (Staff photo by Scotty Maxwell)

TRAGEDY NEAR MONROE

10-Year-Old Boy Drowning Victim

James Glenn Caldwell, went riding on his bicycle late yesterday afternoon near his home on the Old Sterlington Road. Shortly after five, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Caldwell started wondering where he was. By 6 o'clock, they drove up and down the road, searching for him. Then they sighted his bike, placed carefully off the highway by the cement guard rail where the road crosses over the Hog Bayou canal.

At 8:20 last night, 10-year - old James Caldwell's body was pulled from the muddy waters of the canal by Charlie Jones, a volunteer rescue worker who was searching up and down the canal in the "Moon Lake" rowboat with two other searchers. A fourth man was wading up and down among the weeds at the side of the canal.

In Pelting Rain

A pelting rain began falling at the instant the little boy's body was recovered, soaking the men from the L. B. Faulk American Legion Post rescue squad and Sterlington American Legion members who were assisting in the rescue operations, volunteers, members of the sheriff's department and more than 40 neighbors, and relatives who had gathered to wait out the search.

His parents became hysterical at the sight of the limp, paper-white body revealed in the glare of the rescue truck searchlights as it was lifted at the end of the dragging pole from the water.

Jones, a navy veteran began artificial respiration immediately after the child's body was carried to the side of the highway. James had been missing for nearly three hours, and it's likely that he had been in the water for that length of time.

Nightly Bike Ride

"He used to ride up and down this road on his bike every night" sighed Joe Duckey, Negro man who lives near the canal and had witnessed the dragging operations.

On-lookers theorized that the youngster had sighted some object floating in the deep, waters of the narrow canal, and had gone down to the water's edge to try to get it.

James had one sister, who is married and a resident of West Monroe. Mr Caldwell is employed by the United Gas Company. Funeral arrangements were incomplete late last night.

Ouachita parish Coroner Dr. J. T. French said last night the boy's death was apparently a case of accidental drowning, but that an inquest would be held later.

An additional note of tragedy was added to the case in that the boy's grandmother, Mrs. Evelyn Telano, who died early Friday at the age of 83, was buried here Saturday afternoon.

Jes' Ramblin'

An act of heroism by a young woman saved her brother when he was about to lose his life by drowning in Bayou DeSiard recently, was accorded recognition by the alert and ever zealous Exchange Club Saturday. The young woman in the case was Miss Gloria Nubles, 20, old Sterlington road, who from the window of her home near the bayou, heard her brother cry for help when trapped into deep water.

She dashed to his rescue and got him to land just in time. Artificial respiration was given by a passing Negro, and her brother, Bill, four years her junior, was rushed unconscious to a Monroe Hospital, where he was a patient for a week.

Her reward at this time from the Exchange Club was a plaque telling of her heroism, which, without doubt saved her brother's life.

Governor, Others Ridiculed At Show

BATON ROUGE, April 27 (AP) — Capital newsmen, at the sixth annual Louisiana Gridiron show, playfully summed up Gov. Earl Long's first year in office tonight—"He couldn't raise taxes, but did raise hell."

Other targets at the show sponsored by the Capital Correspondents Assn. and the Louisiana Press Assn. were former Gov. Robert Kennon, state officials and other public figures.

Some 700 state officials, politicians, lobbyists and others interested in state politics attended the dinner and show.

After the shot, Long and Kennon were given a chance for an off-the-record "rebuttal."

Opening the show was the "Elvis Press Conference," with newsmen asking questions and the governor answering them as he pleased, finally chasing them out because "I've got state business to 'tend to . . . Whats the name of that nag."

Other skits and songs included puncured fiscal balloons in an effort to discover the true surplus; the blind efforts of "John Nick Magoo" to uncover gambling; lawmakers raising their pay from "the money tree;" and operations of convicts and state officials at the governor's farm.

One skit poked fun at would-be candidates for governor in 1959. It featured a draped statue labeled "Long Candidate, 1959."

Several aspirants thought the concealed statue looked like them, but got a shock at the end.

Long and Mayor deLesseps Morrison of New Orleans carried on a mock discussion of wiretapping, with the governor offering the n yor his "secret backing" in 1959.

"There were some reports you helped persuade me to run in 1956," Morrison said, but Long denied this.

A song told of the "Mutual Admiration Society" formed by Hospital Director Jesse Bankston and Institutions Director Edward Grant.

Pressuring Charged In Recall Bid

WINNSBORO - (Special) —The charge was made here yesterday that Wisner resident Dr. Henry Jones, superintendent of the state's E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital in Monroe, and state legislator Rep. Walter Chachere, of Crowville, had represented a school board member recall election more in Ward 1 as "being desired" by Gov. Earl Long.

On such a basis, it was added, numbers of potential signers of the petition were "politically pressured into affixing their signatures."

Post At Stake

A. J. Ensminger, of Wisner the Ward 1 school board member whose post is at issue in the recall election which has been called by Gov. Long for June 25, said here the action had been "politically conceived and carried through."

He said the sponsors of the move and the governor were "obviously in collusion in an attempt to destroy me as a public official while endeavoring to take over the school affairs of Ward 1 and in fact, the Franklin parish school system as a whole."

Ensminger, said he was confident the people would "see through these selfish personal and political intents and purposes, and not only resent them, but resoundingly repudiate them."

He observed that it was "preposterous, to say the least, for Chachere, whose right to the office he holds is questionable, at best, to be interfering with the orderly operation of the Wisner school and attempting to intimidate the parish school board and superintendent."

He added also that Dr. Jones "must have a pretty easy deal" in his state hospital post in Monroe, to "devote the time that he does to political maneuvering and other activities."

He charged that Dr. Jones, while "holding the state job at Monroe continues to conduct private medical practice at Wisner, run his farming and dairying interests, and spend a lot of other time in his personal political scheming and maneuvering."

U.S. 6th Fleet Reaches Station In Mediterranean

NAPLES, Italy, April 27 (UP)—The super-aircraft carrier Forrestal, the battleship Wisconsin and the rest of the mighty U. S. Sixth Fleet rendezvoused in the eastern Mediterranean today.

The exact position of the fleet remained a closely guarded secret.

Its major warships, including the Forrestal, the Wisconsin and the cruisers Des Moines and Salem assembled off the Italian coast Friday and steamed eastward together.

The ships converged in runs from French and Italian ports that were made so swiftly hundreds of crewmen were left behind on shore.

The U. S. destroyer tender Everglades put out from Cannes on the French Riviera today for the fleet maneuver area with 250 seamen who were on leave when the fleet received its urgent sailing orders.

The Mediterranean operation was strictly a United States action, not taken in conjunction with NATO.

Officials would not say whether the fleet, known to be capable of carrying atomic weapons, actually had nuclear ammunition aboard.

Jordan Sets Up Courts To Try Rebels

AMMAN, Jordan, April 27 (AP) — Jordan's new anti-leftist regime established military courts today to try all cases growing out of Jordan's political crisis.

The two - day - old Cabinet of Premier Ibrahim Hashem, 69, arranged for the new courts in a two-hour meeting.

Censored Dispatch

(The censored disaptch did not say whom the new courts would try. Unconfirmed reports in other Arab capitals said Jordan Authorities had arrested several hundred Communists, leftists and extreme nationalists—including nationalist ex-Premier Suleiman Nabulsi.)

King Hussein meanwhile, got a cheering message from King Saud of Saudi Arabia, congratulating him on bringing law and order to Jordan after nearly three weeks of disturbances. It was one of many such messages received.

Unconfirmed reports said an official delegation from Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Syria was expected to arrive in Amman soon.

Jordan has a military alliance with those three countries. Hussein has said Jordan will decide soon whether to use the Eisenhower Doctrine, offering U. S. defense to any Arab country attacked by another power under international Communist control.

Twister Hits In Louisiana Near Sulphur

SULPHUR, La., April 27 (AP)—A "skinny white" tornado hopped and skipped over southwestern Louisiana tonight without causing much damage.

Three persons escaped death when the tornado crashed the roof and walls of their house around them south of here. A nearby lumberyard was damaged and power lines were cut off. Another house was lifted off its foundation and then placed down beside it.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Bolton and their four-year-old son, Robert Lynn, first knew of the approaching tornado when a roar nearly burst their eardrums. Suddenly the six-room house was filled with flying debris as it collapsed.

They saved themselves only by crouching beside the refrigerator which kept the wreckage off of them.

The Rev. R. L. Green, pastor of the nearby Southside Baptist Church, heard all of his doors blow open with a bang. He ran outside and saw the twister strike between his house and a church building and then strike the Bolton home. While he was outside, the minister saw lightning strike and melt his television antenna. A tree was blown over his auto.

Witnesses described the tornado as a shinny white whirling cloud which hopped and skipped through the area. Occasionally the bottom part would dip down, strike something and then bounce up to rejoin the rest of the funnel.

More Egg Hunt Plans Readied

Although the rainy weather "washed out" all Easter Egg hunts scheduled for the youngsters last Sunday, two are on schedule for today, weather permitting.

Starting at 1 p.m. and lasting until 2, a "hunt" will be held at the Tiny - Tot Playground on Marie Place, for all children eight years old and younger who live in the area. The event is sponsored by the North Monroe Lions Club.

At 3:30 p.m., the Monroe Fire Department will conduct an egg hunt in Forsythe Park near the Legion Home. All Twin Cities' youngsters are invited to the affair.

HOTARD-MOATE CASE

Man Says He Saw Slayings Of Pair

LAPLACE, La., April 27 (UP) — A New Orleans produce dealer today told deputies and the New Orleans Item that he was present when Thomas Hotard and Mrs. Audrey Moate were murdered in a lovers' lane near Lake Pontchartrain last November.

Jackson Lejeune, a vegetable producer dealer said he saw a New Orleans man shoot Hotard with a shotgun and then drag Mrs. Moate of Baton Rouge into a swampy pool.

Hotard, an Algiers, La., safety engineer and scout master, was murdered last November near lonely Frenier road. His companion, Mrs. Moate, a divorced mother of three children, has never been found.

Coverd By Water

The area where Lejeune said Mrs. Moate is buried is now covered with back water. However the general vicinity was searched last fall by deputies who could find no trace of her body.

Sheriff Percy Hebert of St. John the Baptist parish, where Lejeune is being held, would not say if he believed Lejeune's story.

Lejeune said he had been undergoing treatment for a severe nervous condition at Jackson, La., home of one of the state's mental institutions.

He said a nagging conscience drove him to the sheriff with his story.

Hotard's murder and Mrs. Moate's subsequent disappearance became one of south Louisiana's most celebrated lovers' lane mysteries.

Hotard, survived by a wife and family, was found partially clothed. Some articles of Mrs. Moate's clothing were found strewn near

SENATORS REPORT

4 Key Witnesses In Probe Missing

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — Senate rackets probers said today four key witnesses in their investigation of Teamsters Union President Dave Beck including Beck's son—"have disappeared."

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Special Senate Committee conducting the inquiry said the four are needed for questioning in a further investigation of Beck's handling of union funds.

Used Fifth

The Teamster chief recently invoked the Fifth Amendment, contending it might incriminate him if he told the committe whether he used hundreds of thousands of dollars of union funds to pay his personal bills and finance a lavish scale of living.

The committee now seeks to explore business dealings of Beck and members of his family with the Teamsters Union.

McClellan listed Fred Verschueren Sr., a top Teamster Union auditor, as the most wanted of the missing four. His announcement said the others sought are Dave Beck Jr., and two relatives of the senior Mrs. Beck, whom he identified as Joseph McAvoy, a nephew, and Norman Gessrt, a cousin. He said all four have Seattle addresses.

Hunt Three Months

Robert F. Kennedy, the committee counsel, told reporters the U. S. marshal in Seattle and committee investigators have sought since mid-January to locate Verschueren, to subpoena him for questioning.

Kennedy said Mrs. Verschueren, their son Fred Jr., and "the Seattle teamster organization" all professed to have no knowledge of the auditor's whereabouts.

McClellan said that after "intensive" efforts the past five or six weeks failed to locate Verschueren, he finally sent Beck this telegram April 15: "We are trying to locate Mr. Fred Verschueren Sr., and would appreciate your so informing him and also notifying me where he can be reached."

"All we got back," Kennedy said, "was a phone call that he (Beck) had received the message."

Sought Four

Kennedy said he made a trip to Seattle himself in an effort to interview the four, and could locate none of them. He said Gessert's wife reported her husband was "somewhere traveling" and that telegrams to the four individuals have been returned undelivered.

In reply to a question, Kennedy said the committee has not checked at border points to determine whether they may have left the country. But he said there has been "no trace" of any of them since efforts to serve them with subpoenas got under way.

HIRED POLICEMAN

MD Foiled In Plan For Own Murder

DETROIT, April 27 (UP) — A prominent psychiatrist, who plotted his own murder so a married woman who spurned him could collect double indemnity on his life insurance, was placed under the care of a fellow psychiatrist today.

Dr. C. L. R. Pearman, 56, appeared in recorder's court after admitting he arranged to pay a hired gunman $500 to shoot him to death in his plush downtown offices and make it look like a robbery.

The "gunman" turned out to be Henry Jason, a Detroit policeman who learned of the bizarre plot.

Judge John Scallen ordered that Pearman be examined by a court psychiatrist, Dr. Albert Walter, and asked for a sanity report May 1. No charges were lodged against Pearman.

"Nothing To Live For"

Ironically, Pearman and Walter worked together from time to time on recorder's court sanity cases.

Pearman, who is devorced, told police he felt he had "nothing to live for" when he hatched the plot. He said if authorities believed he was murdered his attractive brunette companion could collect his $20,000 life insurance—or $40,000 in double indemnity benefits. He recently listed her as beneficiary.

Asked For Dates

Police asked that the woman's name be withheld on grounds she was "an innocent and unwilling victim."

The woman and her husband appeared at police headquarters for questioning Friday night shortly after Pearman was arrested. She said Pearman kept "bothering" her for dates but she refused to go out with him.

Jason, posing as an ex-convict, contacted Pearman on Thursday when a tavern porter tipped him that Pearman was looking for an "assassin." Pearman paid Jason $50 then and promised to pay the $450 balance shortly before the "slaying."

Delay Asked In Decision On Routing

Congressman Otto E. Passman yesterday blasted a proposal to construct an elevated super highway through the City of Monroe and called the move "unreasonable."

The representative, home in Monroe for a short congressional recess, said there "is no sound justification in running these highways through the cities, destroying in many cases, perfectly good property."

Passman's statement came in response to questions about a request by Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard to aid in postponing a decision on the proposed location of a super highway through the south part of the city until a planning commission and traffic engineers can make a complete survey.

Alternate Favored

Passman said further that the super highway could be contsructed close to, but not within, the city limits and achieve the same or better results than proposed with bringing the roads through cities.

It is entirely up to the state highway department to make the through an area, Passman said.

However, he pointed out the federal government could, if it saw fit, refuse to accept the proposals of the state. This, it was stressed, is very seldom the case.

Mayor Howard has several times in the past expressed dissatisfaction with the lack of definite answers for several questions which have arisen over the proposed highway system in the city. It was this that prompted the direct communication with federal officials.

Mayor Howard sent telegrams to Senators Russell B. Long and Allan J. Ellender, Rep. Overton Brooks, and Bertram Tallamy, federal highway administrator, United States Bureau of Public Roads, urging them to use their influence in "holding in abeyance until our planning commission and traffic engineers have been able to formulate a master street plan and to determine the possible effect that this proposed elevated structure within five blocks of the downtown area will have . . ."

See As Hinderance

Representatives of the state department of highways in recent meetings told the city officials that the federal bureau of public roads had determined the route of the highway would roughly parallel the present Millhaven road and Texas avenue and cross the Ouach-

One skit poked fun at would-be candidates for governor in 1959. It featured a draped statue labeled "Long Candidate, 1959."

Several aspirants thought the concealed statue looked like them, but got a shock at the end.

Long and Mayor deLesseps Morrison of New Orleans carried on a mock discussion of wiretapping, with the governor offering the mayor his "secret backing" in 1959.

"There were some reports you helped persuade me to run in 1956," Morrison said, but Long denied this.

U.S. 6th Fleet Reaches Station In Mediterranean

NAPLES, Italy, April 27 (UP)— The super-aircraft carrier Forrestal, the battleship Wisconsin and the rest of the mighty U. S. Sixth Fleet rendezvoused in the eastern Mediterranean today.

The exact position of the fleet remained a closely guarded secret.

Its major warships, including the Forrestal, the Wisconsin and the cruisers Des Moines and Salem assembled off the Italian coast Friday and steamed eastward together.

The ships converged in runs from French and Italian ports that were made so swiftly hundreds of crewmen were left behind on shore.

The U. S. destroyer tender Everglades put out from Cannes on the French Riviera today for the fleet maneuver area with 250 seamen who were on leave when the fleet received its urgent sailing orders.

The Mediterranean operation was strictly a United States action, not taken in conjunction with NATO.

Officials would not say whether the fleet, known to be capable of carrying atomic weapons, actually had nuclear ammunition aboard.

Jordan Sets Up Courts To Try Rebels

AMMAN, Jordan, April 27 (AP) — Jordan's new anti-leftist regime established military courts today to try all cases growing out of Jordan's political crisis.

The two - day - old Cabinet of Premier Ibrahim Hashem, 69, arranged for the new courts in a two-hour meeting.

Censored Dispatch

(The censored disaptch did not say whom the new courts would try. Unconfirmed reports in other Arab capitals said Jordan Authorities had arrested several hundred Communists, leftists and extreme nationalists—including nationalist ex-Premier Suleiman Nabulsi.)

King Hussein meanwhile, got a cheering message from King Saud of Saudi Arabia, congratulating him on bringing law and order to Jordan after nearly three weeks of disturbances. It was one of many such messages received.

Unconfirmed reports said an official delegation from Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Syria was expected to arrive in Amman soon.

Jordan has a military alliance with those three countries. Hussein has said Jordan will decide soon whether to use the Eisenhower Doctrine, offering U. S. defense to any Arab country attacked by another power under international Communist control.

The Cabinet discussed the inter-

Twister Hits In Louisiana Near Sulphur

SULPHUR, La., April 27 (AP)—A "skinny white" tornado hopped and skipped over southwestern Louisiana tonight without causing much damage.

Three persons escaped death when the tornado crashed the roof and walls of their house around them south of here. A nearby lumberyard was damaged and power lines were cut off. Another house was lifted off its foundation and then placed down beside it.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Bolton and their four-year-old son, Robert Lynn, first knew of the approaching tornado when a roar nearly burst their eardrums. Suddenly the six-room house was filled with flying debris as it collapsed.

They saved themselves only by crouching beside the refrigerator which kept the wreackage off of them.

The Rev. R. L. Green, pastor of the nearby Southside Baptist Church, heard all of his doors blow open with a bang. He ran outside and saw the twister strike between his house and a church building and then strike the Bolton home. While he was outside, the minister saw lightning strike and melt his television antenna. A tree was blown over his auto.

Witnesses described the tornado as a shinny white whirling cloud which hopped and skipped through the area. Occasionally the bottom part would dip down, strike something and then bounce up to rejoin the rest of the funnel.

More Egg Hunt Plans Readied

Although the rainy weather "washed out" all Easter Egg hunts scheduled for the youngsters last Sunday, two are on schedule for today, weather permitting.

Starting at 1 p.m. and lasting until 2, a "hunt" will be held at the Tiny - Tot Playground on Marie Place, for all children eight years old and younger who live in the area. The event is sponsored by the North Monroe Lions Club.

At 3:30 p.m., the Monroe Fire Department will conduct an egg hunt in Forsythe Park near the Legion Home. All Twin Cities' youngsters are invited to the affair.

HOTARD-MOATE CASE

Man Says He Saw Slayings Of Pair

LAPLACE, La., April 27 (UP) — A New Orleans produce dealer today told deputies and the New Orleans Item that he was present when Thomas Hotard and Mrs. Audrey Moate were murdered in a lovers' lane near Lake Pontchartrain last November.

Jackson Lejeune, a vegetable producer dealer said he saw a New Orleans man shoot Hotard with a shotgun and then drag Mrs. Moate of Baton Rouge into a swampy pool.

Hotard, an Algiers, La., safety engineer and scout master, was murdered last November near lonely Frenier road. His companion, Mrs. Moate, a divorced mother of three children, has never been found.

Coverd By Water

The area where Lejeune said Mrs. Moate is buried is now covered with back water. However the general vicinity was searched last fall by deputies who could find no trace of her body.

Sheriff Percy Hebert of St. John the Baptist parish, where Lejeune is being held, would not say if he believed Lejeune's story.

Lejeune said he had been undergoing treatment for a severe nervous condition at Jackson, La., home of one of the state's mental institutions.

He said a nagging conscience drove him to the sheriff with his story.

Hotard's murder and Mrs. Moate's subsequent disappearance became one of south Louisiana's most celebrated lovers' mysteries.

Hotard, survived by a wife and family, was found partially clothed. Some articles of Mrs. Moate's clothing were found strewn near

SENATORS REPORT

4 Key Witnesses In Probe Missing

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — Senate rackets probers said today four key witnesses in their investigation of Teamsters Union President Dave Beck including Beck's son—"have disappeared."

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Special Senate Committee conducting the inquiry said the four are needed for questioning in a further investigation of Beck's handling of union funds.

Used Fifth

The Teamster chief recently invoked the Fifth Amendment, contending it might incriminate him if he told the committe whether he used hundreds of thousands of dollars of union funds to pay his personal bills and finance a lavish scale of living.

The committee now seeks to explore business dealings of Beck and members of his family with the Teamsters Union.

McClellan listed Fred Verschueren Sr., a top Teamster Union auditor, as the most wanted of the missing four. His announcement said the others sought are Dave Beck Jr., and two relatives of the senior Mrs. Beck, whom he identified as Joseph McAvoy, a nephew, and Norman Gessrt, a cousin. He said all four have Seattle addresses.

Hunt Three Months

Robert F. Kennedy, the committee counsel, told reporters the U. S. marshal in Seattle and committee investigators have sought since mid-January to locate Verschueren, to subpoena him for questioning.

Kennedy said Mrs. Verschueren, their son Fred Jr., and "the Seattle teamster organization" all professed to have no knowledge of the auditor's whereabouts.

McClellan said that after "intensive" efforts the past five or six weeks failed to locate Verschueren, he finally sent Beck this telegram April 15: "We are trying to locate Mr. Fred Verschueren Sr., and would appreciate your so informing him and also notifying me where he can be reached."

"All we got back," Kennedy said, "was a phone call that he (Beck) had received the message."

Sought Four

Kennedy said he made a trip to Seattle himself in an effort to interview the four, and could locate none of them. He said Gessert's wife reported her husband was "somewhere traveling" and that telegrams to the four individuals have been returned undelivered.

In reply to a question, Kennedy said the committee has not checked at border points to determine whether they may have left the country. But he said there has been "no trace" of any of them since efforts to serve them with subpoenas got under way.

HIRED POLICEMAN

MD Foiled In Plan For Own Murder

DETROIT, April 27 (UP) — A prominent psychiatrist, who plotted his own murder so a married woman who spurned him could collect double indemnity on his life insurance, was placed under the care of a fellow psychiatrist today.

Dr. C. L. R. Pearman, 56, appeared in recorder's court after admitting he arranged to pay a hired gunman $500 to shoot him to death in his plush downtown offices and make it look like a robbery.

The "gunman" turned out to be Henry Jason, a Detroit policeman who learned of the bizarre plot.

Judge John Scallen ordered that Pearman be examined by a court psychiatrist, Dr. Albert Walter, and asked for a sanity report May 1. No charges were lodged against Pearman.

"Nothing To Live For"

Ironically, Pearman and Walter worked together from time to time on recorder's court sanity cases.

Pearman, who is devorced, told police he felt he had "nothing to live for" when he hatched the plot. He said if authorities believed he was murdered his attractive brunette companion could collect his $20,000 life insurance—or $40,000 in double indemnity benefits. He recently listed her as beneficiary.

Asked For Dates

Police asked that the woman's name be withheld on grounds she was "an innocent and unwilling victim."

The woman and her husband appeared at police headquarters for questioning Friday night shortly after Pearman was arrested. She said Pearman kept "bothering" her for dates but she refused to go out with him.

Jason, posing as an ex-convict, contacted Pearman on Thursday when a tavern porter tipped him that Pearman was looking for an "assassin." Pearman paid Jason $50 then and promised to pay the $450 balance shortly before the "slaying."

Delay Asked In Decision On Routing

Congressman Otto E. Passman yesterday blasted a proposal to construct an elevated super highway through the City of Monroe and called the move "unreasonable."

The representative, home in Monroe for a short congressional recess, said there "is no sound justification in running these highways through the cities, destroying in many cases, perfectly good property."

Passman's statement came in response to questions about a request by Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard to aid in postponing a decision on the proposed location of a super highway through the south part of the city until a planning commission and traffic engineers can make a complete survey.

Alternate Favored

Passman said further that the super highway could be contsructed close to, but not within, the city limits and achieve the same or better results than proposed with bringing the roads through cities.

It is entirely up to the state highway department to make the through all area, Passman said.

However, he pointed out the federal government could, if it saw fit, refuse to accept the proposals of the state. This, it was stressed, is very seldom the case.

Mayor Howard has several times in the past expressed dissatisfaction with the lack of definite answers for several questions which have arisen over the proposed highway system in the city. It was this that prompted the direct communication with federal officials.

Mayor Howard sent telegrams to Senators Russell B. Long and Allan J. Ellender, Rep. Overton Brooks, and Bertram Tallamy, federal highway administrator, United States Bureau of Public Roads, urging them to use their influence in "holding in abeyance until our planning commission and traffic engineers have been able to formulate a master street plan and to determine the possible effect that this proposed elevated structure within five blocks of the downtown area will have . . ."

See As Hinderance

Representatives of the state department of highways in recent meetings told the city officials that the federal bureau of public roads had determined the route of the highway would roughly parallel the present Millhaven road and Texas avenue and cross the Ouach-

U.S. Committed Deeply In Middle East Area Role

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — The United States will be deeply committed from now on to play a hand in the dangerous and violent game of Middle Eastern power politics.

This commitment is a result of the decision by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles this week to throw American power and prestige benind King Hussein in his fight to prevent extremists, spurred by anti-Western and Communist agitators, from taking over Jordan.

Until the United States cast its influence and the threat of its military power into the struggle on Hussein's side, it had some freedom of choice about whether to take part in any particular Middle Eastern crisis. From here on, however, the prestige of the United States will be involved in any new conflict within the area and its stature and effectiveness seem certain to be judged by the outcome.

Essentially this is a way of saying that whether by necessity or by choice the United States has become a Middle Eastern power, taking over the position once held by Britain and France.

Three other results of the Jordanian crisis appeared either definite or probable today:

1. The Arab bloc, which has always been united in opposition to Israel and has shown considerable surface solidarity on the issue of Egypt's operation of the Suez Canal, is split wide open over the question of Jordan's future. Saudi Arabia and Iraq are supporting Hussein against Egypt and Syria.

2. The way the affair has gone to date, Iraq and Saudi Arabia are winning. This means, in particular, an increase in the stature of Arabian King Saud, who is counted as a strong anti-Communist and a friend of the United States. The stature of King Feisel in Iraq has also been enhanced.

3. The momentum of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's drive to make himself leader of the Moslem world has been checked at least momentarily. His failure to reduce Jordan to the level of a satellite or have his ally Syria take over large portions of it offsets the clear victory he has so far gained over the Western Powers in laying down his own terms for use of the canal, and making them stick.

Authorities here cautioned today that the Jordanian situation is by no means resolved yet. They are greatly encouraged by evidence that King Hussein in spite of his youth is proving a strong figure.

U.S. policy toward the King began to develop sharply at Secretary of State Dulles' news conference last Tuesday when he said "we have great confidence in and regard for King Hussein, because we really believe that he is striving to maintain the independence of his country. . ."

New Study Of River Route Set May 6

MOBILE, Ala., April 27 (AP)—Another study of the century-and-a-half-old idea of a connection between the Tombigbee and Tennessee rivers is scheluled to start May 6.

Army engineers said today the study will be made to determine whether a navigable waterway connection between the two rivers would be worth the 234½ million dollars it would cost.

Since the possibility of such a waterway was first conceived by French settlers in the Tombigbee valley before 1801, the idea has been revived several times, with subsequent surveys.

The 200-mile channel between the rivers given congressional authorization in 1946, when the cost was estimated at $120,340,000.

The money was never appropriated, and in 1951 the House Committee on Appropriations decided the project lacked economic justification. The Army engineers felt otherwise.

The committee's decision put the project in a "deferred-for-restudy" category. And that's where it's been since.

The new study is intended to determine whether the project should be classified as active and therfore eligible for funds, or active and put back on the shelf.

Col. Harold E. Bisbort, district engineer, said the upcoming field study to be concerned primarily with potential waterway traffic, will work this way:

Potential shippers and receivers of freight in the area will be contacted for data. These data will be screened to eliminate over optimistic estimates and moements obviously not adaptable to barge transportation.

Then the cost of the barge shipments will be compared to that of other methods. This will largely determine whether the big hitch, with 10 locks in its stretch from Demopolis, Ala., to the Pickwick Pool on the Tennessee near Iuka Miss., would be worth its cost.

The survey is expected to be completed by September, followed by the evaluation.

If the findings favor the canal, then it's up to Congress again. If not, that's it for a while, at least.

Ike Expected To Take Command Of Own Congressional Battles

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — Close associates expect President Eisenhower to take personal command next week of an new drive to get his bogged-down legislative program through Congress.

Congress comes back from a pulse-feeling Easter vacation Monday to face a legislative pile-up behind which most of the major Eisenhower proposals have been stalled.

Eisenhower will be back in the White House early next week after a work and play vacation at Augusta, Ga. His first order of business will apparently be to call legislative leaders of both parties together for a conference on his foreign aid program.

Administration officials look to this conference as the opening of a drive by the President to get early action in Congress on school construction aid, a refugee bill, civil rights and other legislation.

Eisenhower has been told by some of his advisers that although he has been plugging for his program in his weekly news conferences, some additional efforts may be necessary to build up popular support for his proposals. Talk the President might make some national television appeals for such support.

Eisenhower was represented in top administration circles as being determined to stick firmly by his recommendations for $4,400,000,000 foreign aid program.

That program is the chief target of congressional efforts to cut the President's $71,800,000,000 spending budget. Sen. Knowland, California, Republican leader, has predicted a billion dollar cut in foreign aid. Sen. Mansfield, Montana, acting Democratic leader, said even deeper reductions should be made.

Meanwhile two Democratic senators differed over the President's foreign aid program.

Sen. Ellender (D-La) said in a recorded radio broadcast that the $4,400,000,000 Eisenhower requested ought to be cut in half.

Sen. Morse (D-Ore) said on the other hand he thinks "it is better to spend some tax dollars for foreign aid than it is to pay exceedingly high military costs that would go along with the sacrifice of American boys in Europe in unnecessary war."

"I am satisfied," Morse said in a statement, "that when the people come to understand that, they will support those of us who will vote this year for reasonable foreign aid."

Prison Escapee Captured Here

A 21-year-old Shreveport Negro escapee was apprehended yesterday morning by Trooper I.H. Otwell of the state police as the Negro drove through Monroe in a stolen vehicle. He has been sought since his escape from the Caddo prison farm on April 4.

The Negro was identified as John Henry Ruffin, 2712 Anna street, Shreveport. He was reported to have stolen the vehicle on the evening of April 4 in Bossier City.

He was being held in the Ouachita parish jail last night for Caddo parish authorities.

Sen. Ellender (D-La) said in a recorded radio broadcast that the $4,400,000,000 Eisenhower requested ought to be cut in half.

Sen. Morse (D-Ore) said on the other hand he thinks "it is better to spend some tax dollars for foreign aid than it is to pay exceedingly high military costs that would go along with the sacrifice of American boys in Europe in unnecessary war."

"I am satisfied," Morse said in a statement, "that when the people come to understand that, they will support those of us who will vote this year for reasonable foreign aid."

Boat Factory Scheduled For L. Providence

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —An affiliate boat factory, of the Bowman Manufacturers, Inc., of Little Rock, Arkansas, will be located in Lake Providence, according to a preliminary agreement reached and signed by H. A. McCune, president, and Mayor W. B. Cone, president of the Lake Providence Area Development Corporation.

The new factory will be located on Lake Providence, between the Missouri Pacific Railroad and Highway 65. McCune stated that the plant building would contain about 70,000 square feet of floor space, and would be of modern design. Wood, aluminum and fiberglass boats will be manufactured here, with the plant employing about 100 men. During peak season, McCune said, they might employ over 150.

Bowman Manufacturers, Inc., are the exclusive finish fabricators and marketers of Goodyear Aircrafts' plastic fiberglass boat hull. These boats would bet fitted here, with the framing, seating and decks being put in. The manufacturers claim that these boats have never been tipped over or sunk.

Mayor Cone expressed his pleasure over the decision made by Bowman and stated that all members of the Lake Providence Area Development Corporation, as well as every other citizen in the parish is anxious and willing to cooperate in a way possible to assist the new plant in getting started.

Present plans call for operations to begin in about five months, the mayor stated.

Ferriday High Seniors Will Visit Gotham

FERRIDAY (Special) — Forty of the fifty seniors of the Ferriday High School, along with their official chaperones, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rosenberg, Luther Jones and Miss Coletta Collins, will leave Saturday morning at 11:30 from Laurel, Miss. via train for the annual senior trip to New York City.

The group will arrive in Washington, D. C. Sunday morning and tour the nation's capital until Tuesday night, then board a train for New York City, for a tour of interesting places in the world's largest city. Thursday night, they will begin the long trek home.

At the beginning of the 1956-57 school session, the senior class, although planning this trip, had no money. But along with the senior mothers, the sponsors and others, everyone pitched in and soon a little nest egg was growing until finally the $5,000 needed for the trip was realized.

The senior class expressed their appreciation to everyone who helped to make the trip possible.

Course Ends In Keeping Records By Business Men

The theme of the chamber for 1957 is "Better Records for Bigger and Better Business."

Conservation Work Outlined

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — Conservation practices carried out by land owners of East Carroll during the first three months of 1957 included land leveling, pasture improvement, drainage and wildlife improvement, according to Hugh O. Tidwell, director of the local Soil Conservation office here.

Tidwell said that soil surveys were made on approximately 3,000 acres in East Carroll during this first quarter and soil samples from five different farms sent to the laboratory for fertilizer recommendations.

The local Soil Conservation Service, which is attached to the East Carroll - Madison Soil Conservation District has assisted a total of 41 farmers with preliminary surveys already this year, Tidwell stated.

Argument Leads Pair To Hospital

A running argument landed two Monroe Negroes in E. A. Conway Memorial hospital for treatment of injuries caused by a fight shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

According to police officers Dan Jackson, C. D. Dulaney, and Sgt. George Whitlow, who investigated, Eddie Griffin, 38, of 415 N. 26th street and Brice Thompson, 56, of 29 Wallace street, became involved in the argument in a small cafe on DeSiard street.

Griffin left and started home but Thompson followed and caught up with him in front of the Red Onic Cafe. Griffin got a bottle to defend himself, but dropped it, and Thompson slashed his left arm with a pocket knife. Griffin then hit the back of his head on the sidewalk, and the fight was over.

He was taken to Conway by Miller's ambulance, and a patrol car took Thompson to the hospital, where both men were treated for their injuries and released.

Thompson was charged with public intoxication, aggravated battery and using a dangerous weapon, and was confined to the city jail.

BAPTISTS BELIEVE...

THE CHURCH OF THE LIVING GOD

Baptists believe that a visible church is a congregation of baptized believers, associated by covenant in the faith and fellowship of the gospel; observing the ordinances of Christ; governed by his laws; and exercising the gifts, rights, and privileges invested in them by his word; that its only proper officers are bishops or pastors, and deacons, whose qualifications, claims, and duties are defined in the New Testament.

Baptists believe that the church with all that pertains to it is strictly a New Testament institution.

The Baptist view of the constitution and polity of the church is that each church is a free, independent, and self-governing body. It is made up of regenerate men and women, believers in Christ, who have been immersed upon a profession of their faith in Him. It is based on and embodies the spiritual principles of Christianity. There is no way to classify believers in the church other than as spiritual equals. The pastor and deacons are not ecclesiastical superiors. They perform certain functions and discharge certain duties, but they are the servants of the church. The church is responsible directly to Christ within the limits of its own life. The church is the final authority on all debated questions. But, in its decisions the church is directly responsible to Christ and must look to the New Testament as the law of Christianity by which it is to be governed.

Christ organized the church so that his followers would have a divine institution through which to co-operate in the work of preaching the gospel of repentance and remission of sins to all nations. The church is ideal for co-operation. In it the followers of Christ are joined together in an organization with divine sanction—a brotherhood of kindred spirits made one in Christ by the regenerating power of the Holy Spirit—for the purpose of making Christ known to the world.

Accepting the New Testament as the inspired revelation of Christ, a church must strive to follow its teachings and to observe its requirements in worship and unity of organization. Baptism and the Lord's Supper, the two divinely instituted ordinances, must be kept true to the New Testament pattern.

Baptists believe that to be a true New Testament church a local church organization must (1) require personal acceptance of Christ and scriptural baptism by immersion before membership, (2) be self-governing and democratic, (3) maintain its purity by making Christ supreme, (4) commit itself wholeheartedly to carrying the message of Christ to all the world.

Presbyterians Take Stand Against Healing By Faith

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 27 (AP)—So-called faith healing was declared unscriptural by the General Assembly of Southern Presbyterians today.

Commissioners of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., said a conclusion that God will always raise up the sick in response to prayer denies scriptural teachings about human mortality.

"Were God to answer in the affirmative every sincere prayer offered to Him, He would in effect be abdicating as ruler of the universe and turning its control over to the human race," said a report approved by the assembly.

The report was made by the assembly's permanent committee on Christianity and health, and adopted following a two-hour discussion.

The committee analyzed the passage on which belief in faith healing is based—James 5:13-1. It said that incorrect interpretations have "furnished support for many of the bizarre practices and unjustifiable claims trumpeted abroad in the name of the Christian religion by faith healers."

The committee said the church should "not only refute the distortions of faith healers, but also . . . bring into proper scope the positive elements in James' program on behalf of the sick."

The biblical passage says: "Is any one among you suffering? Let him pray. Is any cheerful? Let him sing praise. Is any among you sick? Let him call for the elders of the church and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of faith will save the sick man, and the Lord will raise him up; and if he has committed sins, he will be forgiven. Therefore confess your sins to one another, and pray for one another, that ye may be healed."

"It is important to remember," said the report, "that by 'faith' James means much more than an intellectual assent to a proposition . . . Neither prayers nor faith would help a sick person recover from the adverse affects of overeating so long as he persided in gluttony . . ."

"James does not mean to say," the report asserted, "and certainly the Bible as a whole does not support the conclusion that the Lord will always raise up the sick in response to prayers of faith for then there would be no death. Such a conclusion would be a denial of the scriptual teaching about human mortality and were God to answer in the affirmative every sincere prayer offered to him he would in effect be addicating as ruler of the universe and turning its control over to the human race. Prayer should always be presented in the attitude, 'they will be done.' "

The commissioners next week take up the controversial question of continuing affiliation with the world and national councils of Churches of Christ.

These two interdenominational bodies have been under attack by various southern churches for their pronouncements on social, economic and political questions.

Dr. Harry Moffett, Gastonia, N. C., will deliver the assembly's Sunday sermon tomorrow. The gathering is being held in the South Highland Presbyterian Church.

SPEAKER
Dr. T. V. Smith, professor of poetry, politics and philosophy at Syracuse University, will deliver the spring commencement address at Northwestern State College Tuesday May 28 at 8 p.m. About 187 seniors are scheduled to receive degrees at graduation ceremonies that night.

Two Points Stressed In Educational Needs

In discussions on educational needs in the United States, two points are being heavily stressed on all sides. One of these is the necessity for keeping young people in school for much longer periods and the other is the need for giving special attention and extra educational advantages to young people who are exceptionally bright.

Both of these projects seem highly laudable, in view of the fact that the United States is said to be lagging in the number of scientists, engineers, technicians and others of highly developed skills it produces.

Sensibly enough, however, some words of caution are being dropped for the benefit of parents who might think their children are extraordinarily gifted and who might attempt to pressure them into fields beyond their capacities or for which they have no talents or desires.

A nationwide campaign to urge teenagers to stay in high school has been launched by the United States department of labor and the department of health, education and welfare. President Eisenhower added his voice to this campaign when he said:

"I urge every boy and girl in the United States to continue in school until they have developed their God-given capacities to the full. Only in this way can they hope to make their finest contributions to the strength of the nation and to reach the fulfillment of their own purposes in life."

Secretary of Labor Mitchell said:

"America's complex and growing industry demands alert, creative, imaginative young men and women who can take their places in the age of specialists. Such workers, educated in the high school classroom, are our nation's greatest wealth and most critical need. A high school diploma is fast becoming a young job seeker's minimum credential. Yet in 1956 only about 60 out of 100 boys and girls finished high school and only 12 out of every 100 completed four years of college.

In Pittsburgh, a panel of education experts outlined what may be indications of exceptional brightness in children and then proposed methods of developing this aptitude without putting pressure or undue guidance on the youngster.

The panel asked these questions: "Does your child ask a lot of questions—the 'why' type? Does he drive a hobby hard, perhaps neglecting his school work? In his school work, does he bear down on one subject for long periods, brushing off others? And then maybe lose interest in school altogether?"

Affirmative answers indicate characteristics of the gifted child, the one with a 135-plus I. Q.

If I. Q. tests have confirmed the belief of parents or teachers that the youngsters are exceptional, the experts give three pointers for developing the unusual abilities. They are: 1. Get professional advice; 2. Don't put undue pressure on him to measure up to his possibilities. 3. Give him all the informal help you can.

Two statements regarding parents of gifted children are of interest. Warren A. Ketchem of the University of Michigan said: "Parents can be depended on more than we realize," and "Parents have been unduly alarmed by reports of underachievement."

The whole thing seems to focus on the idea that gifted children must be given plenty of opportunity but must not be pushed too much. Genius is not something one person can give to another. Only the preparation for development of genius can be offered. If Thomas Edison or Albert Einstein had conformed to regimented standards of education they would not have risen above their teachers or fellow men.

Entertainments In Summer Often Fade

A sure way to get ulcers is to get involved in a summer entertainment undertaking—say an open air theater, a barn playhouse, a flower show, all the way down to a picnic.

There's one thing you cannot depend on in summer, and it's the weather. When the weather man says it's going to be fair and cool and all of a sudden a squall is cooked up beyond the horizon, you are sure the government is just wasting all the money on weather forecasting. You also condemn all forecasters as a shiftless lot.

By and large, weather in the fall and winter—for indoor affairs—isn't as mush of a worry as weather for outdoor summer programs. When you set a date for such a program—usually weeks ahead of time—you are confident that the sun will shine. However, as the day approaches you start scanning the weather charts and studying barometers.

You try to be optimistic, but pessimism gnaws on your insides and you swear you'll never again get involved in such a foolish thing as an outdoor affair in the summer.

Comes the great day, and if the sun shines you are sure you're just a child of Dame Fortune. If the heavens open up with a good steady drenching, you are positive someone has been guilty of voodooism against you.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Eisenhower Administration Will Be Lambasted At U.S. Chamber Meeting

WASHINGTON, D. C. — During the coming week the United States Chamber of Commerce will be holding its annual convention in Washington and the Eisenhower administration will be lambasted, as the New Deal used to be, for its record on spending and taxation.

Some of these spokesmen for American business shake their heads as they castigate the only Republican administration to hold office during the business experience of many of them It isn't quite as bad as their perennial feud with Franklin D. Roosevelt, but it involves a lot more money.

Twenty years ago, when most of the seasoned business leaders who will be here this week were just getting their toes on the executive threshold, federal expenditures were 7¾ billion dollars. This year they will be within sight of ten times that much. But the protests of the U. S. Chamber will not attain ten times the volume of 1937, when one speaker, tossing aside his prepared text, virtually accused the president of the United States of treason. That, of course, was also the year in which FDR tried to pack the U. S. supreme court.

If the visitors look around, however, they may find the political climate of Washington more pleasant in some respects than it was 20 years ago. One of their principal complaints then was against radicalism in government, and now the left wingers themselves admit their power is waning. They blame national prosperity.

Recently Robert M. Nathan, new president of the Americans for Democratic Action, conceded that his group has had a decline in membership, and that some of those present at its founding are no longer willing to lend their prestige to ADA. That is one of the reasons that the organization, which claims to be nonpartisan, recently invited its first Republican, Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland, to address its meeting. Nathan and his fellow officers want to keep it alive by an infusion of moderate political blood.

That is not the only comforting sign the U. S. Chamber members will see. The present session of congress displays a left wing lassitude which has hindered the passage of any important legislation sponsored by the liberal wings of both parties and evidently will continue to do so.

For some of this, the chamber claims credit — especially in influencing local attitudes in opposition to federal school legislation. That is a source of satisfaction to an influential national organization which 20 years ago found itself in the minority, except when it shared a popular cause, such as the court packing fight.

Actually, the U. S. Chamber has little more personal contact with the present occupant of the White House — though at least 80 per cent of its members voted for him — than it did with Franklin D. Roosevelt. President Eisenhower will not address its meeting, nor receive its members. Actually, few of them will care. Business and industry are now more influential than they were 20 years ago. They have better public relations, better labor relations and what seems to be a sounder prosperity.

Their fears if any, may be stated in this order.

1. An over production of goods such as started the depression of the '30s, which resulted in a failure of confidence requiring years to restore. Such an overproduction might first become apparent in the automobile industry, which could start an unemployment cycle which would shake confidence.

2. Any upsetting factor in the stock market, which would send prices down. A small cloud, which makes some market experts uneasy, is the realization that millions of dollars — some say billions, have been poured into the market from secret Swiss bank accounts by unknown investors. Both congress and the securities and exchange commission are interested.

These funds could have several adverse influences — one inflationary, another the dangers of foreign control of U. S. industries, a third an artificial commodity price level, similar to that maintained by pools in various parts of the world before the market crash of 1929.

3. Western business men are always apprehensive of a sharp decline in farm prices by reduction of price supports, which also was a factor in the great depression.

Those are not enough to inspire too much worry now, or to call for preventive measures. Ten years from now, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce will know more about them, for better or worse.

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN THAN THIS" — JOHN 15:13

Public Forum

Editor, Morning World:

There appeared recently in the Morning World an editorial concerning the supposed surplus in the Louisiana Teachers' Retirement Fund with comment to the effect that the "teachers cannot have their cake and eat it, too."

This came about from reports that a part of the surplus in the state welfare fund could possibly be diverted to the salary fund for teachers. Your editorial indicated that a part of the assets of the Teachers' Retirement System, reported to exceed $120 million, should be used for salary purposes.

Your (and the public's) consideration of certain facts as to the type of retirement system we have and to some figures relative to the operation of the system will be appreciated.

There is no surplus in the Teachers' Retirement System. Under the law, the system was set up on an actuarial reserve basis; and, under the law, the teacher-members pay six per cent of their salaries to the proper accounts.

Also under the law, as in other states operating on the full reserve system, the actuary is responsible for recommending the rate of contribution to be made by the employer.

Now, as of March 15, 1957, the total of the accumulated contributions of the members and the employer (or state), since the system was established in 1936, plus interest thereon, was more than $121 million. These funds are now invested, which is also as prescribed by law. No one can touch these funds except as prescribed by law, which must be obvious.

It must be recognized that part of these funds are to pay for the retirement of more than 1,700 retired teachers, and that they had been paying their money into the system since it was established. It must be recognized also that these funds are composed of contributions by the state and by the teachers themselves, and that this is to make it possible for future retiring teachers to have the funds safe and ready when the time comes for retirement.

The present generation of teachers and the present generation of citizens are paying for and preparing for retirement. This is obviously better than having future generations pay for retirement benefits of preceding generations.

As to the surplus in the welfare fund, or in the general fund of the state, there is an entirely different situation. In the past, surplus accumulated in the welfare fund has been used for other than welfare purposes; and that is a matter for the legislature, and not the teachers to decide. The matter of the current salary fund is in no way to be properly compared to the assets or investments of the Teacher Retirement System.

It should be noted also that an actuarial reserve system is much more economical than a non-reserve system.

Consider this hypothetical case: (a) a teacher retires after 36 years of service at the age of 72; (b) the life expectancy at this age is 17 years; (c) the teacher receives in retirement allowance $2,400 annually.

This retired teacher will receive, then, in his, or her, retired lifetime of 17 years a total of $40,800.

In a non-reserve system, this total of $40,800 must be accounted for in appropriations, for in non-reserve systems there is no money working to draw interest during the active service of the teacher. Such a system is the most costly kind; no attempt is made to amortize its obligations before they mature, which means that no interest income is earned to help pay the bill.

Better by far for all concerned if sufficient money had been accumulated, and was on hand at the time the teacher retired, to finance the benefits.

With the accumulated reserve available, and having earned three per cent interest on the balance on hand each year, the full $48,000 would not be necessary at the date of the teacher's retirement.

The sum of $13.17 at three per cent interest will yield 17 successive annual payments of $1 each; $13.17 times the $2,400 equals $31,608 — which is considerably less than the $40,800 determined in the figuring.

This is the amount, however, that will finance the $40,800 in retirement payments of $2,400 annually, for 17 successive years at three per cent interest. (The interest earned last yesar by the Teacher Retirement System was 3.04 per cent.)

Thus, by having the money on hand at the time of retirement, a savings to the teacher and to the state of $9,192 is effected, by the reason of interest earned on a constantly decreasing reserve over the 17 years of retirement.

Nor is that the full story.

If this $31,608 had been accumulated by the teacher and the state over the 36 years of the active service by the teacher, with these funds allowed to draw the three per cent interest, a still greater saving would be made. The amount of $1 annuity at three per cent for 36 years is found, from the standard table, to be $63.27594427; and $31,908 divided by $63.27594427 gives $499.53. Therefore, it is seen that the total annual installment required is $499.53.

The total amount invested is $17,983.08; the total interest earned at three per cent is $22,816.92, and the total payments to the retired teacher - member, $40,800.

From this illustration, it is readily realized that only the $17,983.08 is required, instead of the $40,800 under the non-reserve plan.

Is not the saving worth the planning?

Any consideration which you may give to this comment will be greatly appreciated.

On April 19 in an editorial on "Medical Education Week," you quoted from a leaflet of the American Medical Association which leaves the impression there is not a shortage of doctors in this country. I have no desire to get into an argument with you or the American Medical Association. Surely, the AMA should know its own figures, but it is hardly necessary to remind you and the AMA that lots of things can be proved on paper.

Last week in our three local newspapers I published an article entitled, "How Would You Like to Die Without A Doctor?" I set forth in this article that one of the contributing factors in the doctor shortage was the lack of sufficient qualified science teachers in our schools. The Monroe News Star and Morning World is widely distributed throughout Richland Parish and your editorial, coming as it did on the heels of publication of my article, prompts me not to let your editorial go unchallenged.

I shall only refer to the AMA's "Myth 1," which says, "While our general population increased 80 per cent during the 1910-1955 era, the supply of doctors increased 120 per cent. The number of doctors in this country is at a record ratio of one to every 730 persons, etc."

Let me remind you, Mr. Editor, that in the complexities of the civilization in which we are now living you cannot with fairness compare needs on a basis of population over a period of years. A country practitioner 40 years ago, with his pill bag and tooth pulling forceps, might serve fairly well 730 or even 1730 persons but that would be out of the question now.

Richland Parish is not an exceptional community. In the past 10 years seven young men and women out of a population of 26,672 graduated in medicine. There are seven doctors in our parish, one doctor for every 3,810 persons — a far cry from your 730 people.

"Well," you may say, "we got the doctors all right but they are practicing in the cities." The fact remains that there are thousands of rural communities throughout the United States without doctors and without hope of securing any in the near future. The American Medical Association will have a hard time proving an ample supply of doctors to those who have sought through advertising and the pleas of their chambers of commerce, veterans and civic organizations, to secure doctors in their communities.

I repeat that for all practical purposes there is a serious shortage of doctors, and give as one of the contributing factors a shortage of qualified science teachers in our schools. I say further, that there is a shortage of qualified science teachers because "would-be" qualified science teachers can do better financially in industry. In making this statement there is no intention of reflecting upon the many splendid teachers of science now in our classrooms, inadequate as the number may be. All the more praise should be given them for placing love of teaching above money.

Editor, Monroe Morning World

Your editorial of April 16 entitled "Retired Teachers Ask Reduction in Waste" will no doubt be commended and approved, not only by retired teachers, but by all other persons living mainly on fixed incomes. The purchasing power of the dollars they receive has been reduced by nearly half because of the creeping inflation of the past ten or twelve years. The federal budget now under consideration by the United States Congress threatens further inflation by a continuation of the extravagant spending and excessively high taxation which have prevailed for some years.

Some of the more responsible and competent members of Congress doubt that the general economy can long continue to sustain the present high level of federal expenditures, debt, and taxes, the primary cause of inflation.

To cite one authority, Senator Harry F Byrd of Virginia recently stated on the floor of the U.S. Senate: "federal budgets have been rising steadily. This budget is the worse yet. It begins another spending spree which will continue inflation and increase the cost of living. . . . It is dangerous in the extreme, because it entrenches wasteful spending and embarks on many new projects which will compel larger and larger budgets as the years go on. . . . Let us not forget that the Secretary of the Treasury (Humphrey) denounced this budget . . as authorizing expenditures which, if continued, would lead to a depression which would 'curl your hair'."

It would be useful if other organizations would take the same stand as that of the Louisiana Retired Teachers Association and make their voices heard in Washington. All persons living on fixed incomes and others want to put the brakes on further inflation, should write promptly to our two senators and six congressmen who represent us in Washington.

Now is the time to join in the nation-wide protest against federal spending, debt and taxation

JNO. M. FOOTE

Editor, Morning World:

The teacher pay scale seems to have some of our representatives and senators out on a limb.

They claim they made a grave mistake in voting such a raise and should rewrite the pay scale to fit the money available.

Some of them say there should be some kind of merit system worked out to grant a pay raise on. Is this a scheme to try to get the teacher organization disorganized, and get it back to where the politicans can run the teaching profession as a political football?

It seems there would be more money available for the classroom teachers who have spent 16 to 18 years preparing themselves for the profession if every Tom, Dick and Harry that drives a school bus, janitor and lunch room worker didn't come in for part of it. What kind of preparation do you have to make in order to do any one of the three mentioned above? How many hours per day they work compared with the teacher work day at school, not to mention the hours spent at home preparing lessons for the following day?

Now, back to the merit system. What kind of system is used to raise the salaries of these women who keep having illegitimate children? For each one born they automatically get a raise in salary. I would call this the demerit system instead of merit system. It is also an inducement to keep on at this disgraceful state of humanity.

The classroom teacher is striving to make this a better State and Country to live in and certainly not degrading it.

I think it is time for everyone to wake up and look around them, and try to visualize the kind of men we have in Baton Rouge saying they are representating the people of Louisiana for a greater State to live in.

We would like to see it happen.

Sincerely,
J. R. Kolb,
Delhi, La.

Invariable Newspaper Law Is To Interest Its Readers

While U. S. editors are holding their annual get-together — it is well to recall the outstanding editors who have given the free press much of its fire and fervor. They functioned as Solomon and Shakespeare and beat the deadline. . . . Among the titans was Charles Dana, who expressed his philosophy of journalism in several succinct sentences: "The invariable law of the newspaper is to be interesting. Suppose you tell all the truths of science in a way that bores the reader; what is the good? The truths don't stay in the mind and nobody thinks any the better of you because you have told the truth." . . . Moreover, the great editors were remarkably attuned to the heart-songs of the people. As Dana explained: "I have always felt that whatever the Divine Providence permitted to occur I was not too proud to report."

Editor Walter Howey was never too proud to report all the news —first. Contemptuous of the smug and censorious — mocking stern morality and scornful of conventions — Howey outfoxed, outfought and outraged the opposition during Chicago's famed newspaper wars. . . . He once hid a suspected killer in a hotel room wired with concealed microphones and extracted a confession. Howey's paper prefaced the scoop with a stock introduction — expressing calm superiority calculated to infuriate competitors: "This newspaper, which has been unusually successful in solving crime mysteries, brings you the exclusive confession of . . ."

Despite his firecracker methods, Howey was a dedicated journalist with a profound respect for the craft. He once wrote: "Many of the newspapers that died were published for selfish and partisan interests. The great newspapers which have survived appear to me to have a history of having given more to the reader than they expected to get from the reader."

Every editor is aware that dailies must reflect the magnificent and grotesque panorama of events. The ironies and tragedies. The triumphs and the festivals. National calamities, international debates and personal misfortunes. . . . Merrill Goddard, who was one of the old time extraordinary editors, was motivated by such a philosophy. Mrs. Fremont Older's book, "William Hearst, American," offers this: "Goddard knew how to interest every man, woman and child. He appealed to every stratum of society. He had a genius for sensing what would interest New York — the newest fashionable divorce, the romance of a beautiful actress or the birth of a baby."

In short, news is anything of interest to subscribers — personal or international. From the birth of a baby to the death of a nation.

Arthur Brisbane was another giant among editors who had a genius for sensing what interested people. He knew that a newspaper must cover all the vagaries and agonies of the mortal experience. "Headlines are history" he wrote. And he made an immense contribution to the black fragments of a classic serial. . . This reporter's pet Brisbane yarn concerns the time William Randolph Hearst urged him to take a 6-month holiday. Brisbane rejected the generous offer. He wrote his chief: "There are two reasons why I will not accept an extended vacation. The first reason is that if I quit writing my column for six months it might affect the circulation of your newspapers. The second reason is that it might affect the circulation of your newspapers. The second reason is that it might not."

Superior editors — such as William Allen White — not only recorded history. They made it. They commented on events and participated in shaping the course of history. White's notable crusade against the Ku Klux Klan is an historic illustration. . . . The Kansas editor considered journalism a great adventure and every crusade was the start of a glorious conquest. His newspaper reflected his conscience and he constantly fought against indecency.

Despite all the claims, he reports, there were only four color tests made for the Scarlett O'Hara role in "Gone With the Wind"...Joan Bennett, Jean Arthur, Paulette Goddard and Vivien Leigh...The Metro in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comes from the Greek word "mother"...."Grand Hotel" was the first time that Garbo was billed without her first name...When Marcus Loew, the founder of Loew's Theaters died, his friends sent more than $250,000 in flowers...Two weeks before Vitaphone gave its first public demonstration of "talkies" inventor Thomas A. Edison told reporters "there is no future in sound."

$19,948 Handed Out To One Illegitimate Mother

You catch an unauthorized pickpocket going through Uncle Sam's trousers, it'll cost you to punish him.

In Chicago, Elsie McDaniel is the mother of ten children fathered by five men.

On the subject of marriage, her memoery is vague, indefinite.

Ten years ago she went on relief rolls and has since collected $19,948 of taxpayers' money.

Judge William Barth of Domestic Relations Court calls this "one of the most flagrant abuses of the aid to dependent children programs I ever heard of."

He says, "I think it's time taxpayers got relief, themselves, from this type of person."

He recommends a jail sentence for relief cheaters.

He gave her six months.

But here is the rub: Evidence indicates Elsie McDaniel has illegally obtained $5,864 in relief funds. (Statute of Limiatations expired on balance.)

To prosecute and punish and care for her chillren meanwhile can cost the taxpayers another ter thousand dollars!

And more than this, when her punishment is over, the woman and her ten offspring will almost certainly be reinstated as relief recipients!

Though having been convicted and having served a sentence for relief fraud, the law says she is still eligible for further aid. Indeed, if she can prove need, the ADC (Aid for Dependent Children) officials are powerless to deny it!

To remove her from relief rolls permanently would require that the courts declare her an "unfit mother" and take the children away from her permanently.

Both state and city relief officials are disinclined to initaite that litigation.

In Illinois, a total if 3½ million taxpayers' dollars are spent each month on aid to dependent children relief.

Last week, when police went to her residence to arrest the woman, they were met outside by an angry fat man with a hatchet in his pocket. Apparently a man with whom she has been living.

Many, as in the Elsie McDaniel case, view public relief as a permanent way of life.

Nobody knows how many less "spectacular" cheaters are getting some of that 3½ million a month, but Elsie McDaniel admittedly can be multiplied many times and in most every city.

And when you press relief authorities for a more careful policing of the situation, they can show you that their limited resources and facilities simply cannot allow individual examination of every claim. To enlarge the staff, intensify the screening would require further expenditure.

The cost of catching and punishing the relief cheater is greater than the sum of what he steals. So either way, as long as we are committed to encouraging the indolent, the taxpayers pay.

Two Points Stressed In Educational Needs

In discussions on educational needs in the United States, two points are being heavily stressed on all sides. One of these is the necessity for keeping young people in school for much longer periods and the other is the need for giving special attention and extra educational advantages to young people who are exceptionally bright.

Both of these projects seem highly laudable, in view of the fact that the United States is said to be lagging in the number of scientists, engineers, technicians and others of highly developed skills it produces.

Sensibly enough, however, some words of caution are being dropped for the benefit of parents who might think their children are extraordinarily gifted and who might attempt to pressure them into fields beyond their capacities or for which they have no talents or desires.

A nationwide campaign to urge teenagers to stay in high school has been launched by the United States department of labor and the department of health, education and welfare. President Eisenhower added his voice to this campaign when he said:

"I urge every boy and girl in the United States to continue in school until they have developed their God-given capacities to the full. Only in this way can they hope to make their finest contributions to the strength of the nation and to reach the fulfillment of their own purposes in life."

Secretary of Labor Mitchell said:

"America's complex and growing industry demands alert, creative, imaginative young men and women who can take their places in the age of specialists. Such workers, educated in the high school classroom, are our nation's greatest wealth and most critical need. A high school diploma is fast becoming a young job seeker's minimum credential. Yet in 1956 only about 60 out of 100 boys and girls finished high school and only 12 out of every 100 completed four years of college.

In Pittsburgh, a panel of education experts outlined what may be indications of exceptional brightness in children and then proposed methods of developing this aptitude without putting pressure or undue guidance on the youngster.

The panel asked these questions: "Does your child ask a lot of questions—the 'why' type? Does he drive a hobby hard, perhaps neglecting his school work? In his school work, does he bear down on one subject for long periods, brushing off others? And then maybe lose interest in school altogether?"

Affirmative answers indicate characteristics of the gifted child, the one with a 135-plus I. Q.

If I. Q. tests have confirmed the belief of parents or teachers that the youngsters are exceptional, the experts give three pointers for developing the unusual abilities. They are: 1. Get professional advice; 2. Don't put undue pressure on him to measure up to his possibilities. 3. Give him all the informal help you can.

Two statements regarding parents of gifted children are of interest. Warren A. Ketchem of the University of Michigan said: "Parents can be depended on more than we realize," and "Parents have been unduly alarmed by reports of underachievement."

The whole thing seems to focus on the idea that gifted children must be given plenty of opportunity but must not be pushed too much. Genius is not something one person can give to another. Only the preparation for development of genius can be offered. If Thomas Edison or Albert Einstein had conformed to regimented standards of education they would not have risen above their teachers or fellow men.

Entertainments In Summer Often Fade

A sure way to get ulcers is to get involved in a summer entertainment undertaking—say an open air theater, a barn playhouse, a flower show, all the way down to a picnic.

There's one thing you cannot depend on in summer, and it's the weather. When the weather man says it's going to be fair and cool and all of a sudden a squall is cooked up beyond the horizon, you are sure the government is just wasting all the money on weather forecasting. You also condemn all forecasters as a shiftless lot.

By and large, weather in the fall and winter—for indoor affairs—isn't as much of a worry as weather for outdoor summer programs. When you set a date for such a program—usually weeks ahead of time—you are confident that the sun will shine. However, as the day approaches you start scanning the weather charts and studying barometers.

You try to be optimistic, but pessimism gnaws on your insides and you swear you'll never again get involved in such a foolish thing as an outdoor affair in the summer.

Comes the great day, and if the sun shines you are sure you're just a child of Dame Fortune. If the heavens open up with a good steady drenching, you are positive someone has been guilty of voodooism against you.

Eisenhower Administration Will Be Lambasted At U.S. Chamber Meeting

WASHINGTON, D. C. — During the coming week the United States Chamber of Commerce will be holding its annual convention in Washington and the Eisenhower administration will be lambasted as the New Deal used to be, for its record on spending and taxation.

Some of these spokesmen for American business shake their heads as they castigate the only Republican administration to hold office during the business experience of many of them It isn't quite as bad as their perennial feud with Franklin D. Roosevelt, but it involves a lot more money.

Twenty years ago, when most of the seasoned business leaders who will be here this week were just getting their toes on the executive threshold, federal expenditures were 7¾ billion dollars. This year they will be within sight of ten times that much. But the protests of the U. S. Chamber will not attain ten times the volume of 1937, when one speaker, tossing aside his prepared text, virtually accused the president of the United States of treason. That, of course, was also the year in which FDR tried to pack the U. S. supreme court.

If the visitors look around, however, they may find the political climate of Washington more pleasant in some respects than it was 20 years ago. One of their principal complaints then was against radicalism in government, and now the left wingers themselves admit their power is waning. They blame national prosperity.

Recently Robert M. Nathan, new president of the Americans for Democratic Action, conceded that his group has had a decline in membership, and that some of those present at its founding are no longer willing to lend their prestige to ADA. That is one of the reasons that the organization, which claims to be nonpartisan, recently invited its first Republican, Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland, to address its meeting. Nathan and his fellow officers want to keep it alive by an infusion of moderate political blood.

That is not the only comforting sign the U. S. Chamber members will see. The present session of congress displays a left wing lassitude which has hindered the passage of any important legislation sponsored by the liberal wings of both parties and evidently will continue to do so.

For some of this, the chamber claims credit — especially in influencing local attitudes in opposition to federal school legislation. That is a source of satisfaction to an influential national organization which 20 years ago found itself in the minority, except when it shared a popular cause, such as the court packing fight.

Actually, the U. S. Chamber has little more personal contact with the present occupant of the White House — though at least 80 per cent of its members voted for him — than it did with Franklin D. Roosevelt. President Eisenhower will not address its meeting, nor receive its members. Actually, few of them will care. Business and industry are now more influential than they were 20 years ago. They have better public relations, better labor relations and what seems to be a sounder prosperity.

Their fears if any, may be stated in this order.

1. An over production of goods such as started the depression of the '30s, which resulted in a failure of confidence requiring years to restore. Such an overproduction might first become apparent in the automobile industry, which could start an unemployment cycle which would shake confidence.

2. Any upsetting factor in the stock market, which would send prices down. A small cloud, which makes some market experts uneasy, is the realization that millions of dollars — some say billions, have been poured into the market from secret Swiss bank accounts by unknown investors. Both congress and the securities and exchange commission are interested.

These funds could have several adverse influences — one inflationary, another the dangers of foreign control of U. S. industries. a third an artificial commodity price level, similar to that maintained by pools in various parts of the world before the market crash of 1929.

3. Western business men are always apprehensive of a sharp decline in farm prices by reduction of price supports, which also was a factor in the great depression.

Those are not enough to inspire too much worry now, or to call for preventive measures. Ten years from now, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce will know more about them, for better or worse.

Public Forum

Editor, Morning World:

There appeared recently in the Morning World an editorial concerning the supposed surplus in the Louisiana Teachers' Retirement Fund with comment to the effect that the "teachers cannot have their cake and eat it, too."

This came about from reports that a part of the surplus in the state welfare fund could possibly be diverted to the salary fund for teachers. Your editorial indicated that a part of the assets of the Teachers' Retirement System, reported to exceed $120 million, should be used for salary purposes.

Your (and the public's) consideration of certain facts as to the type of retirement system we have and to some figures relative to the operation of the system will be appreciated.

There is no surplus in the Teachers' Retirement System. Under the law, the system was set up on an actuarial reserve basis; and, under the law, the teacher-members pay six per cent of their salaries to the proper accounts.

Also under the law, as in other states operating on the full reserve system, the actuary is responsible for recommending the rate of contribution to be made by the employer.

Now, as of March 15, 1957, the total of the accumulated contributions of the members and the employer (or state), since the system was established in 1936, plus interest thereon, was more than $121 million. These funds are now invested, which is also as prescribed by law. No one can touch these funds except as prescribed by law, which must be obvious.

It must be recognized that part of these funds are to pay for the retirement of more than 1,700 retired teachers, and that they had been paying their money into the system since it was established. It must be recognized also that these funds are composed of contributions by the state and by the teachers themselves, and that this is to make it possible for future retiring teachers to have the funds safe and ready when the time comes for retirement.

The present generation of teachers and the present generation of citizens are paying for and preparing for retirement. This is obviously better than having future generations pay for retirement benefits of preceding generations.

As to the surplus in the welfare fund, or in the general fund of the state, there is an entirely different situation. In the past, surplus accumulated in the welfare fund has been used for other than welfare purposes; and that is a matter for the legislature, and not the teachers to decide. The matter of the current salary fund is in no way to be properly compared to the assets or investments of the Teacher Retirement System.

It should be noted also that an actuarial reserve system is much more economical than a non-reserve system.

Consider this hypothetical case: (a) a teacher retires after 36 years of service at the age of 72; (b) the life expectancy at this age is 17 years; (c) the teacher receives in retirement allowance $2,400 annually.

This retired teacher will receive, then, in his, or her, retired lifetime of 17 years a total of $40,800.

In a non-reserve system, this total of $40,800 must be accounted for in appropriations, for in non-reserve systems there is no money working to draw interest during the active service of the teacher. Such a system is the most costly kind; no attempt is made to amortize its obligations before they mature, which means that no interest income is earned to help pay the bill.

Better by far for all concerned if sufficient money had been accumulated, and was on hand at the time the teacher retired, to finance the benefits.

With the accumulated reserve available, and having earned three per cent interest on the balance on hand each year, the full $48,000 would not be necessary at the date of the teacher's retirement.

The sum of $13.17 at three per cent interest will yield 17 successive annual payments of $1 each; $13.17 times the $2,400 equals $31,608 — which is considerably less than the $40,800 determined in the figuring.

This is the amount, however, that will finance the $40,800 in retirement payments of $2,400 annually, for 17 successive years at three per cent interest. (The interest earned last yesar by the Teacher Retirement System was 3.04 per cent.)

Thus, by having the money on hand at the time of retirement, a savings to the teacher and to the state of $9,192 is effected, by the reason of interest earned on a constantly decreasing reserve over the 17 years of retirement.

Nor is that the full story.

If this $31,608 had been accumulated by the teacher and the state over the 36 years of the active service by the teacher, with these funds allowed to draw the three per cent interest, a still greater saving would be made. The amount of $1 annuity at three per cent for 36 years is found, from the standard table, to be $63.27594427; and $31,908 divided by $63.27594427 gives $499.53. Therefore, it is seen that the total annual installment required is $499.53.

The total amount invested is $17,983.08; the total interest earned at three per cent is $22,816.92, and the total payments to the retired teacher - member, $40,800.

From this illustration, it is readily realized that only the $17,983.08 is required, instead of the $40,800 under the non-reserve plan.

Is not the saving worth the planning?

Any consideration which you may give to this comment will be greatly appreciated.

On April 19 in an editorial on "Medical Education Week," you quoted from a leaflet of the American Medical Association which leaves the impression there is not a shortage of doctors in this country. I have no desire to get into an argument with you or the American Medical Association. Surely, the AMA should know its own figures, but it is hardly necessary to remind you and the AMA that lots of things can be proved on paper.

Last week in our three local newspapers I published an article entitled, "How Would You Like to Die Without A Doctor?" I set forth in this article that one of the contributing factors in the doctor shortage was the lack of sufficient qualified science teachers in our schools. The Monroe News Star and Morning World is widely distributed throughout Richland Parish and your editorial, coming as it did on the heels of publication of my article, prompts me not to let your editorial go unchallenged.

I shall only refer to the AMA's "Myth 1," which says, "While our general population increased 80 per cent during the 1910-1955 era, the supply of doctors increased 120 per cent. The number of doctors in this country is at a record ratio of one to every 730 persons, etc."

Let me remind you, Mr. Editor, that in the complexities of the civilization in which we are now living you cannot with fairness compare needs on a basis of population over a period of years. A country practitioner 40 years ago, with his pill bag and tooth pulling forceps, might serve fairly well 730 or even 1730 persons but that would be out of the question now.

Richland Parish is not an exceptional community. In the past 10 years seven young men and women out of a population of 26,672 graduated in medicine. There are seven doctors in our parish, one doctor for every 3,810 persons — a far cry from your 730 people.

"Well," you may say, "we got the doctors all right but they are practicing in the cities." The fact remains that there are thousands of rural communities throughout the United States without doctors and without hope of securing any in the near future. The American Medical Association will have a hard time proving an ample supply of doctors to those who have sought through advertising and the pleas of their chambers of commerce, veterans and civic organizations, to secure doctors in their communities.

I repeat that for all practical purposes there is a serious shortage of doctors, and give as one of the contributing factors a shortage of qualified science teachers in our schools. I say further, that there is a shortage of qualified science teachers because "would-be" qualified science teachers can do better financially in industry. In making this statement there is no intention of reflecting upon the many splendid teachers of science now in our classrooms, inadequate as the number may be. All the more praise should be given them for placing love of teaching above money.

Your editorial of April 16 entitled "Retired Teachers Ask Reduction in Waste" will no doubt be commended and approved, not only by retired teachers, but by all other persons living mainly on fixed incomes. The purchasing power of the dollars they receive has been reduced by nearly half because of the creeping inflation of the past ten or twelve years. The federal budget now under consideration by the United States Congress threatens further inflation by a continuation of the extravagant spending and excessively high taxation which have prevailed for some years.

Some of the more responsible and competent members of Congress doubt that the general economy can long continue to sustain the present high level of federal expenditures, debt, and taxes, the primary cause of inflation.

To cite one authority, Senator Harry F Byrd of Virginia recently stated on the floor of the U.S. Senate: "federal budgets have been rising steadily. This budget is the worse yet. It begins another spending spree which will continue inflation and increase the cost of living. . . . It is dangerous in the extreme, because it entrenches wasteful spending and embarks on many new projects which will compel larger and larger budgets as the years go on. . . . Let us not forget that the Secretary of the Treasury (Humphrey) denounced this budget . . as authorizing expenditures which, if continued, would lead to a depression which would 'curl your hair'."

It would be useful if other organizations would take the same stand as that of the Louisiana Retired Teachers Association and make their voices heard in Washington. All persons living on fixed incomes and others want to put the brakes on further inflation, should write promptly to our two senators and six congressmen who represent us in Washington.

Now is the time to join in the nation-wide protest against federal spending, debt and taxation

Editor, Morning World:

The teacher pay scale seems to have some of our representatives and senators out on a limb.

They claim they made a grave mistake in voting such a raise and should rewrite the pay scale to fit the money available.

Some of them say there should be some kind of merit system worked out to grant a pay raise on. Is this a scheme to try to get the teacher organization disorganized, and get it back to where the politicans can run the teaching profession as a political football?

It seems there would be more money available for the classroom teachers who have spent 16 to 18 years preparing themselves for the profession if every Tom, Dick and Harry that drives a school bus, janitor and lunch room worker didn't come in for part of it. What kind of preparation do you have to make in order to do any one of the three mentioned above? How many hours per day they work compared with the teacher work day at school, not to mention the hours spent at home preparing lessons for the following day?

Now, back to the merit system. What kind of system is used to raise the salaries of these women who keep having illegitimate children? For each one born they automatically get a raise in salary. I would call this the demerit system instead of merit system. It is also an inducement to keep on at this disgraceful state of humanity.

The classroom teacher is striving to make this a better State and Country to live in and certainly not degrading it.

I think it is time for everyone to wake up and look around them, and try to visualize the kind of men we have in Baton Rouge saying they are representating the people of Louisiana for a greater State to live in.

We would like to see it happen.

Sincerely,
J. R. Kolb

Invariable Newspaper Law Is To Interest Its Readers

While U. S. editors are holding their annual get-together — it is well to recall the outstanding editors who have given the free press much of its fire and fervor. They functioned as Solomon and Shakespeare and beat the deadline. . . . Among the titans was Charles Dana, who expressed his philosophy of journalism in several succinct sentences: "The invariable law of the newspaper is to be interesting. Suppose you tell all the truths of science in a way that bores the reader; what is the good? The truths don't stay in the mind and nobody thinks any the better of you because you have told the truth." . . . Moreover, the great editors were remarkably attuned to the heartsongs of the people. As Dana explained: "I have always felt that whatever the Divine Providence permitted to occur I was not too proud to report."

Editor Walter Howey was never too proud to report all the news —first. Contemptuous of the smug and censorious — mocking stern morality and scornful of conventions — Howey outfoxed, outfought and outraged the opposition during Chicago's famed newspaper wars. . . . He once hid a suspected killer in a hotel room wired with concealed microphones and extracted a confession. Howey's paper prefaced the scoop with a stock introduction — expressing calm superiority calculated to infuriate competitors: "This newspaper, which has been unusually successful in solving crime mysteries, brings you the exclusive confession of . . ."

Despite his firecracker methods, Howey was a dedicated journalist with a profound respect for the craft. He once wrote: "Many of the newspapers that died were published for selfish and partisan interests. The great newspapers which have survived appear to me to have a history of having given more to the reader than they expected to get from the reader."

Every editor is aware that dailies must reflect the magnificent and grotesque panorama of events. The ironies and tragedies. The triumphs and the festivals. National calamities, international debates and personal misfortunes. . . . Merrill Goddard, who was one of the old time extraordinary editors, was motivated by such a philosophy. Mrs. Fremont Older's book, "William Hearst, American," offers this: "Goddard knew how to interest every man, woman and child. He appealed to every stratum of society. He had a genius for sensing what would interest New York — the newest fashionable divorce, the romance of a beautiful actress or the birth of a baby."

In short, news is anything of interest to subscribers — personal or international. From the birth of a baby to the death of a nation.

Arthur Brisbane was another giant among editors who had a genius for sensing what interested people. He knew that a newspaper must cover all the vagaries and agonies of the mortal experience. "Headlines are history" he wrote. And he made an immense contribution to the black fragments of a classic serial. . . This reporter's pet Brisbane yarn concerns the time William Randolph Hearst urged him to take a 6-month holiday. Brisbane rejected the generous offer. He wrote his chief: "There are two reasons why I will not accept an extended vacation. The first reason is that if I quit writing my column for six months it might affect the circulation of your newspapers. The second reason is that it might affect the circulation of your newspapers. The second reason is that it might not."

Superior editors — such as William Allen White — not only recorded history. They made it. They commented on events and participated in shaping the course of history. White's notable crusade against the Ku Klux Klan is an historic illustration. . . . The Kansas editor considered journalism a great adventure and every crusade was the start of a glorious conquest. His newspaper reflected his conscience and he constantly fought against indecency.

Despite all the claims, he reports, there were only four color tests made for the Scarlett O'Hara role in "Gone With the Wind"... Joan Bennett, Jean Arthur, Paulette Goddard and Vivien Leigh ...The Metro in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comes from the Greek word "mother"..."Grand Hotel" was the first time that Garbo was billed without her first name...When Marcus Loew, the founder of Loew's Theaters died, his friends sent more than $250,000 in flowers...Two weeks before Vitaphone gave its first public demonstration of "talkies" inventor Thomas A. Edison told reporters "there is no future in sound."

$19,948 Handed Out To One Illegitimate Mother

You catch an unauthorized pickpocket going through Uncle Sam's trousers, it'll cost you to punish him.

In Chicago, Elsie McDaniel is the mother of ten children fathered by five men.

On the subject of marriage, her memoery is vague, indefinite.

Ten years ago she went on relief rolls and has since collected $19,948 of taxpayers' money.

Judge William Barth of Domestic Relations Court calls this "one of the most flagrant abuses of the aid to dependent children programs I ever heard of."

He says, "I think it's time taxpayers got relief, themselves, from this type of person."

He recommends a jail sentence for relief cheaters.

He gave her six months.

But here is the rub: Evidence indicates Elsie McDaniel has illegally obtained $5,864 in relief funds. (Statute of Limiatations expired on balance.)

To prosecute and punish and care for her chillren meanwhile can cost the taxpayers another thousand dollars!

And more than this, when her punishment is over, the woman and her ten offspring will almost certainly be reinstated as relief recipients!

Though having been convicted and having served a sentence for relief fraud, the law says she is still eligible for further aid. Indeed, if she can prove need, the ADC (Aid for Dependent Children) officials are powerless to deny it!

To remove her from relief rolls permanently would require that the courts declare her an "unfit mother" and take the children away from her permanently.

Both state and city relief officials are disinclined to initaite that litigation.

In Illinois, a total if 3½ million taxpayers' dollars are spent each month on aid to dependent children relief.

Last week, when police went to her residence to arrest the woman, they were met outside by an angry fat man with a hatchet in his pocket. Apparently a man with whom she has been living.

Many, as in the Elsie McDaniel case, view public relief as a permanent way of life.

Nobody knows how many less "spectacular" cheaters are getting some of that 3½ million a month, but Elsie McDaniel admittedly can be multiplied many times and in most every city.

And when you press relief authorities for a more careful policing of the situation, they can show you that their limited resources and facilities simply cannot allow individual examination of every claim. To enlarge the staff, intensify the screening would require further expenditure.

The cost of catching and punishing the relief cheater is greater than the sum of what he steals. So either way, as long as we are committed to encouraging the indolent, the taxpayers pay.

Debate Continues Over Possible Probe Of State Board Of Education Finance

By JAMES M'LEAN

BATON ROUGE, April 27 (AP) — Sen Rex McCullough said today he is uncertain whether Rep. J. Marshall Brown's new fight for a separate staff for the State Board of Education is the right approach.

Brown said this week he would ask the May Legislature to appropriate $50,000 for a year's study of State Department of Education financing by the proposed board staff.

Behind that proposal lies a background of explosive political strife.

"I don't know whether Brown's idea would solve the problems," said McCullough. "I don't know whether $50,000 for the research group would be too little or too much, or whether it would answer some of the unanswered questions our committee is studying."

The Lafayette senator heads a legislative group seeking more efficiency in higher education operations. As a long-time supporter of Gov. Earl Long and close friend of Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar, he carries a measure of administration support.

The fiery little representative from New Orleans twice has battered at the political might of state Supt. Shelby M. Jackson, seeking a separate research staff for the state board independent of Jackson's control.

Each time he has been defeated, with Jackson strongly opposing the moves. Jackson has held strong legislative influence.

A majority of the state board has clashed with Jackson over the same issue, claiming it has no way of independently checking fiscal operations in the department.

With education consuming almost half of the taxpayers' dollar, the significance of such conflict becomes evident.

Leon Gary, president of the State Board of Education, commented favorably on Brown's new proposal, saying "as far as the state board is concerned, we feel a lot of good would come out of such a study."

Brown, in announcing his legislative proposal, said "the board of education, which is closer to the education program than members of the Legislature, is itself handicapped by the fact it has no fact finding staff to advise on the education budget and the methods of distributing funds."

McCullough has scheduled committee sessions here next Friday and Saturday with Jackson, state education board members, Louisiana State University board members and president Marvin Bass of the Louisiana School Boards Assn.

The legislative group is preparing recommendations for the next general session of the Legislature in 1958, skipping the May session because it is limited to fiscal matters.

It is sounding out attitudes of education leaders toward a proposal to remove higher education from the control of the state board. The board now supervises both public schools and state colleges. A coordinating council has been recommended to control higher education.

McCullough dean at Southwestern Louisiana Institute when Lt. Gov. Frazar was president, said his committee previously has received proposals similar to Brown's idea of a separate staff for the state board.

Whatever happens, McCullough emphasized, "our committee will be well informed when it finally prepares its educational recommendations."

He refusel to predict the fate of Brown's legislation in the May session.

If there is one thing Gov. Long and Supt. Jackson have in common, it is a dislike for the hard-fighting Brown. The legislator has fought both with equal enthusiasm.

"Brown, in effect, has been battering at one door of the castle with one idea," Sen. McCullough said. "What we ha been trying to do is survey the whole castle before determining what should be done."

The senator said his group plans to pursue its interest in coordinating higher education right up until the 1958 Legislature convenes.

McCullough, Sens. Sylvan Friedman and F. E. Cole, committee members, have just returned from a session of the Southern Regional Education Board in Louisville, Ky.

While neither McCullough nor Brown mentioned it, a comprehensive professional survey was authorized early in the administration of former Gov. Robert Kennon, which probed every corner of Louisiana education and school finances.

The survey, costing more than $100,000, was authorized by the Legislative Council. It was conducted by the division of surveys and field services, George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn., a recognized professional survey group.

That 395-page report now gathers dust in state archives, but it touched, with a professional nonpartisan approach, the very question that lie behind the new efforts to examine education finances.

The Peabody report dealt in part with Louisiana's handling of education funds on a per educable basis, according to number of school-age children and on an equalization basis, which gives a helping hand to parishes unable to meet statewide standards.

For instance, it said the per educable system for distribution of education funds "probably is the most primitive known method of distributing state school funds . . . . The per educable basis of distribution in Louisiana gives no consideration whatsoever to variations in taxpaying ability among the parishes."

On another page: "Louisiana's equalization plan has a number of serious weaknesses . . . too small . . . does not include all essential elements of education costs."

Another comment said the way school bus expenses are handled could encourage local boards "to add unnecessary mileage to the routes and to use small buses where one large bus would be sufficient."

"Also, the survey said the methods used by the State Department of Education to calculate local support required for the equalization program "are objective but not completely equitable."

The report emphasized, "it is common knowledge that some Louisiana parishes assess their property at a higher proportion of its true value than other parishes. Obviously, the parishes which assess their property at a higher proportion of true value are being penalized by receiving less state funds.

"On the other hand, the parishes which assess their property at a lower proportion of true value are being rewarded because they receive proportionately more state funds."

The survey said the state superintendent prepares the equalization formula. The board then approves it.

Millions of dollars are involved in both per educable and equalization distributions.

CONGRESS TO PROBE ATOM

Nuclear Fall-Out Hearings Slated

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The world - ranging argument over whether H-bomb tests should be ended seems sure to be renewed soon before a congressional committee.

Hearings have been called by a Senate-House Atomic Energy subcommittee for May 27-June 7 on the whole problem of fall-out. This is the dropping back to earth of radioactive particles hurled into the atmosphere by nuclear explosions.

Chairman Holifield (D-Calif) said when he announced the hearings that he expected they "would provide a valuable basis for future discussions of proposals for cessation or limitation of our nuclear weapons tests."

Holifield is no stranger to the subject. As chairman of a House Government Operations subcommittee studying civil defense last year he took testimony that helped fan the fall-out controversy into a national political issue.

Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, called for the United States to take the lead in seeking limitations on hydrogen bomb tests—even to the text of halting its own while trying to persuade Soviet Russia to follow suit.

President Eisenhower, saying disarmament must be "in unison," rejected any proposal to tell the Russians. "We are going to disarm, and we hope that you will do so one day."

The issue was revived last week when a special envoy from Japan, which is beteeen Soviet Siberian and the U. S. Pacific testing grounds, called on Secretary of State Dulles and Stevenson.

Dulles told the Japanese spokeman, Dr. Masatoshi Matsushita, it would be impractical for the United States to call off further nuclear tests without a disarmament agreement with Russia. Later Dulles expressed similar views at a news conference, although he said he did not want to close the door completely on the possiblity that a way might be found to halt tests before full agreement was reached on disarmament.

Stevenson renewed his pleas for steps to control the big bomb blasts.

Also during the week, Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the medical missionary who won the 1952 Nobel Peace prize, warned in a message broadcast from Oslo of dangers to the human race from bomb test radioactivity.

Dr. W. F. Libby, scientist ember of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, replied in a letter to Schweitzer that the risk from weapons testing is "extremely small compared with other risks" taken in normal living.

Piano Recital Is Scheduled At Northeast

Spring musical attraction at Northeast State will be underlined Tuesday night by a student of Florence Z. Albritton who will be presented in piano recital by the Fine Arts Department.

Joe Monroe, now a member of the Northeast staff, who has studied under Mrs. Allbritton since 1938, will be heard in concert at 8 p.m. in the faculty lounge of the Administration Building.

Initiating his work with her in a private studio in Monroe, the young pianist transferred his study to the Northeast campus in 1939 when his teacher joined the college faculty. Not old enough to enroll for regular classes at the institution, which then was a junior college, he was mature enough in his thinking, he says, to appreciate his teacher's ability.

From then Monroe continued music lessons under Mrs. Allbritton because of the "highest artistic calibre of teaching" which demonstrates.

His work with her was broken in 1952 when he matriculated at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music where he studied under Madame Karen Dayas. Returning to Northeast State, he completed work for the bachelor's degree, then did graduate work at the Los Angeles Conservatory with Madame Julia bal de Zuniga, eminent pianist.

During his California stay, Monroe played in recitals and concerts throughout the southern part of the state and taught at the Los Angeles Conservatory.

Previously he had been heard in several performances and had received awards for special achievement. Recognition for superior ability included winning highest rating from the Federated Music Clubs and a Shreveport audition to perform with the Shreveport Symphony Orchestra in which he played Liszt's "Hungarian Fantasy."

The transition from the times that he played between acts of Monroe Little Theatre productions at Neville High School, when he was eight or nine years old, and concert time Tuesday night will be reflected in his rendition of numbers by Brahms, Chopin, Bach, Beethoven and Ravel.

Monroe's interpretation calls for a great range in works of composers who portray qualities and moods that are tornadic, harmonic daring, emotional inspiration, lyrical, dramatically exciting, unrestrained gaiety, delightfully shimmering, intimation of laughing waters, grace and courtesy.

State Milk Producers Defy Order

BATON ROUGE, April 27 (AP)—The president of the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation said today U.S. Department of Agriculture refusal to suspend a milk price cut in the New Orleans area milk shed showed "indifference to local conditions."

Milk producers and distributors for the New Orleans area milkshed met here yesterday and agreed to maintain the present $5.90 per hundredweight price for class one milk during the four-month period starting May 1.

Producers contended the reduction would force some dairymen out of business.

The hearing was called under Louisiana law by Agriculture Commissioner Sidney J. McCrory.

Larry L. Lovell said the Farm Bureau today received a telegram from Louisiana Senators Russell Long and Allen Ellender and Rep. James Morrison which said:

"Acting Secretary (True) Morse has advised us that the department does not feel justified in suspending seasonal decrease in milk prices under federal milk order for New Orleans marketing area. Secretary points out that conditions of supply and demand which required the adjustment of prices last year continue to prevail and that ratio of milk receipts to class one sales in the New Orleans area is higher than at any time on record."

In a letter to the Louisiana congressional delegation, Lovell said the "Louisiana Farm Bureau and the producer cooperatives anticipated the indifference of the USDA to the fact that the New Orleans area producers couldn't afford to take such a cut and stay in business.

"In the face of such predictable disregard for the individual farmer, the New Orleans Area Pure Milk Producers Assn. and the Dairy Cooperative of Kentwood requested that . . . McCrory use his authority to call a hearing and set an equitable price. . . .

"This just and peaceful solution between producers and handlers as contrasted to USDA indifference to local conditions again raises the question whether any form of government control is justified where producers and handlers can reach a more equitable settlement without it."

Debate Continues Over Possible Probe Of State Board Of Education Finance

By JAMES M'LEAN

BATON ROUGE, April 27 (AP) — Sen Rex McCullough said today he is uncertain whether Rep. J. Marshall Brown's new fight for a separate staff for the State Board of Education is the right approach.

Brown said this week he would ask the May Legislature to appropriate $50,000 for a year's study of State Department of Education financing by the proposed board staff.

Behind that proposal lies a background of explosive political strife.

"I don't know whether Brown's idea would solve the problems," said McCullough. "I don't know whether $50,000 for the research group would be too little or too much, or whether it would answer some of the unanswered questions our committee is studying."

The Lafayette senator heads a legislative group seeking more efficiency in higher education operations. As a long-time supporter of Gov. Earl Long and close friend of Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar, he carries a measure of administration support.

The fiery little representative from New Orleans twice has battered at the political might of state Supt. Shelby M. Jackson, seeking a separate research staff for the state board independent of Jackson's control.

Each time he has been defeated, with Jackson strongly opposing the moves. Jackson has held strong legislative influence.

A majority of the state board has clashed with Jackson over the same issue, claiming it has no way of independently checking fiscal operations in the department.

With education consuming almost half of the taxpayers' dollar, the significance of such conflict becomes evident.

Leon Gary, president of the State Board of Education, comfented favorably on Brown's new proposal, saying "as far as the state board is concerned, we feel a lot of good would come out of such a study."

Brown, in announcing his legislative proposal, said "the board of education, which is closer to the education program than members of the Legislature, is itself handicapped by the fact it has no fact finding staff to advise on the education budget and the methods of distributing funds."

McCullough has scheduled committee sessions here next Friday and Saturday with Jackson, state education board members, Louisiana State University board members and president Marvin Bass of the Louisiana School Boards Assn.

The legislative group is preparing recommendations for the next general session of the Legislature in 1958, skipping the May session because it is limited to fiscal matters.

It is sounding out attitudes of education leaders toward a proposal to remove higher education from the control of the state board. The board now supervises both public schools and state colleges. A coordinating council has been recommended to control higher education.

McCullough dean at Southwestern Louisiana Institute when Lt. Gov. Frazar was president, said his committee previously has received proposals similar to Brown's idea of a separate staff for the state board.

Whatever happens, McCullough emphasized, "our committee will be well informed when it finally prepares its educational recommendations."

He refused to predict the fate of Brown's legislation in the May session.

If there is one thing Gov. Long and Supt. Jackson have in common, it is a dislike for the hard-fighting Brown. The legislator has fought both with equal enthuasism.

"Brown, in effect, has been battering at one door of the castle with one idea," Sen. McCullough said. "What we ha been trying to do is survey the whole castle before determining what should be done."

The senator said his group plans to pursue its interest in coordinating higher education right up until the 1958 Legislature convenes.

McCullough, Sens. Sylvan Friedman and F. E. Cole, committee members, have just returned from a session of the Southern Regional Education Board in Louisville, Ky.

While neither McCullough nor Brown mentioned it, a comprehensive professional survey was authorized early in the administration of former Gov. Robert Kennon, which probed every corner of Louisiana education and school finances.

The survey, costing more than $100,000, was authorized by the Legislative Council. It was conducted by the division of surveys and field services, George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn., a recognized professional survey group.

That 395-page report now gathers dust in state archives, but it touched, with a professional nonpartisan approach, the very question that lie behind the new efforts to examine education finances.

The Peabody report dealt in part with Louisiana's handling of education funds on a per educable basis, according to number of school-age children and on an equalization basis, which gives a helping hand to parishes unable to meet statewide standards.

For instance, it said the per educable system for distribution of education funds "probably is the most primitive known method of distributing state school funds . . . . The per educable basis of distribution in Louisiana gives no consideration whatsoever to variations in taxpaying ability among the parishes."

On another page: "Louisiana's equalization plan has a number of serious weaknesses . . . too small . . . does not include all essential elements of education costs."

Another comment said the way school bus expenses are handled could encourage local boards "to add unnecessary mileage to the routes and to use small buses where one large bus would be sufficient."

"Also, the survey said the methods used by the State Department of Education to calculate local support required for the equalization program "are objective but not completely equitable."

The report emphasized, "it is common knowledge that some Louisiana parishes assess their property at a higher proportion of its true value than other parishes. Obviously, the parishes which assess their property at a higher proportion of true value are being penalized by receiving less state funds.

"On the other hand, the parishes which assess their property at a lower proportion of true value are being rewarded because they receive proportionately more state funds."

The survey said the state superintendent prepares the equalization formula. The board then approves it.

Millions of dollars are involved in both per educable and equalization distributions.

CONGRESS TO PROBE ATOM

Nuclear Fall-Out Hearings Slated

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The world - ranging argument over whether H-bomb tests should be ended seems sure to be renewed soon before a congressional committee.

Hearings have been called by a Senate-House Atomic Energy subcommittee for May 27-June 7 on the whole problem of fall-out. This is the dropping back to earth of radioactive particles hurled into the atmosphere by nuclear explosions.

Chairman Holifield (D-Calif) said when he announced the hearings that he expected they "would provide a valuable basis for future discussions of proposals for cessation or limitation of our nuclear weapons tests."

Holifield is no stranger to the subject. As chairman of a House Government Operations subcommittee studying civil defense last year he took testimony that helped fan the fall-out controversy into a national political issue.

Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, called for the United States to take the lead in seeking limitations on hydrogen bomb tests—even to the text of halting its own while trying to persuade Soviet Russia to follow suit.

President Eisenhower, saying disarmament must be "in unison," rejected any proposal to tell the Russians. "We are going to disarm, and we hope that you will do so one day."

The issue was revived last week when a special envoy from Japan, which is beteeen Soviet Siberian and the U. S. Pacific testing grounds, called on Secretary of State Dulles and Stevenson.

Dulles told the Japanese spokeman, Dr. Masatoshi Matsushita, it would be impractical for the United States to call off further nuclear tests without a disarmament agreement with Russia. Later Dulles expressed similar views at a news conference, although he said he did not want to close the door completely on the possiblity that a way might be found to halt tests before full agreement was reached on disarmament.

Stevenson renewed his pleas for steps to control the big bomb blasts.

Also during the week, Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the medical missionary who won the 1952 Nobel Peace prize, warned in a message broadcast from Oslo of dangers to the human race from bomb test radioactivity.

Dr. W. F. Libby, scientist ember of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, replied in a letter to Schweitzer that the risk from weapons testing is "extremely small compared with other risks" taken in normal living.

Piano Recital Is Scheduled At Northeast

Spring musical attraction at Northeast State will be underlined Tuesday night by a student of Florence Z. Albritton who will be presented in piano recital by the Fine Arts Department.

Joe Monroe, now a member of the Northeast staff, who has studied under Mrs. Allbritton since 1938, will be heard in concert at 8 p.m. in the faculty lounge of the Administration Building.

Famed Marshall Opposes Release Of Life Termers

MCALLEN, Tex., April 27 (UP) —An 85-year-old former U.S. marshal who helped capture some of the nation's most notorious outlaws said today that he was upset because so many convicts were released from prison after they were put there for life.

W. C. (Rube) Geers of McAllen, who was federal marshal in Oklahoma during the wild era of the 1930's when Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd and George (Machine Gun) Kelly were running rampant, is now retired and lives quietly on his citrus farm in the Rio Grande Valley. But he said several of the men he delivered to prison for life sentences are free.

"Some of these men may be able to live normal lives after spending 20 or 30 years in prison," Geers said. "But they should be given all sorts of tests before they're released. Psychiatrists and sociologists ought to give them a good going-over to see if they've really changed their ways."

Two Life-Termers

Geers said he and his wife delivered two life-timers to prison who should be ready for release now after paying their debts to society. He named the pair as Mrs. Kathryn Kelly, "Machine Gun" Kelly's wife, and her mother, Mrs. R. G. Shannon of Paradise, Tex.

Mrs. Kelly and her mother are serving life sentences at the federal women's reformatory at Alderson, W. Va., for their part in the 1933 kidnaping of Oklahoma City oil millionaire Charles F. Urschel. Kelly, R. G. "Boss" Shannon, Albert Bates and Harvey Bailey all received life sentences for the kidnaping. Geers delivered all of them to federal prisons.

"I only had one prisoner ever to escape from me," Geers said, "and that was a little car thief in Oklahoma City. I saw him scampering out the window, and I pointed a gun at him and told him to stop.

"He just kept on going. I didn't shoot him, because I knew I'd catch him sooner or later. Sure enough, I did."

Never Killed A Man

Geers, whose blue eyes still twinkle beneath his silver hair, said he isn't as proud of his record about escapees as he is about one other thing.

"I never had to kill a man," he said. "This thought makes me happier than any other. It was pretty hard to keep from shooting back in those days when outlaws got out of hand."

Geers said he often worries about the death of former McAlester, Okla., Police Chief Otto Reed, who was one of the five victims of the "union station massacre" at Kansas City in 1933.

Geers had received a phone call tip in Oklahoma City that desperado Frank "Jelly" Nash could be captured in Hot Springs, Ark. However, Geers was scheduled to take a train load of prisoners to Leavenworth, so he called Reed to go after Nash. Reed was killed in the gunplay that took place outside Kansas City's Union Station when other members of the underworld tried to rescue Nash.

Award Given Jackson Man Posthumously

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 27 (AP)—The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission said yesterday it presented a posthumous award to Claude Cockrell, 36-year-old Jackson, Miss., man who died last year in a vain attempt to rescue a drowning teen-ager.

The commission said it presented the bronze award to Cockrell's widow.

Cockrell's citation said he was picnicking at Rose's Bluff on the Pearl River a few miles north of Jackson last May 20 when he spotted Angie Eloise Hollingsworth, 17, floundering in the middle of a wide bend in the river.

The girl and some companions had been wading from a sandbar and she was caught in the swift current.

Both Cockrell and the girl's father, S. B. Hollingsworth, 38, dived in fully clothes to rescue the girl.

En route, Hollingsworth drowned. Cockrell reached the girl and was towing her ashor but the current proved too strong and both drowned.

Miss Hollingsworth was a graduating senior and valedicorian of her class at Forest Hill High School. She ws to have been graduated May 22, two days after she drowned.

An outstanding basketball and track athlete, she was a member of the 1956 all-state basketball teaf.

Beaters used for either eggs or cake batter wash more easily if they first are rinsed in cold water.

Threat To Panama Canal Seen By Overton Brooks

WASHINGTON, April 27 (Special)—Control of the Panama Canal Zone will be lost by the United States "unless we learn the lessons of Suez," Rep. Overton Brooks of Shreveport, ranking Democrat on the House Armed Services committee warned yesterday.

"We will have trouble in our own back yard if we fail to exercise the most skillful diplomacy," said the Louisianan in a statement issued through the national rivers and harbors congress, of which he is president.

Brooks added, "the takeover of the Canal Zone by the Republic of Panama will be the normal sequence of events if we commit the same mistakes we made in the Suez crisis."

He termed recent reports that Panamanian officials are claiming sovereignty over the Canal Zone on a partnership basis "deeply disturbing." He pointed out that the United States now exercises exclusive sovereignty over the 10-mile strip under a 1903 treaty with Panama.

Brooks said the Panama question will be brought up at the 44th convention of the national rivers and harbors congress here May 16-18.

The congress, at its last convention, recommended conversion of the present lock canal to a sea-level waterway to avert a prolonged closure resulting from nuclear air attack or sabotage.

The Suez crisis has now projected the Panama Canal problem beyond the engineering level where cost and feasibility are the main considerations, into the real of diplomacy where decisions involving our survival as a nation must be faced," Brooks asserted.

Other matters to be discussed at the forthcoming convention of the rivers and harbors congress by widely known officials and experts include all aspects of the nation's water problem — flood control, harbor improvement.

South Plains and Pecos Valley. Severe thunderstorms with hail and locally damaging winds were expected tonight in the Panhandle, South Plains and Pecos Valley regoins of Texas from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m., est, the U. S. Weather Bureau said.

Meanwhile, the Sabine River that divides Texas and Louisiana flooded parts of Lakewater, La., with eight feet of water and 30 families north of Shreveport were evacuated. Several residential area in north Shr veport were partially flooded by heavy rains in that area.

The Sabine was expected to climb another four or five feet early tonight.

Funnel Cloud Sighted

The bureau said at 5:15 p.m. that another funnel cloud was sighted 30 miles west southwest of Tenkiller, Okla., and was moving in a northeasterly direction towards Stillwell, Okla. it was not touching grou d, the bureau said.

Brig. Gen. L. E. Seeman, southwestern division engineer, Army Corps of Engineers, Dallas, gave the estimate of damage in the Trinity Basin.

Seeman also said damage caused by the flooding Brazos River, at or near flood stage for more than a week, was estimated at nine million dollars.

Revise Estimates

Both the estimates were based on the premise that the rains had ended at 8 a.m. They will have to be revised if more cloudbursts occur, Seeman said.

The general said that four reservoirs and two floodways in the urban Dallas-Fort Worth area prevented one of the greatest floods of all time for those areas.

The engineer estimated that damage on the Trinity alone would have run 71 and a half millions dollars if the dams and floodways had not been built to help control th flooding river and its tributaries.

Saved by Dams

The estimated damage on the Brazos would have been about 22 million dollars had it not been for control dams on its upper reaches, the engineer said.

A three-inch rain at Encinal, in South Texas, 38 miles from Mexico, washed out the track before and behind a Missouri Pacific passenger train with 45 passengers aboard. It was trapped between Encinal and Botines, which is 16 miles north of Laredo, Tex., and the border.

The rain also washed out roads making it impossible for the passengers to get out immediately by automobile or bus. They were bound from Laredo to San Antonio.

A nine-day siege of tornadoes, thunderstorms and flood went on without interruption in Texas. A tornado demolished a barn and ripped up half a mile of power line near Robstown, on the Gulf Coast.

Herschel Seay, 43, was washed from the road between Big Lake and Ozona in West Texas in his automobile and drowned. He became the 11th victim of the weather in Texas in nine days.

Thunderstorms and rains continued over south central and East Texas, and other thunderstorms were developing east of the Pecos in West Texas and moving toward the plains. Weather forecasters said the thunderstorms will spread farther eastward tonight and Sunday.

Dallas Situation Improved

Withal, the situation in Dallas, where the worst flood was, was improved. The Trinity River crested at 40 feet — itinstead of 44 as expected — saving additional families from being flooded out.

Twenty - five hundred persons, most of them Negroes from an area called the Roosevelt Addition, in southeast Dallas, out of the protection of the Trinity's levees, were driven from their homes in Dallas and Dallas county.

The Red Cross put the Negroes up in dormitories where cattlemen stay at the state fair grounds during stock shows. The white persons were quartered in vacant apartments in a public housing project.

Police, some in boats, patrolled flooded areas heavily to prevent looting. While most of the police force was tied up Friday night getting flood suffers out of their homes, three bandits robbed two chain groceries and a loan company of $11,856.

Rivers at Peaks

Rivers in Central Texas were raised to new flood levels by rains totaling up to eight inches in a few hours. The State Highway Department reported a total of 45 roads cut: many of them trunk highways.

The new floods were on the North Bosque River, the Colorado and, far to the southeast, the Trinity, near where it flows into the Gulf of Mexico.

New rains were also expected to raise the Brazos River 11 feet to a crest of 48 feet Sunday at Valley Junction.

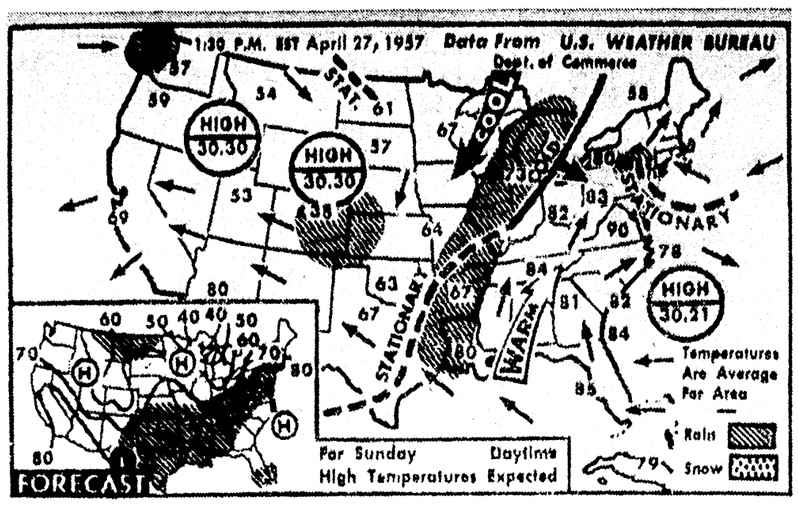
Two to five-inch rains caused a sharp rise on the Colorado River below Austin.

Families Flee Homes

At Liberty, in deep southeast Texas the Trinity was over a six-mile-wide stretch of bottomland and rising toward a crest of 42 feet This crest was one that passed Dallas far upriver earlier in the week.

Hamilton, Tex., reported floods up to six feet deep from eight-inch rains Friday night. Sixty families fled their homes and the flood was so strong it washed 10 automobiles from a used car lot.

A high wind, perhaps a tornado, ripped away part of a lumber mill at Hamilton Friday night. Townspeople couldn't tell in the downpour whether it was a funnel.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST

Rain is expected today over southern New England; eastern New York; parts of middle Atlantic states; the Ohio, Tennessee and lower Mississippi Valleys; southern Plains and Florida; North Dakota and Montana. Fair weather is expected elsewhere. It will be cooler in most of Lakes area, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, and warmer in northwest Pacific, northern and central Rockies and central Plains. Delay Asked In Decision On Routing ita river approximatly five blocks south of DeSiard street. City officials feel this route will hinder the growth of the city commercial area and deflate property values for the area.

However, Passman's telegram to the Monroe mayor indicated that the federal government did not have the specific route in mind. Passman told Mayor Howard that the federal government usually follows the route as determined by the state department of highways. He referred Howard to J. S. Logan, district engineer in Louisiana, for more information. Mayor Howard said yesterday morning he had been told the federal government determined the route, and cited that as the basis for his telegrams to Washington.

Text of Telegram

The complete text of Mayor Howard's telegram to the federal highway administrator, Bertram Tallamy, was:

"I have just read with a great deal of interest an account of South Nyack, New York, problems concerning road building projects. The citizens of Monroe, Louisiana, are now faced with a similar situation since a section of U. S. Highway 80, which passes through Monroe, Louisiana, is apparently planned to come through and over a section of our city. The proposed plan, if carried to completion, could cause great harm to the growth and development of our city. The City Council of Monroe is moving toward establishing a city planning commission. This the responsibility of formulating commission will be charged with master street plans, location of parks, schools, public buildings, etc., and we request that the location and approval of U.S. 80 through our city be held in abeyance until our planning commission and traffic engineers have been able to formulate a master street plan and to determine the possible effect that this proposed elevated structure within five blocks of the downtown area would have on traffic, parking, commerce, etc. Monroe is a city of approximately 50,000 people serving a trade area of more than 200,000. Our people are aware of the need for super highway and support the program in general. It is my sincere hope that the policy with regards to the national highway program will be one of consideration of local problems and the wishes of local citizens and officials. To this end, I respectfully request your reply as early as possible as to the local hearings, considerations of local problems created by this particular location, and further request the withholding of project approval until our surveys are complete."

Immediately following that, the Mayor sent the following communications to the two senators and two representatives:

Other Communications

"The building of U. S. 80 through and over the City of Monroe located within five blocks of downtown Monroe could be most detrimental to the growth and development of Monroe. City Council is in process of establishing city only a formality. Rep. Passman the following day wired the following to Mayor Howard:

"Re telegram, had conference with officials of Bureau of Public Roads who advise federal aid funds have been made available only for preliminary work on proposed routing U.S. 80, namely preparation of plans and surveys. Was further informed Washington has no knowledge of request for federal aid funds participation for construction of project, which will cost approximately $30 million, but is felt such request will be forthcoming. Man Says He Saw Slayings Of Pair

Hotard's car in the deserted murder scene.

Identified Killer

In an interview with the Item, Lejeune identified the murderer, but didn't know how to spell his name.

Lejeune said the killer was a former boyfriend of Mrs. Moate.

Lejeune said the killer, his friend, picked him up in the New Orleans French market and invited him to have a drink. They ended up at Laplace, 28 miles west of New Orleans.

"He pulls into a parking lot by a restaurant," Lejeune said. "He kept looking back, as if he was looking for somebody. It was real late—about daylight.

"All of a sudden he jumps and says, that's her. I look around and see this woman and man getting into a blue car. They drive off up the Hammond highway."

Lejeune said they followed the pair down deserted Frenier road, until Hotard parked.

Used Shotgun

"This man I was with shut his door real easy like and goes up the road with a shotgun he had been carrying in the car," Lejeune said. "I watched him. He went right up to the car window. He raised that gun and boom I hear this big noise.

"Then there's a scream and this woman comes running out of the car. He runs around and grabs her and he dragged her back to the car where I was. All the while she's crying, and beginning him not to kill her. He throws her in the back of the car. So I see that all she has on is a slip and it's torn."

Lejeune said he told his companion to let her go, but the man threatened him.

"Then he walks off into the swamp, dragging the woman with one hand and holding the shotgun in the other." Lejeune said. "They went so far back I couldn't see them through the woods.

"I waited for a long time," he said. "And then I heard a shot. Then there was another shot and another. Then he comes walking back to the car.

"He threw the shotgun in the back and he gets a shovel. Then he points his finger at me and says you wait for me here and don't make a sound," he said.

Lejeune said a Negro boy came by at about that time, but did not see the two men as they crouched in the car.

"Straight to New Orleans we went and he drove me right to my door," he said. "But before he let me out, he grabbed me by the arm and told me you keep quiet about what you saw if you ever tell anybody about what happened tonight, I'll kill you, too."

Lejeune said he was frightened and moved to Donaldsonville and later to Jackson, La. He said his conscience hurt him so badly he finally went to the sheriff with his story.

Man Struck By Automobile Here

A dash to get out of the rain resulted in hospitalization for a West Monroe man at 9:30 o'clock last night.

Edward A. Hodge, 42, of 1210 Hinkle Drive was struck in the parking lot of the Rendezvous Restaurant on Louisville avenue, when he ran from between cars into the path of Kathleen McCullough of 2005 Francis place, Monroe, who was just driving her car into the restaurant's lot.

Hodge suffered cuts on the head and a possible fracture of the shoulder. He was rushed to St. Francis hospital where emergency treatment was given and X-ray's taken to determine the amount of his injuries.

Hodge, who is division sales manager for La. Power and Light Co., had let his wife and some friends out of the car at the front door of the restaurant, then parked his car and tried to get in from the rain as quickly as possible.

Four other persons were riding in Miss McCullough's car, but the only injury was to Hodge. Police officers C. D. Dulaney and Joseph Battaglie investigated.

of threatening the West German Federal Republic.

Atom Warheads

The note said Russia wanted only peaceful coexistence and friendly cooperation with all countries on the basis of mutual respect for sovereignty and non-interference in each other's internal affairs.

It said this principle applies also to West Germany, but that the Federal Republic has been taking military steps which present a threat to the security of the European peoples.

West German officials have stated that U.S. Army forces in the country are armed with atomic warheads, although the United States never has confirmed this officially.

Replies Prepared

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has stated that his country needs atomic weapons. Presumably the United States would supply them.

Most NATO countries have prepared replies to Russia's protest against their plans for increased cooperation and sent them to their embassies in Moscow for delivery.

The nature of the replies was not announced immediately.

Tht Russian protest was directed against current European plans to pool atomic and commercial resources. The Kremlin said they should aim instead at the formation of an economic union taking in both eastern and western Europe.

South Plains and Pecos Valley. Severe thunderstorms with hail and locally damaging winds were expected tonight in the Panhandle, South Plains and Pecos Valley regoins of Texas from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m., est, the U. S. Weather Bureau said.

Meanwhile, the Sabine River that divides Texas and Louisiana flooded parts of Lakewater, La., with eight feet of water and 30 families north of Shreveport were evacuated. Several residential area in north Shreveport were partially flooded by heavy rains in that area.

The Sabine was expected to climb another four or five feet early tonight.

Funnel Cloud Sighted

The bureau said at 5:15 p.m. that another funnel cloud was sighted 30 miles west southwest of Tenkiller, Okla., and was moving in a northeasterly direction towards Stillwell, Okla. It was not touching ground, the bureau said.

Brig. Gen. L. E. Seeman, southwestern division engineer, Army Corps of Engineers, Dallas, gave the estimate of damage in the Trinity Basin.

Seeman also said damage caused by the flooding Brazos River, at or near flood stage for more than a week, was estimated at nine million dollars.

Revise Estimates

Both the estimates were based on the premise that the rains had ended at 8 a.m. They will have to be revised if more cloudbursts occur, Seeman said.

The general said that four reservoirs and two floodways in the urban Dallas-Fort Worth area prevented one of the greatest floods of all time for those areas.

The engineer estimated that damage on the Trinity alone would have run 71 and a half millions dollars if the dams and floodways had not been built to help control th flooding river and its tributaries.

Saved by Dams

The estimated damage on the Brazos would have been about 22 million dollars had it not been for control dams on its upper reaches, the engineer said.

A three-inch rain at Encinal, in South Texas, 38 miles from Mexico, washed out the track before and behind a Missouri Pacific passenger train with 45 passengers aboard. It was trapped between Encinal and Botines, which is 18 miles north of Laredo, Tex., and the border.

The rain also washed out roads, making it impossible for the passengers to get out immediately by automobile or bus. They were bound from Laredo to San Antonio.

A nine-day siege of tornadoes, thunderstorms and flood went on without interruption in Texas. A tornado demolished a barn and ripped up half a mile of power line near Robstown, on the Gulf Coast.

Herschel Seay, 43, was washed from the road between Big Lake and Ozona in West Texas in his automobile and drowned. He became the 11th victim of the weather in Texas in nine days.

Thunderstorms and rains continued over south central and East Texas, and other thunderstorms were developing east of the Pecos in West Texas and moving toward the plains. Weather forecasters said the thunderstorms will spread farther eastward tonight and Sunday.

Dallas Situation Improved

Withal, the situation in Dallas, where the worst flood was, was improved. The Trinity River crested at 40 feet — iunstead of 44 as expected — saving additional families from being flooded out.

Twenty - five hundred persons, most of them Negroes from an area called the Roosevelt Addition, in southeast Dallas, out of the protection of the Trinity's levees, were driven from their homes in Dallas and Dallas county.

The Red Cross put the Negroes up in dormitories where cattlemen stay at the state fair grounds during stock shows. The white persons were quartered in vacant apartments in a public housing project.

Police, some in boats, patrolled flooded areas heavily to prevent looting. While most of the police force was tied up Friday night getting flood suffers out of their homes, three bandits robbed two chain groceries and a loan company of $11,856.

Rivers at Peaks

Rivers in Central Texas were raised to new flood levels by rains totaling up to eight inches in a few hours. The State Highway Department reported a total of 45 roads cut; many of them trunk highways.

The new floods were on the North Bosque River, the Colorado and, far to the southeast, the Trinity, near where it flows into the Gulf of Mexico.

New rains were also expected to raise the Brazos River 11 feet to a crest of 48 feet Sunday at Valley Junction.

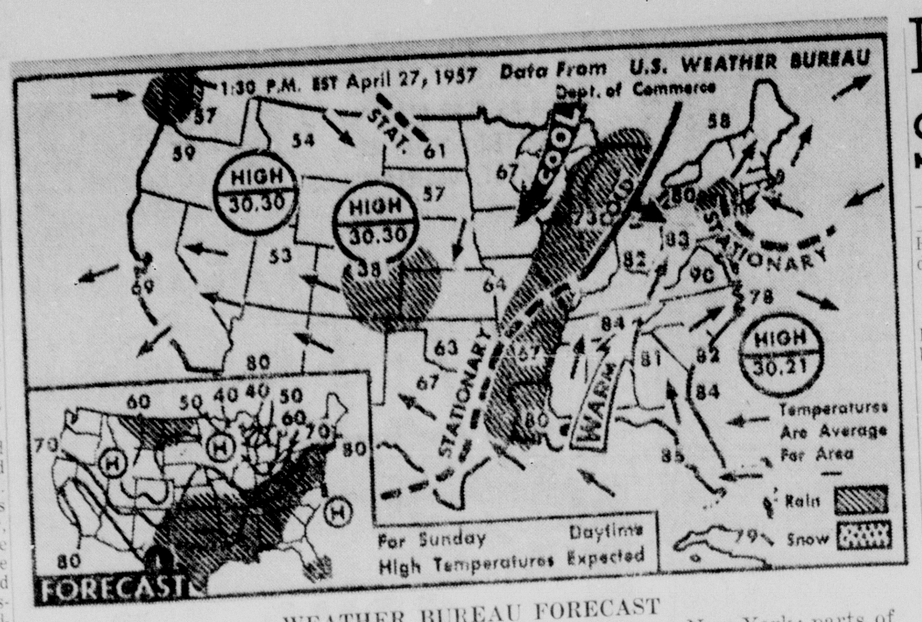
Two to five-inch rains caused a sharp rise on the Colorado River below Austin.

Families Flee Homes

At Liberty, in deep southeast Texas the Trinity was over a six-mile-wide stretch of bottomland and rising toward a crest of 42 feet This crest was one that passed Dallas far upriver earlier in the week.

Hamilton, Tex., reported floods up to six feet deep from eight-inch rains Friday night. Sixty families fled their homes and the flood was so strong it washed 10 automobiles from a used car lot.

A high wind, perhaps a tornado, ripped away part of a lumber mill at Hamilton Friday night. Townspeople couldn't tell in the downpour whether it was a funnel.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST

Rain is expected today over southern New England; eastern New York; parts of middle Atlantic states; the Ohio, Tennessee and lower Mississippi Valleys; southern Plains and Florida; North Dakota and Montana. Fair weather is expected elsewhere. It will be cooler in most of Lakes area, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, and warmer in northwest Pacific, northern and central Rockies and central Plains. ita river approximattly five blocks south of DeSiard street. City officials feel this route will hinder the growth of the city commercial area and deflate property values for the area.

However, Passman's telegram to the Monroe mayor indicated that the federal government did not have the specific route in mind. Passman told Mayor Howard that the federal government usually follows the route as determined by the state department of highways. He referred Howard to J. S. Mayor Howard said yesterday morning he had been told the federal government determined the route, and cited that as the basis for his telegrams to Washington.

The complete text of Mayor Howard's telegram to the federal highway administrator, Bertram Tallamy, was:

"I have just read with a great deal of interest an account of South Nyack, New York, problems concerning road building projects. There's a certain something about the new Chevrolet that puts it head and shoulders above the other cars in its field. Actually it's a lot of "somethings." It's a look of substance. It's Chevy's rock-solid feel on the road. It's the fine finishing touch that Chevrolet gives even the smallest details.

For one thing, the others don't have Body by Fisher. For another, they can't hold a candle to Chevy when it comes to performance. Remember, only a couple of months ago Chevrolet won the Pure Oil Performance Trophy as "best performing U. S. automobile." Automotive experts decided that. And you'll agree with them once you drive a new Chevy. You can't help but like the sweet, smooth and sassy way Chevy takes to the road! Stop by your Chevrolet dealer's and find out firsthand.

Heroic Effort Is Given Recognition

Miss Gloria Nubles, 20, personable daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Nubles, Old Sterlington road, was awarded a handsome plaque Saturday morning by the Exchange Club of Monroe for saving the life of her brother Bill Nubles, 16, when he almost drowned in the bayou near the family's home last February 18.

The handsome plaque commended her for her "bravery, corageous and highly meritorious" effort to save her brother when he became entangled in a trot line which he had stretched from a row boat. It had been weighted down by a heavy metal bar, and he sought to move it when a trouser leg caught in the line and pulled him beneath the water.

Fighting for life, he managed to cry out for help and his mother and sister heard his appeal from their kitchen window not far from the scene.

Gloria, clad in blue jeans and shirt plunged into the water and started to pull her brother to safety. After several minutes, a sharp pull caused a break in the sinker line and she quickly pulled her brother to shore.

An instant later a passing colored man appeared and gave artificial respiration. An ambulance was summoned and the lad was rushed to St. Francis Hospital.

A week later he was discharged and was able to return to his studies at Ouachita Parish High School.

The story of this girl's pluck, as told in the local papers, attracted attention of the Monroe Exchange Club which voted to donate a plaque to the young woman.

Gloria is a 1955 graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, where she excelled in music and on many occasions has appeared with groups from that school.

Following her graduation, she went with Mel Spain and his band for more than two years, but at present is employed by a firm in Baton Rouge.

LIFE SAVER RECEIVES AWARD

President Frank Baylor, of the Monroe Exchange club, is shown presenting a plaque to Miss Gloria Nubles for saving her brother from drowning in Bayou DeSiard several weeks ago. The plaque reads as follows: "To Gloria Nubles For Courageous And Meritorious Bravery, February 18, 1957, by Monroe Exchange Club".

BIGAMY CASE

Wife-Count Uncertain, Police Say

CHICAGO, April 27 (UP)—Authorities today were stumped by numbers — the wives of Walter (Yoo Hoo) Yemm.

Just how many wives Yemm, an assistant purchasing agent for a machine company, may have or have had poses a problem for law officials who booked him on charges of bigamy.

A recount indicated Yemm had at least 12 wives.

"I thought there were only nine, but I just happened to remember three more," he said.

Patrick Egan, assistant state's attorney, said it would take a "lot of investigation" to determine how many wives Yemm had.

13 Unlucky Number

"We can't figure out which of all these women was his legal wife," Egan said. "And we've got to know that if we're going to prosecute him for bigamy."

Yemm was caught when he attempted to take another wife—No. 13. His new bride-to-be asked police to check on her future husband.

Detectives were astounded as they kept finding wife after wife of Yemm's.

He first admitted six un-divorced wives, then increased it to seven in revealing their names. Still later, Yemm remember a few others, boosting the total to 12.

Like Presents

"Another one, Corrine I think, called up one day and said she was getting a divorce," he said. "Do you suppose that counts?"

Beside Beverly Simms, 31, a typist, and the former Wilma Pyzik, 48, a clerk worker, both of Chicago, Yemm admitted to being married to women named Edith, Betty, Stella, Corrine, Gladys, and two named Mary.

Yemm also recalled one of his wives was named Lucille and that they were married in Shreveport, La. He couldn't remember her maiden name and was hazy whether the wedding date was between 1942 and 1944 or 1945 or 1946.

Detective Amos Mitchell said Yemm preferred church weddings because he "liked to collect the presents."

WASTE CHARGED

Funds For School Buses Threatened

HOUMA, La. —UP—Leon Gary, president of the Louisiana board of education, declared Saturday the board was considering withholding distribution of some $13 million in public school transportation funds if superintendents did not act immediately to curb waste.

Gary said the wide variance in costs of transporting school children in rural and urban centers "could not be reconciled."

Most of the expense is borne by the department of education, he said, and millions of dollars is paid out annually without checking claims on the individual parishes.

"The most objectional feature," he commented, "is that no check is made of parish transportation costs before the money is distributed."

He pointed out that one parish of 8,000 students requested and received some $480,000 for school transportation, while another parish with the same number of children riders needed only $270,000.

Gary said a committee of school superintendents, chairmaned by Supt. Morelle Emmons of Lincoln parish, was appointed three years ago to investigate distribution of school bus funds.

"Each year the committee reported they just hadn't had time to work on the assignment," Gary said.

State Rep. J. Marshall Brown of New Orleans said last week he would prepare legislation requesting a $50,000 appropriation for a survey of state department of education spending.

A former president of the state board of education, Joseph Davies, who protested the education department's spending methods in 1955 said:

"The pattern continues the same. The cost of transportation is too high and there are a lot of inequities. It cannot be explained why one parish has such a high cost and another parish such a low ont. There should be little difference in the per student cost with a fair distribution of the money."

St. Bernard parish school Supt. J. F. Gauthier declared that Shelby Jackson had "misinformed the public." He stated the method of distributing funds rewards those who do not conform to good educational practices.

Another New Orleans member of the state board of education, Nash C. Roberts, pointed out earlier this month, that teachers could be paid higher salaries with existing revenues if the department of education was not in politics.

In its 1954-55 annual report to the state department of education, a delayed published report revealed the variances in transportation costs in the parishes.

The report showed that the cost for annually transporting each Negro child ranged from $165.72 in Vermillion parish to $15.75 in the city of Monroe.

White children transported to schools by bus ranged from $102.98 in East Carroll parish to $19.01 in Jefferson.

Other low-cost per pupil areas included the cities of Bogalusa and Monroe, Lafourche, and St. Bernard parishes.

Parishes in the top price categories also included DeSoto, Union, Caldwell and St. Helena.

Brilliant Young Scientist May Face Unjust Trial

You can't legislate morals. For thousands of years we have piled laws on top of laws, trying to enforce the ten simple rules that Moses brought down from the mountain, and the result . . .

More lawbreakers.

Nor can we decide what is right and wrong by a show of hands. There was a "majority" in favor of the crucifixion of Christ.

In today's tangled jungle of conflicting interests, the Communist is able to use our uncertainty to his advantage.

When Red spies are up for trial, the Reds can solicit our moral sympathy.

While they persist in their immoral practice.

We have become preoccupied with legal technicalities to where the average American too often thinks in terms of what is "permissible" instead of what is "right or wrong."

In Huntsville, Ala., a brilliant young scientist, with 23 years of distinguished service as a career soldier, is going to be court-martialed next month.

The ugly - sounding charge says he "divulged secret information to unauthorized persons."

That is the same thing we say about such confessed spies as the Sobles. We legally categorize him . . . with them.

Yet all evidence indicates he was trying to help our country, not hurt it.

What Col. John Nickerson, Jr., did was to run out of patience with government red tape, and try to break through.

Correctly or not, he was convinced that we should not turn over long - range army missiles to the air force. He thought the competition between the services was advantageous, desirable. He wanted to save the rocket program at Redstone Arsenal because he considered it irreplaceably important to our national security.

Yet because he protested "outside of channels," we are required by law to charge Colonel Nickerson with the same crime under which we convict atomic spies. Because "technically" he did circulate documents to nonauthorized persons.

You and I can explain this judicial injustice to ourselves . . . but how are John and his wife going to explain it to their four children, ages 2 through 14.

How does a man say, "Son, I'm going to be court - martialed and they're going to say I gave away government secrets, though I didn't really. And they may take away my uniform and end my career and they may put me in prison. But I want you always to remember to be loyal to the government that does this thing to your daddy."

When you get down to trying to put these things in a child's language, you realize how terribly distorted our moral perspective has become . . .

If John Nickerson must go to prison . . . while Harry Bridges goes free.

Church School Roundup Is Set

The annual "roundup" at St. Christopher's School, operated by Grace Episcopal Church, Monroe, will be held Thursday, May 2, between the hours of 3:30 and 5:00 p.m. in the Parish House of the Church on Glenmar Avenue between North 4th and North 5th Streets, according to the announcement of the board.

All parents interested in enrolling their children in school for the 1957-1958 session are urged to attend at that time.

The lead pencil industry complies with many unusual requests from manufacturers. Not long ago, it created a special pencil for writing on kosher meats.

Noted News Reporter At Capital Dies

WASHINGTON, April 27 (UP)—Duke Shoop, chief of the Kansas City Star's Washington bureau and a friend of three presidents, died here early today of an abdominal malady. He was 53 Friday.

He died at 3:45 a.m. EST in Garfield Hospital where he had been in a critical condition for about a month. He returned home briefly a few days after he first entered the hospital March 27. But he was returned to the hospital April 5 suffering from hemorrhages.

In addition to heading the Star's staff here, Shoop was a member of the newspaper's board of directors. He also was a member of the National Press Club and the Gridiron Club. He was Gridiron Club president in 153.

Newspaper Family

Born in a weekly newspaper family, Shoop spent his entire journalistic career with the Star. He became a reporter on the newspaper after leaving the University of Missouri in 1929.

He served in the Star's state capital bureau at Jefferson City, Mo., here, and as a World War II correspondent with American armies in Britain, France and North Africa. He had one close call when German troops ambushed American units he was covering.

Shoop was assigned to the Washington bureau for the second time in 1933. He became bureau chief in 1937 and a member of the Star company's board in 1952.

A large, friendly, tireless reporter, Shoop reveled in covering national politics. He enjoyed first-name relationships with the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, President Truman, President and Mrs. Eisenhower, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and many other high government officials.

At Augusta, Ga., President and Mrs. Eisenhower expressed deep regret at Shoop's death. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said he and his father, James A. Hagerty, retired New York Times political writer, also will "miss him very much."

GLOUCESTER, England, April 27 (UP)—British paratrooper Malcolm Davis missed the target on his 35th jump — and landed in the middle of a nudist camp in West Germany. They locked him in a hut for an hour until an officer came to get him.

War On Disease Is Agency Role

Health Unit Tackles Many Assignments

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

Whether it's giving inoculations against polio and diphtheria, inspecting restaurants and dairies for sanitation and up-to-standard operation, or advising expectant mothers at a medical maternity clinic, the Ouachita Parish Health Unit is engaged in its main phase of work: prevention of disease.

Established in 1921, the Health Unit is located in the Old Postoffice Building at the corner of St. John and Grammont streets in downtown Monroe. A staff of 30 carries on the work of the unit, with Dr. W. Carroll Summer as director.

SERVES PARISH

The Health Unit serves the entire parish, which includes 642 square miles. Also located in the same building on the third floor is the Regional Laboratory, a separate service for the 14 parishes of the Fifth Congressional District, and the Regional Office, which takes care of the 28 parishes in the northern half of the state.

Several staff members work in the clinic on the main floor. Each Tuesday and Wednesday from 8-11 a.m., the medical maternity clinic is held, to aid and advise the expectant mothers and help prevent any complications. They receive physical examinations blood tests, and advice on proper diet.

For premature infants, a portable incubator is available for any person who has need of it.

Before the babies arrive, public health nurses instruct the expectant mothers in the clinic on care of babies and preparing a layette.

Well - known by now is the immunization work of the clinic. Right now, between 200-300 youngsters are receiving anti-polio vaccinations daily. Besides this, shots are given to protect individuals against tetanus, typhoid, smallpox, whoping cough and diphtheria.

Each inoculation given to an individual is recorded in the clinic's files, and more than 40,000 cards, in addition to the records of polio vaccinations, are on file.

PREVENTIVE WORK

Also in the preventative work of this department is a venereal disease clinic on Thursdays. Outside the clinic, in the first - floor hallway, is a wealth of literature on almost every health subject, left there free for all interested takers.

The chest x-ray unit is also located on the main floor, and a small - size x-ray is taken of anyone who wants a check on the condition of his lungs. For cases of suspected tuberculosis, a larger "inner picture" is taken, by Mrs. Genie Smith, x-ray technician.

The regional laboratory determines if the disease actually exists in an individual, and if this is so, treatment by physicians and cruative drugs are ready at the clinic for the patient.

Physicians at the clinic include Dr. William E. Kramer, Dr. James W. Schonlau, and Dr. Irving J. Wolff.

NURSING DEPARTMENT

In the nursing department, Miss Hazel Owen is supervisor, and six public health nurses assist in the clinic, make maternity and tuberecular visits to homes, and call on households for other medical reasons.

Each day in Ouachita parish, several infants are born, many persons die. In each case, a record must be made at the Vital Statistics section of the Health Unit.

On an average, 20 births are filed here monthly, and the office issues verification of birth registrations, which are accepted by the armed forces, for drivers' licenses, as proof of age for playing in junior league baseball, and for many other situations.

You can't get out of her without a permit from the Vital Statistics department — undertakers must secure burial - transit permits before a body is buried. Death certificates are filed with the unit, and come in useful for the many requests received from all over the United States for proof of individual's deaths here in the parish.

Other Offices

On the second floor of the building are administrative officers, and the offices of the sanitarians. Mr. Otha T. Trapp is chief sanitarian, with a staff of five other men. Their main job is to enforce the basic rules of cleanliness, to prevent transmission of diseases. During the past year, for example, they made 67 inspections of public places, 99 school inspections, 820 checks on private premises, and 66 inspections of nursing homes.

They periodically check water supplies, and it is their inspection and O. K., of the water tanks and treatment of water which insures safe drinking water.

The sanitarians are also in charge of rabies control. The health unit maintains a dog pound at Selman Field, with a small animal warden in charge, and stray or unvaccinated dogs are picked up and held for five days so the owners may claim them and have them vaccinated. Otherwise, the animals are destroyed.

The State Entomologist, E. B. Johnson, is also located on the second floor. Health units throughout Louisiana collect insects, mosquitoes, and flies, and send them in to the state office here for a check to ascertain what diseases the insects are carriers of. The state also carries on a program against roaches, mosquitoes and flies, to prevent the spread of diseases from animals to humans. Each health unit cooperates, and in Ouachita parish this year there is a control program against mosquitoes and roaches.

Located on the third floor is the regional laboratory, which tests specimens for everything from typhoid and undulant fever to worms. Last year, 40,277 specimens just from Ouachita parish area were examined, in addition to those sent in for examination from 14 other parishes in northeast Louisiana.

Miss Florence Drach is director of the laboratory. Her staff examines cultures for diptheria, meningitis, typhoid fever, makes cultures to check for tuberculosis and examines them, makes smears to test for gonorrhea and does analyses of blood to check for tularemia, malaria, typhus fever and syphillis.

They also do milk analyses to check for bacteria count, butterfat content, the total amount of solids in the milk, and proper pasteurization. They test for watered milk, or for powdered milk added to fresh supplies.

The laboratory made a total of 29,740 tests during 1956, with 2,339 of them being chemical tests on milk, 1,733 for typhus fever, 4,296 smears for malaria, and 783 bacteriological tests on water.

The regional office, also on the third floor, is staffed by 14 persons, and serves Ouachita and 27 other parishes in the state. Inspections of each restaurant, dairy, pasteurization plant, market, slaughter house, bakery, and bottling plant is done by these men, and the establishments must meet standards or undergo closure.

The inspectors even investigate private premises for everything from a contagious disease to complaints about an unsanitary chicken - house.

Schools are also inspected in the all - out battle to prevent disease.

That's a very brief run - down on the varied activities of the health unit. It's impossible to understand all the work which goes into the preventative efforts carried on by the staff members, unless you actually see them "in operation." The Ouachita parish health unit, plus the regional laboratory and offices, compose one of the most vital public activities in the parish.

HEALTH UNIT DIRECTOR
In charge of all activities at the Ouachita Parish Health Unit is Dr. W. Carroll Summer, who directs the unit's work in the prevention of disease throughout the parish, by means of inoculations, inspections, clinics, and public health education. (Staff photo by John Oldenburg.)

Flowers In Spring Often Cover Litter

By RECA JASPER
State Editor

Spring flowers bloom in profusion along side our highways, crimson clover adds a rich note of color while flowering redbud and dogwood herald that spring is here.

While this adds beauty to the motorist's drive, it performs a much more important task. The red clover, grass and wild flowers cover beer cans, paper bags, candy wrappers and other litter that has been tossed out car windows.

Law Passed

The Louisiana legislature has passed a law making this shameful practice illegal and provided punishment of $25 or 30 days in jail or both for violating the anti-litter law.

At a meeting of Louisiana Associated Clubs for Roadside Development with officials and district engineers of the Louisiana department of highways in Alexandria last week several corrective proposals were set forth. About 60 persons were present.

Talbert Slack, roadside development engineer, said that 200 metal signs stating the illegality of littering the roadsides and the penalty will soon be erected alongside the highways.

The clubwomen went on record as endorsing two bills which have been introduced in congress to establish controls over the use of billboard and undesirable developments along highways proposed to be built under the federal highway act of 1956.

The campaign to carry a "litter bag" when traveling has gained some followers, but far too few as testified by trash in the ditches.

Aims Explained

The committee on roadside development not only aims to halt littering of the roadside, but also has as part of its program to search for, assemble and evaluate roadside practices throughout the country. This will be done through cooperation with highway departments, state and federal agencies, universities and commercial organizations.

The scope of work covers all phases of the broad field of roadside work with emphasis on scenic features and planning design.

Slack, who has about 20 years of service with the state highway department as roadside development engineer, enumerated the following findings as applicable to this state: (1) roadside development for any new highway should not be an "after - thought" but begin in design and carried into construction and maintenance; (2) rights - of - way must be sufficiently controlled so that the use by those who occupy them can be without damage to native tree and other landscape features; (3) roadside parks developed for the traveling public and not alone for picnic areas and (4) a long range educational program to familiarize the public with maintenance and beautification of the highways.

Monroe Professor Geography Author

"Louisiana Geography," the first book on the geography of the state, was released this week by the Harlow Publishing Corporation. The author of the 185 - page work is W. C. Buchanan, assistant professor of geography at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The book, comprising fourteen chapters, covers the surface features of the state as well as natural resources, industry, agriculture, origin and culture of the people.

Designed for eighth grade use, the geography is written in such a way that it will fit into the social program of public schools and it also can be easily read and employed as an informative work on Louisiana.

The volume is illustrated with 144 photographs, charts, maps and diagrams, many of which are works of the author. Others were furnished by individuals, private and state organizations.

Plans for the book were conceived during Buchanan's course of graduate study at George Peabody College when it was found that practically nothing had been written on the geography of Louisiana.

In 1950, faced with the prospect of teaching Louisiana geography to college students, primarily in-service and prospective teachers, the absence of an organized text book led the instructor to the research, organization and dexelopment of materials to be used in the volume.

Acting on the advice of the well known author, teacher and lecturer, Dr. J. Russell Whitaker, Buchanan traveled extensively through the state collecting photographs and other materials which he utilized in the book.

The project was under guidance of the editor, Dr. John W. Morris, professor of geography at the University of Oklahoma, who has edited and entire series of state text books. This series of volumes contains works of Professor Harry L. Law, author of a book on Tennessee geography and Buchanan's major professor at Austin Peay State College, Tennessee.

Buchanan received his early education in the Humphreys County public schools of middle Tennessee. He was awarded the bachelor of science degree from Austin Peay State College, Clarksville, Tenn. and the master of arts from George Peabody College, Nashville. He served four and one-half years in the army during World War II, and was released with the rank of captain. He presently is a major in the active reserve.

The author has been a member of the Northeast State faculty since 1948 with exception of one year, when he taught at Bastrop Junior High School. Prior to coming to Louisiana, he taught elementary and high school subjects.

11.5 Per Cent Of Farm Income Now Comes From U.S. Government Checks

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Out of every dollar that farmers earn in net income this year, about 11.5 cents will come directly from government checks.

This figure is easily determined from the agriculture budget and the official forecast of income.

But of much less certainty is the portion of the income that will flow into farm pockets indirectly from government spending. A study of the department's spending program suggests that a great deal more—possibly 20 cents or more—can be attributed to federal farm programs.

The budgets for direct subsidy or payment programs include:

SOIL BANK PROGRAM — One billion dollars for retirement of land from surplus crops.

AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAM—240 million dollars in payments to farmers who carry out approved soil, water and timber conservation practices.

SUGAR PROGRAM—74 million dollars to growers of sugar beets and sugar cane to help enable them to compete with foreign producing areas.

WOOL PROGRAM — 60 million dollars to wool producers as an incentive to encourage expanded production and to make domestic wool competitive with foreign wool.

These programs total $1,379,000,000. By comparison, farmers' net income this year is expected to be close to 12 billion dollars. Net income is the amount left after payment of production costs.

But the department budget calls for the spending of an additional $2,344,000,000 to help stabilize agricultural prices. Some of this money will be used to acquire farm surpluses. Some will be used to subsidize the export of surpluses.

These programs will serve to put more dollars into farm pockets than producers would get if they were not in operation.

Take corn for example. The department is committed to support the price of corn at an average of $1.36 a bushel. It does this by offering to make loans on grain withheld from the market and stored suitably.

This offer has the effect of providing the farmer alternative markets—the regular market where users buy, and the government loan.

The mere fact that the government stands ready to make a loan at a given rate makes it necessary for the buyer to meet or come close to the government offer, or go without the corn. Thus the support program acts to put more dollars into corn farmers' pockets, even though it may be dollars from users rather than from the government.

However, in times of surpluses, some government money does go directly into hands of producers of corn and other supported commodities. There is no requirement that the farmer who stores commodities under price support programs pay off his loan. He may surrender the commodities to the government as full payment. This is something farmers have done in a big way in recent years.

The price support loans are not generally considered to be subsidies because the government gets commodities in return for unpaid loans. Yet, there is room for argument that a part of the loan is a subsidy, particularly in years when market prices would be considerably below the loan rate if it were not for the loan program itself. The amount of the subsidy could be judged to be the difference between what a free market would bring for the particular commodity and the price support rate.

In the case of some commodities, the government does not make price support loans. Instead, it purchases a part of the supply when prices drop below a predetermined price support level. Commodities which fall in this class are dairy products, eggs, meats, fruits and vegetables.

But in the case of the purchases as in the case of the price support loans, prices of the affected commodities are bolstered above levels which otherwise would prevail. This extra price might well be tagged an indirect subsidy flowing from the government buying operations.

Of course, most of the purchase programs provide bigger subsidies to persons other than the farmers. Children who get the advantage of the school lunch and milk programs are major beneficiaries because much of the foods bought by the government for price support purposes go to this program.

Others who benefit from these purchases are low income persons who receive surplus foods through their welfare agencies.

The department spends about 40 million dollars a year to administer crop production control and marketing quota programs. This money could well be classed as an indirect subsidy to farmers because it helps hold down production which otherwise might force farm prices downward.

The department makes loans totaling more than half a billion dollars annually to farmers. While these loans are repayable, there is an element of subsidization in them. Most of the loans are made at interest rates below those prevailing in the regular money markets.

Mississippi May Have New Field In Walthall Co.

JACKSON, Miss., April 27 (AP) — Mississippi oil men said today tests last week indicate a possible new gas field in Walthall County 14 miles southeast of Tylertown.

Skelly Oil Co. was drilling below 10,200 feet in its Dexter No. 1 after drill stem test in an open hole at 9,576-619 feet recovered 101 feet of 51 gravity condensate.

Workers said this indicated commercial gas condensate production from the lower Tuscaloosa formation which is productive in the nearby Hub and Sandy Hook fields of Marion County.

It Bolton field of Hinds County, Weston Drilling Co. apparently has opened another producing level with its Gaddis Farms No. 6 well on the northwestern edge of the field.

Workers reported tests on a sand at 11,794-98 feet showed a flow rate of 350 barrels of oil daily. The sand was believed in the Hosston formation.

In Simpson County's Martinville field, Gulf Oil Corp. was below 12,200 feet in its Sullivan No. 1, a sidetrack hole drilled after operators were unable to recover parts of stuck drill pipe at 12,021 feet.

The well was the first development well in the field. Reports were it has not logged corresponding shows in deeper beds that were present in the discovery well.

Other oil activity included:

In Hinds County, Love Petroleum Corp. was below 2,100 feet in its wildcat Green Estate No. 1 with contract depth set at 5,500 feet.

Sinclair Oil and Gas Co. was coring below 14,900 feet in its Covington County wildcat Miller - Aultman No. 1. No shows have been logged.

In Smith County, California Co.'s wildcat Central Oil Co. No. 7 was below 11,000 feet and nearing the 12,500-foot contract depth.

Continental Oil Co. was below 10,200 feet in its Smith County wildcat Bryant No. 1. Contract depth is 13,000 feet.

Second Snake Roundup Set In Oklahoma

WAYNOKA, Okla., April 27 (UP)—Oklahoma's second big rattlesnake hunt of the year will be held here Sunday, with 20,000 people expected if the weather remains good.

Skies were clear here Saturday and conditions were ideal for snake hunting, Ralph Keffer, president of the Waynoka Saddle Club, sponsor of the hunt, said. However, showers and scattered thunderstorms were forecast for Sunday.

The Okeene, Okla., rattlesnake roundup, held April 7, was hampered by cold, damp weather. Last year's Waynoka hunt featured a windy, cool day which kept the crowd down to approximately 17,000, but in two previous years more than 20,000 spectators and hunters turned out.

Bob Jenni, of the Oklahoma City zoo, will be in charge of snake handling and weighing at the hunt headquarters near Waynoka city hall. An annual pre-hunt banquet was scheduled Saturday night, followed by a dance.

Prizes will be awarded for the seven largest snakes, the smallest snake, most snakes by weight and to the oldest hunter who catches a snake.

Women of the Home Demonstration clubs in Ouachita parish, throughout northeast Louisiana, the state and the nation will be especially in the limelight April 28-May 4, which is National Home Demonstration Week. Three of the active members of Ouachita parish's Lamkin Home Demonstration Club are shown here at one of their handicraft projects, working with reed. They are (left to right) Mrs. Edna Shaughnessy, Mrs. J. D. Collier and Mrs. W. H. Pogue.

Annual Event

Public Invited To Scout Circus Here

Scout Executive Jack E. Pankey yesterday issued an "official invitation" to the public of Northeast Louisiana to attend the annual Ouachita Valley Council Gala Circus at Legion Memorial Stadium next Saturday.

Pankey urged all persons interested in "witnessing Scouting in review" to the two performances featuring the entire membership of the 14-parish council.

A Saturday afternoon matinee at 3 o'clock will kickoff the circus with the night performance following at 7:30 p.m.

Eleven big events ranging from the small boy program of Cub Scouting to the first Americans—the American Indian—will compose the two-hour show.

Highlighting the circus will be the appearance of the entire lodge of the Order of the Arrow in this area and approximately 50 members dressed as Indians will perform various dances.

Every troop in the Council has been given a part in the show and the Grand Entry is expected to bring some 4,000 Scouts onto the outdoor stage.

Twenty-six expert bicycle riders will present "the finest precision bicycle riding in the country," according to Circus director Travis Chevallier, district executive in Monroe.

Campsites will be pitched and Explorer Post 88 of Winnfield will entertain the audience with a spectacular event of precision riding on highly trained horses.

An Explorer event under the direction of Dr. D. L. Coffman will depict the high adventure of Exploring in the fields of the outdoors, social, vocation and service activities.

The Negro Scouts of the entire council will perform in three ring circus style, the rings being filled with Scouts and leaders from the three divisions — Franklin division, Keystone and D'arbonne Kisatchie Divisions.

Covered wagons will be brought on during the finale, depicting the frontier theme with the appearance of the Order of the Arrow dance team.

The bidding:

North, 1 heart; East, Pass; South, 2 no trump, West, Pass.

North, 3 no trump; East, Pass; South, Pass; West, Pass.

Opening lead: Jack of spades.

The "second hand low" slogan is today the target of our special invective.

When West led the jack of spades, East came up with the king, and South won. He crossed to dummy with a heart and led a low diamond. East played "second hand low" and the jack drove out the king.

West proceeded to establish the spades, but when East got in with the ace of diamonds, he had no spade to return, and West had no entry. So the three potential spade tricks withered and died.

Note how differently this hand will play if East rises with the ace of diamonds on the first lead and diamonds on the first lead and clears the spades while his partner still has the king of diamonds for entry.

From the standpoint of defense, the principle involved in this case may be stated briefly: When your partner is trying to establish a suit at no trump, it behooves you to rush in and win a trick as quickly as possible to help set up his suit before his entries are taken from him.

On the other hand, declarer could have assured his contract by simply refusing the first spade trick. East will continue the suit, but when he takes his ace of diamonds, he will have no spade left, and declarer has time to build up his nine tricks before the spades are established against him.

From the declarer's standpoint, the principle involved is: When holding two stoppers in the suit led at no trump, the first trick should not be taken where there are two key cards to be driven out. The two key cards in this hand are the ace and king of diamonds.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: Last night a bunch of us fellows got to discussing religion and the majority seemed to feel that if we do the best we can, we are Christians. If that is true, where does Christ come in? P.W.

ANSWER: Your discussion has really centered on the question whether a man can save himself; whetehr the best we may do is all that God requires of us. If man, by his own efforts, no matter how lofty and good they might be, is capable of saving himself, then there would have been no necessity for Christ to come into the world. The Bible says: "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." The Bible also tells us that "The wages of sin is death." Man's big problem centers in the ugly little word "sin". We all are sinners by nature, by inheritance and by practice. If we say we do not sin, we simply make God a liar. The next question naturally is whether we can do anything about our own sins. We may reform but we cannot change our hearts. It is no more possible for a man to redeem himself from the guilt and penalty of sin than it is for him to lift himself up by his boot straps. Then what can man do? Only one thing and that is to accept the provision God has made. This provision is in Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who came into this world for the express purpose of changing our sinful natures and giving us new hearts. This He does to all who in sincerity accept Him as their Saviour. This is the heart of the Gospel message and it is wonderful news.

Review Of Financial, Oil, Gas News

WEEK IN FINANCE

Spring Construction Boom Now Underway, Signs Show

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—First signs of a spring-time boom in heavy construction brightened the nation's business scene this week.

Delayed in many parts of the country by rain and cold, the biggest road building program in history was finally getting under way.

There were other massive projects, ranging from hospitals, churches, schools and office buildings to oil pipelines, waterworks and sewers.

Stepped-up spending on heavy construction was counted upon to offset the continuing lag in demand for houses, textiles, appliances and cars.

The extent of this spending was graphically shown in a report by F. W. Dodge Corp. on contracts for future construction awarded during March. The total—$3,077,927,000—was the highest ever recorded in that month, and 11 per cent greater than the total for March last year. Biggest single increase—69 per cent—was in the heavy engineering category — a classification which includes high way projects. The March total for this group: $878,268,000.

Still waiting for signs of a spring upturn this week were producers of steel, nonferrous metals, lumber, paperboard and oil.

Predictions of the steelmakers, however, were on the optimistic side.

Eugene G. Grace, chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corp., said Bethlehem expects to produce at 100 per cent or more of capacity the rest of 1957. Said Grace: "We're more optimistic about capacity operations today than we were three months ago." President C. M. White of Republic Steel Corp. asserted: "We anticipate operating rates will decline somewhat further during the summer lull but will pick up in the fall. We expect to earn more in 1957 than we did in 1956."

Both Bethlehem and Youngstown were well on their way to a record earnings year. Each reported new highs in profits for the first quarter.

Also reporting impressive first quarter gains were the major oil companies: Standard of New Jersey's earnings for the period were up 15 per cent from a year ago. Texaco reported a 23½ per cent rise. Gulf a 30 per cent increase. Behind the sensational profit performance was the Suez Canal crisis — when Europe could not get its normal quota of Middle East crude, it bought higher priced oil in the United States.

Oil company stockholders were warned not to expect a continued windfall. Once canal traffic was restored, they were told, the picnic would be over.

First quarter earnings reports of the "big three" automakers proved what previous sales figures had indicated for some time —Chrysler Corp., with its sweptwing, fin-tailed models, had been stepping ahead at a brisker pace than its two big competitors, General Motors and Ford.

While Ford's first quarter earnings climbed 11.3 per cent, and General Motors' net dropped 7½ per cent, Chrysler's profit shot up for a gain of more than 300 per cent. The Chrysler boxscore: Profits the first three months of 1957 rocketed to more than 46 million dollars from less than 11 millions in the first quarter of 1956; sales, up 55 per cent, totaled $1,150,725,000.

Optimism was the keynote in the electrical industry this week. President Ralph Cordiner of General Electric forecast a 15 per cent boost in total GE sales this year. President Gwilym Price of Westinghouse said that company's order backlog had doubled since year ago.

Elsewhere in the economy, inflationary fires still burned brightly. The government reported that living costs climbed to another new high last month and were still inching up in April. Pacing the rise in the government's consumer price index was the higher cost of renting, owning or maintaining a home. Also contributing to the increase: Higher prices for new and used cars, gasoline, movie tickets, television sets, clothing. New car prices are 7 per cent higher than a year ago; used car prices are up 15 per cent. Also taking a bigger bite out of the family budget are increased costs of medical care, dry cleaning, and hair cuts.

Import Curbs Backers Get Boost By Ike

By CHARLES HASLET

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — Spokesmen for independent oil producers who have urged a cut in imports are encouraged by President Eisenhower's announcement of an investigation to find out whether mandatory curbs are needed.

President Robert Wood of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA), expressed the feeling after Eisenhower acted.

The President said there is reason for belief that foreign oil is entering the country in such volume as to threaten to impair the national security.

Defense Mobilizer Gordon Gray had recommended the President's action. Gray said he would consult with importing companies to see whether imports can be reduced effectively by voluntary action.

Wood said action of Gray in certifying to the President that he has reason to believe oil is being imported in such quantities as to threaten impairment of national security is "an indication of further recognition of the oil import problem. He added it was "encouraging that Director Gray has taken this action."

The IPAA and other independent groups have urged, even during the Suez crisis, that Gray recommend to the President that oil imports be limited to the 1954 ratio the past effective voluntary reduction efforts have been futile.

IPAA officials contended that in the past effeciv voluntary reduction efforts have been futile.

Sens. Monroney (D-Okla) and Carlson (R-Kan) said that with the reopening of the Suez Canal, domestic oil producers are threatened with a flood of imported oil from tht Middle East.

They said Gray should announce what action his office planned to hold imports to the relationship "intended by Congress."

Contract Let To Clear Site For Paper Mill

ST. FRANCISVILLE, April 27 (AP) —Crown - Zellerach Corp. today awarded contract for clearing the site of a 31-million dollar paper mill to T. L. James Construction Co. of uston.

Awarding the contract after asking bids a second time cleared up a controversy touched off when the Louisiana Board of Contracts objected hat the first two bidders didn't have proper licenses for the work.

Project manager Lee Maybach did not disclose the amount of the bid for moving 1,200,000 cubic yards of dirt and gravel, but he company had estimated the project would cost $600,000.

Maybach said the project called for the plant site on the 1,900-acre tract fronting the Mississippi River to be cleared by June 20.

After that, h said, the tract would be graded toward the river and a hard surface road laid from the plant to the river.

Maybach said bids would be asked in August for building the plant, a joint project of Crown-Zellerbach and Time Inc.

He said the plant is scheduled to be in production by Nov. 1, 1958, when Time's present paper contract expires.

Harris To Get IPAA's Stand On Gas Bill

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex., April 27 (AP)— Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark) is to learn Monday the official reaction of the independent oil operator to his new natural gas bill.

The natural gas committee of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA) makes its report immediately after Harris speaks before IPAA's mid-year meeting at Biloxi, Miss.

The committee began its deliberations in preliminary session at Biloxi today.

Endorsement of the bill by the IPAA would give Harris a major victory in his hope of unified industry backing.

The Biloxi meeting is important because IPAA for over a quarter of a century has been the spokesman for the nation's independent oil operators.

Monday's committee report should be interesting because the group is expected to submit recommendation on a bill that recognizes the authority of the Federal Power Commission to control natural gas prices at the wellhead. IPAA long has been an opponent of such federal regulation.

There has been increased indication the oil industry is willing to accept the new Harris bill reluctantly.

President Eisenhower last year vetoed another Harris bill which would have removed wellhead prices from federal control. He said he agreed with the bill's basic principles but said the veto was necessary because of "arrogant" lobbying by a small segment of oilmen.

Last year's bill drew strong opposition from natural gas distributors, particularly in the East and Midwest. The new bill reportedly has the backing of this group.

While recognizing the Federal Power Commission's price regulatory authority, the new bill would require that prices be based on "reasonable market price" for natural gas. FPC would not be permitted to use the current public utility rate base cost-of-service formula.

Harris himself admits the new bill is "radically different" from last year's bill.

"It is, in fact, a regulatory measure setting up methods, and a formula, by which the Federal Power Commission would administer the program."

Harris said that when the Natural Gas Act of 1938 was passed there was no thought of intention of controlling producers. For this reason, he said, the act included no procedures for carrying out such controls.

"Notwithstanding this fact, the Supreme Court in 1954 held, contrary to legislative history and the intent of Congress, that the prices paid to the producers for natural gas were subject to the act and thus federal regulation," he said.

"Since this concept seems to be the national policy, it is essential and imperative that a practicable and workable plan for regulation be provided."

October Cotton Futures Decline $3.90 Per Bale

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP) —Cotton futures prices sought lower ground this w ek.

After futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange from nearby May 1957 to July 1958 took net losses ranging from 5 cents to $1.45 a bale. The October 1958 delivery was dow $3.90 a bale.

The sharp decline for distant October was attributed to a growing belief the administration might seek a lower price support level next year.

The rest of the list was also under selling pressure, but this was cushioned by continued reports of unfavorable weather in the cotton belt and a high level of government sales for export.

The Commodity Credit Corporation reported it sold 1,109,000 bales of government-held cotton against bids opened April 16 for shipment overseas under the federal-sponsored export program.

The CCC announced, it has sold 7,463,000 bales for export before Aug. 15 and an additional 1,942,000 bales for export after Aug. 15 This, it was estimated, points to likelihood the total stock of U.S. cotton available for export will be reduced to 3,400,000 bales by July first.

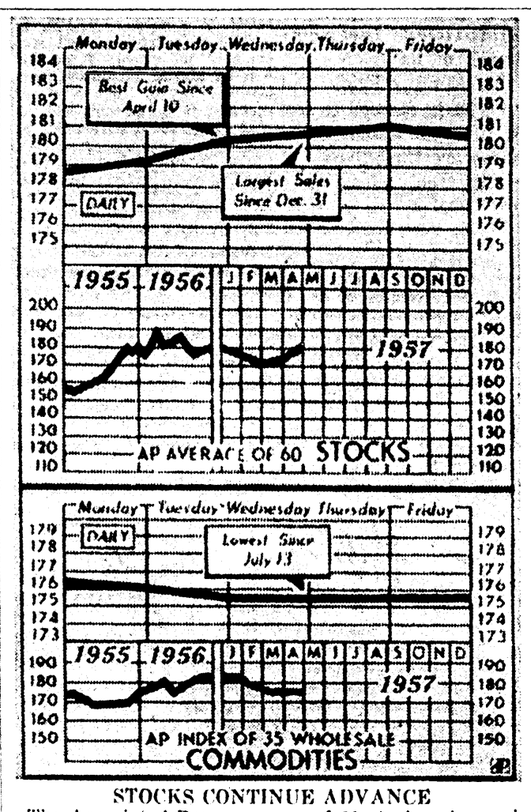
Exports of U. S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 107,000 bales, vs. 194,000 bales the previous week and 103,000 in the like week last year.

The total for the season through April 23 was estimated at 6,040,000 bales, compared to 1,441,000 a year earlier.

Crude Stocks Up

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP)— Crude oil stocks totaled 257,080,000 barrels for the week ending April 20, an increase of 1,765,000 barrels from the previous week, the Bureau of Mines reported today.

Texas stocks were 118,521,000 barrels, up 2,931,000 barrels. Other stocks on hand: Kansas — 8,966,000 barrels, up 364,000 barrels; Louisiana — 17,877,000 barrels, down 650,000 barrels; Oklahoma—22,437,000 barrels, up 32,000 barrels; California — 25,378,000 barrels, down 417,000 barrels.



STOCKS CONTINUE ADVANCE

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced for the 9th straight week when it closed at 180.6 from 178.8 a week ago. The Commodity Index, led by livestock, declined last week to 175.7 from 176.2 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Stocks Rap Door Of Highs For 1957

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—The stock market rapped on the door of the 1957 highs in a week of hurly-burly trading of wide moves by selected issues.

Trading volume hit its highest pitch since the April 1956, when the Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached its all-time high of $191.50.

This week the average moved up $1.80 to $180.60 for its ninth straight weekly advance. The average hits its 1957 low of $168 Feb. 12.

Speculative interest ran high. Record earnings of Bethlehem and Chrysler came after the close Thursday and anticipation of the good news preoccupied Wall Street well in advance.

Lukens Steel gyrated over a range of 20 points but its net gain was less than 2. Lukens was suspended from trading twice Wednesday. The huge short interest in the stock and the comparatively few shares avilable for trading led to repeated emergencies.

The five most active issues were Bethlehem Steel, up ⅜ at 455⅛; Chrysler, up 3 at 79⅛; Lukens, up 1⅞ at 39¾; Texas Gulf Producing, up 11 at 45⅞; and Alleghany Corp., up ¾ at 7.

Corporate bonds slipped lower on expanded volume this week while U. S. government bonds were irregularly lower on much smaller volume in the bond market.

Mothball Sales Depress Wheat

CHICAGO, April 27 (AP) —The so-called mothball fleet — something that nearly everybody had forgotten about — came out of the mothballs to scare wheat traders late this week.

Government sales from the mothball fleet caused selling in wheat futures and was a depressing influence in a market that might otherwise have been higher because of the Middle East news. Most other grains also were lower, except for oats and nearby soybean contracts.

New style wheat closed the week 1⅜ to 3 cents lower than a week ago, new style wheat 2⅛ to 2¾ lower, corn unchanged to 2⅛ lower, oats ¼ up to ⅜ down, rye 3 to 4½ lower, soybeans 1 cent higher to ¼ lower, and lard 42 to 62 cents a hundred pounds down.

AUTO INDUSTRY

Air Suspension May Be Top Advance Next Year

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT, April 27 (AP)—Wide adaptation of air suspension may be one of the major engineering advances to be offered by the auto industry in 1958.

In this newest of suspension systems bellows, containing a constantly measured amount of air, replace the time-honored leaf and coil springs. To the extent that one unit is installed at each wheel the suspension can be called "independent."

Air suspension already has been adapted to some coaches and trucks. More recently General Motors, which has done a great deal of pioneering work on the new system, installed it as a feature of its Cadillac ElDorado brougham.

Industry gossip says several makers outside the GM group will have air suspension with the introduction of their 1958 model cars. Mentioned in this connection is Ford's new Edsel line, to be brought out in September. However, engineering details of the newest of the Ford lines still are closely guarded secrets.

Major components of a typical air suspension system are a dome, rubber diaphragm, retaining plate, a piston, three leveling valves an air compressor, and electric motor and an air reservoir.

The dome is secured to the car frame. Piston and diaphragm fit into the dome. The air in the dome acts on the diaphragm and serves as the spring.

The leveling valves, one at each rear wheel and one controlling both front springs, meter the flow of air to the domes. This determines the car height. Each valve is actuated by a rod that reacts to the up and down position of the car body in relation to the wheel.

The air compressor is powered by an electric motor. It is mounted on top of the generator. The air reservoir is installed just forward of the radiator.

The air suspension system obviously is more complicated than the convention coil or leaf spring installation and its collateral components add to the under-hood congestion. But it has been subjected, without failure, to shock tests never encountered in any practicable car operation.

Ford spokesmen have said the forthcoming Edsel cars "will be different from anything" heretofore offered by the car makers. It will be so distinctive, they said, that it will be immediately recognizable at a distance.

That suggests styling changes more radical than any heretofore attempted by the industry. That, of course has in turn stimulated a lot of speculation. This is precisely what the Ford high command has sought in what probably has been the most intense pre-introduction promotion campaign the industry has known in many years.

Just about every car maker is carrying on intensive research with braking systems. Quicker dissipation of heat generated in the braking of fast moving cars has been a major objective of experts in brake design.

One supplier concern specializing in brake design reportedly has developed a liquid-cooled unit. That principle of brake cooling long has been considered, but generally it was regarded as impractical.

Buick recently said it had set up a permanent brake testing project in Los Angeles The testing "course," Buick reported, is 196 miles long, over the major freeways, mountain roads and downtown areas. The test cars carry equipment to record brake pressure, temperature and other data.

NO COMMENT

By JAMES W. DOUTHAT

WASHINGTON, April 27 (Special) — Nation-wide protests rolling in on Congress against high taxes — accompanied by threats of a "tax revolt" — have made a deep impression in Washington.

An immediate result is a scramble for political advantage that would come from lowering the onerous burden of federal taxation. This contest centers in Congress.

There is sentiment in Congress to enact a tax cut bill before adjournment of the present session—effective next Jan. 1. This sentiment is found chiefly in the House. Senators talk more of a tax cut bill next year.

Congressional Sentiment—Members of the House — especially sensitive to public sentiment—say that their mail demanding tax reduction now equals that urging the slashing of President Eisenhower's $71.8 billion budget.

Speaker Rayburn, after a meeting with Democratic members of the tax-originating House Ways and Means Committee, said that while chances for tax cuts appeared good, Democrats will not make a decision until "around June" on whether they will try to push through a bill this year to take effect next January 1. Mr. Rayburn added that Democrats are not going to be "irresponsible."

Rep. Reed (R-N.Y.), ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, called promises of tax reduction "vague and premature." While convinced that "lower taxes are essential," Mr. Reed added that such reduction "can be realized only to the extent that reduced government spending makes it possible or to the extent that such tax reduction compels a concomitant spending reduction."

A cautious attitude towards tax cuts is also evident in the Senate. Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, wants first to see the end result of budget-cutting efforts, which now total about $1 billion. He indicated that $3 to $4 billion would have to be cut if tax reduction talk is to be cut if tax reduction action. Sen. Bridges (R-N.H.), ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee, takes much the same view.

Should the Democrats try to push through tax reduction, it is almost certain that it would be either a $100 increase in the present $600 personal exemption; the old discredited $20 tax credit; or a split in the first $2,000 bracket, with a lower rate, probably 10 per cent, instead of the present 20 per cent, applying to the first $1,000.

Republican strategy as to the exact form of tax reduction to be supported, should the Democrats open such a drive later in the session, is not quite clear.

Labor Union Restrictions—Behind the scenes Congressional discussion revolves around this question: Can Congress afford to go home without enacting desirable labor union legislation?

Some members feel that the people — including union members — have been so outraged by disclosures of labor union racketeering that Congress will be severely criticized if it does not enact legislation.

Opposed to this view is a belief that big labor unions would be satisfied to see some "milk and water" legislation rushed through Congress in order to forestall fundamental changes in labor laws.

Legislation is pending in the Senate to provide for some federal supervision of union welfare and benefit funds. But members of the McClellan racket investigating committee know that this is only one of the problems involved in union corruption.

Senator McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate investigating committee, has indicated the possibility of legislation being offered by the committee in June.

Meanwhile, the racket investigating committee swung into disclosures of union force and violence and use of "goon squads" and "terror tactics" to force compliance with union dictation.

What it takes to be a successful bridegroom today

(with special reference to cash)

The time is rapidly passing when a young man can impress a girl – or her parents – solely with good intentions, good looks and the scent of cologne. The tests today are sterner.

Fundamental is a certain awareness in the delicate matter of money. If you expect some day to be a groom – or if there is one coming up in your family – here are the tests it's wise for a man to pass:

Test 1: He understands the advantages of setting aside money to own stocks or bonds. Nobody is more aware of the fact that investment in the common stock of some sound company can increase family income through dividends, can increase the family's worth if the company grows. He knows that he does not have to be in the upper brackets to invest, that as a matter of fact two out of three shareowners have incomes under $7500 a year.

Test 2: He knows all about the Monthly Investment Plan, including the fact that it enables him to buy stock in many of America's greatest companies for only $40 every three months – up to $1000 a month – helping him, in a steady, convenient way, become an owner of his share of American business.

Test 3: He uses his bean. He knows he should not invest a dime until such basic things as bills and family emergencies are provided for. He knows how foolish it is to risk his surplus money on mere tips or rumors. He is aware that a company may not pay dividends – and may not grow. So he always gets the facts before he buys.

Test 4: He has read our excellent free booklet "INVESTMENT FACTS" which gives the records of some 280 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange which have paid cash dividends every three months for 20 to 92 years. From this booklet he has also learned many interesting facts about investing, such as the cost of buying and selling stocks, where to get good advice and how to open an account with a Member Firm.

Test 5: Smartest move of all, he has got acquainted with a friendly broker in a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange, who is helping him plan an investment program. He knows the broker's job is to help him get facts he wants, give him advice, and serve him when he decides to buy or sell.

When you get hold of this kind of bridegroom you've got a dandy. How do you pass these tests? Let no one put you to shame. Drop in at the nearest Member Firm for the booklet and good advice. It's free. Or send the coupon right now.

Spring Construction Boom Now Underway, Signs Show

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—First signs of a spring-time boom in heavy construction brightened the nation's business scene this week.

Delayed in many parts of the country by rain and cold, the biggest road building program in history was finally getting under way.

There were other massive projects, ranging from hospitals, churches, schools and office buildings to oil pipelines, waterworks and sewers.

Stepped-up spending on heavy construction was counted upon to offset the continuing lag in demand for houses, textiles, appliances and cars.

The extent of this spending was graphically shown in a report by F. W. Dodge Corp. on contracts for future construction awarded during March. The total—$3,077,997,000—was the highest ever recorded in that month, and 11 per cent greater than the total for March last year. Biggest single increase—69 per cent—was in the heavy engineering category — a classification which includes highway projects. The March total for this group: $878,268,000.

Still waiting for signs of a spring upturn this week were producers of steel, nonferrous metals, lumber, paperboard and oil.

Predictions of the steelmakers, however, were on the optimistic side.

Eugene G. Grace, chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corp., said Bethlehem expects to produce at 100 per cent or more of capacity the rest of 1957. Said Grace: "We're more optimistic about capacity operations today than we were three months ago." President C. M. White of Republic Steel Corp. asserted: "We anticipate operating rates will decline somewhat further during the summer lull but will pick up in the fall. We expect to earn more in 1957 than we did in 1956."

Both Bethlehem and Youngstown were well on their way to a record earnings year. Each reported new highs in profits for the first quarter.

Also reporting impressive first quarter gains were the major oil companies: Standard of New Jersey's earnings for the period were up 15 per cent from a year ago. Texaco reported a 23½ per cent rise, Gulf a 30 per cent increase. Behind the sensational profit performance was the Suez Canal crisis — when Europe could not get its normal quota of Middle East crude, it bought higher priced oil in the United States. Oil company stockholders were warned not to expect a continued windfall. Once canal traffic was restored, they were told, the picnic would be over.

First quarter earnings reports of the "big three" automakers proved what previous sales figures had indicated for some time—Chrysler Corp., with its swept-wing, fin-tailed models, had been stepping ahead at a brisker pace than its two big competitors, General Motors and Ford.

While Ford's first quarter earnings climbed 11.3 per cent, and General Motors' net dropped 7½ per cent, Chrysler's profit shot up for a gain of more than 300 per cent. The Chrysler boxscore: Profits the first three months of 1957 rocketed to more than 46 million dollars from less than 11 millions in the first quarter of 1956; sales, up 55 per cent, totaled $1,150,723,000.

Optimism was the keynote in the electrical industry this week. President Ralph Cordiner of General Electric forecast a 15 per cent boost in total GE sales this year, President Gwilym Price of Westinghouse said that company's order backlog had doubled since year ago.

Elsewhere in the economy, inflationary fires still burned brightly. The government reported that living costs climbed to another new high last month and were still inching up in April. Pacing the rise in the government's consumer price index was the higher cost of renting, owning or maintaining a home. Also contributing to the increase: Higher prices for new and used cars, gasoline, movie tickets, television sets, clothing. New car prices are 7 per cent higher than a year ago; used car prices are up 15 per cent. Also taking a bigger bite out of the family budget are increased costs of medical care, dry cleaning, and hair cuts.

Import Curbs Backers Get Boost By Ike

By CHARLES HASLET

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — Spokesmen for independent oil producers who have urged a cut in imports are encouraged by President Eisenhower's announcement of an investigation to find out whether mandatory curbs are needed.

President Robert Wood of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA), expressed the feeling after Eisenhower acted.

The President said there is reason for belief that foreign oil is entering the country in such volume as to threaten to impair the national security.

Defense Mobilizer Gordon Gray had recommended the President's action. Gray said he would consult with importing companies to see whether imports can be reduced effectively by voluntary action.

Wood said action of Gray in certifying to the President that he has reason to believe oil is being imported in such quantities as to threaten impairment of national security is "an indication of further recognition of the oil import problem. He added it was "encouraging that Director Gray has taken this action."

The IPAA and other independent groups have urged, even during the Suez crisis, that Gray recommend to the President that oil imports be limited to the 1954 ratio the past effective voluntary reduction efforts have been futile.

IPAA officials contended that in the past effeciv voluntary reduction efforts have been futile.

Sens. Monroney (D-Okla) and Carlson (R-Kan) said that with the reopening of the Suez Canal, domestic oil producers are threatened with a flood of imported oil from tht Middle East.

They said Gray should announce what action his office planned to hold imports to the relationship "intended by Congress."

Harris To Get IPAA's Stand On Gas Bill

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex., April 27 (AP)—Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark) is to learn Monday the official reaction of the independent oil operator to his new natural gas bill.

The natural gas committee of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA) makes its report immediately after Harris speaks before IPAA's mid-year meeting at Biloxi, Miss.

The committee began its deliberations in preliminary session at Biloxi today.

Endorsement of the bill by the IPAA would give Harris a major victory in his hope of unified industry backing.

The Biloxi meeting is important because IPAA for over a quarter of a century has been the spokesman for the nation's independent oil operators.

Monday's committee report should be interesting because the group is expected to submit recommendation on a bill that recognizes the authority of the Federal Power Commission to control natural gas prices at the wellhead. IPAA long has been an opponent of such federal regulation.

There has been increased indication the oil industry is willing to accept the new Harris bill reluctantly.

President Eisenhower last year vetoed another Harris bill which would have removed wellhead prices from federal control. He said he agreed with the bill's basic principles but said the veto was necessary because of "arrogant" lobbying by a small segment of oilmen.

Last year's bill drew strong opposition from natural gas distributors, particularly in the East and Midwest. The new bill reportedly has the backing of this group.

While recognizing the Federal Power Commission's price regulatory authority, the new bill would require that prices be based on "reasonable market price" for natural gas. FPC would not be permitted to use the current public utility rate base cost-of-service formula.

Harris himself admits the new bill is "radically different" from last year's bill.

"It is, in fact, a regulatory measure setting up methods, and a formula, by which the Federal Power Commission would administer the program."

Harris said that when the Natural Gas Act of 1938 was passed there was no thought of intention of controlling producers. For this reason, he said, the act included no procedures for carrying out such controls.

"Notwithstanding this fact, the Supreme Court in 1954 held, contrary to legislative history and the intent of Congress, that the prices paid to the producers for natural gas were subject to the act and thus federal regulation," he said.

"Since this concept seems to be the national policy, it is essential and imperative that a practicable and workable plan for regulation be provided."

October Cotton Futures Decline $3.90 Per Bale

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP) —Cotton futures prices sought lower ground this week.

After futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange from nearby May 1957 to July 1958 took net losses ranging from 5 cents to $1.45 a bale. The October 1958 delivery was down $3.90 a bale.

The sharp decline for distant October was attributed to a growing belief the administration might seek a lower price support level next year.

The rest of the list was also under selling pressure, but this was cushioned by continued reports of unfavorable weather in the cotton belt and a high level of government sales for export.

The Commodity Credit Corporation reported it sold 1,109,000 bales of government-held cotton against bids opened April 16 for shipment overseas under the federal-sponsored export program.

The CCC announced, it has sold 7,463,000 bales for export before Aug. 15 and an additional 1,942,000 bales for export after Aug. 15 This, it was estimated, points to likelihood the total stock of U.S. cotton available for export will be reduced to 3,400,000 bales by July first.

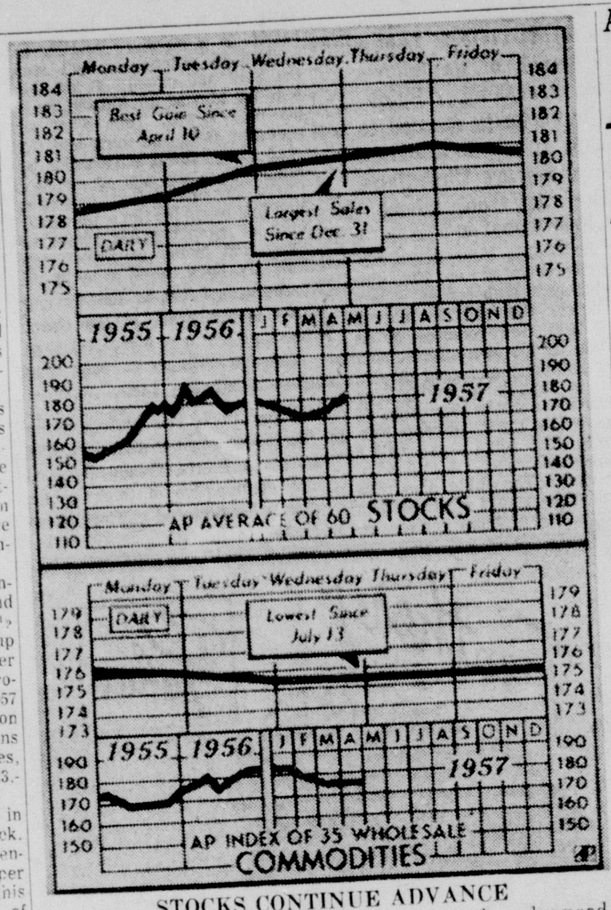
Exports of U. S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 107,000 bales, vs. 194,000 bales the previous week and 103,000 in the like week last year.

The total for the season through April 23 was estimated at 6,040,000 bales, compared to 1,441,000 a year earlier.

Crude Stocks Up

WASHINGTON, April 26 (UP)— Crude oil stocks totaled 257,080,000 barrels for the week ending April 20, an increase of 1,765,000 barrels from the previous week, the Bureau of Mines reported today.

Texas stocks were 118,521,000 barrels, up 2,931,000 barrels. Other stocks on hand: Kansas — 8,966,000 barrels, up 364,000 barrels; Louisiana — 17,877,000 barrels, down 650,000 barrels: Oklahoma—22,437,000 barrels, up 32,000 barrels; California — 25,378,000 barrels, down 417,000 barrels.



STOCKS CONTINUE ADVANCE

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced for the 9th straight week when it closed at 180.6 from 178.8 a week ago. The Commodity Index, led by livestock, declined last week to 175.7 from 176.2 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Stocks Rap Door Of Highs For 1957

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—The stock market rapped on the door of the 1957 highs in a week of hurly-burly trading of wide moves by selected issues.

Trading volume hit its highest pitch since the April 1956, when the Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached its all-time high of $191.50.

This week the average moved up $1.80 to $180.60 for its ninth straight weekly advance. The average hits its 1957 low of $168 Feb. 12.

Speculative interest ran high. Record earnings of Bethlehem and Chrysler came after the close Thursday and anticipation of the good news preoccupied Wall Street well in advance.

Lukens Steel gyrated over a range of 20 points but its net gain was less than 2. Lukens was suspended from trading twice Wednesday. The huge short interest in the stock and the comparatively few shares avilable for trading led to repeated emergencies.

The five most active issues were Bethlehem Steel, up ⅝ at 453⅝; Chrysler, up 3 at 79⅛; Lukens, up 1⅞ at 39¾; Texas Gulf Producing, up 11 at 457⅛; and Alleghany Corp., up ¾ at 7.

Corporate bonds slipped lower on expanded volume this week while U. S. government bonds were irregularly lower on much smaller volume in the bond market.

Brewer Electrolux Sales and Service at 315 Stewart St., West Monroe, won the trip for selling 120 electrolux vacuum cleaners during the month of November. At that time that was the most electrolux cleaners ever sold in the Monroe area during a month.

Joseph N. Pew Jr., chairman of the board of the Sun Oil Company, reports to stockholders that the first - quarter net earnings in 1957 were up about nine per cent over the comparable figure in 1956.

Four oilmen will receive "citations for service" when the American Petroleum Institute Division of Production holds its Eastern District meeting May 1-3 at Pittsburgh. CHICAGO, April 27 (AP) —The so-called mothball fleet — something that nearly everybody had forgotten about — came out of the mothballs to scare wheat traders late this week.

Government sales from the mothball fleet caused selling in wheat futures and was a depressing influence in a market that might otherwise have been higher because of the Middle East news. Most other grains also were lower, except for oats and nearby soybean contracts.

New style wheat closed the week 1⅜ to 3 cents lower than a week ago, new style wheat 2⅛ to 2¾ lower, corn unchanged to 2⅛ lower, oats ¼ up to ⅝ down, rye 3 to 4½ lower, soybeans 1 cent higher to ¼ lower, and lard 42 to 62 cents a hundred pounds down.

Contract Let To Clear Site For Paper Mill

ST. FRANCISVILLE, April 27 (AP) —Crown - Zellerach Corp. today awarded contract for clearing the site of a 31-million dollar paper mill to T. L. James Construction Co. of uston.

Awarding the contract after asking bids a second time cleared up a controversy touched off when the Louisiana Board of Contracts objected that the first two bidders didn't have proper licenses for the work.

Project manager Lee Maybach did not disclose the amount of the bid for moving 1,200,000 cubic yards of dirt and gravel, but he company had estimated the project would cost $600,000.

Maybach said the project called for the plant site on the 1,900-acre tract fronting the Mississippi River to be cleared by June 20.

After that, h said, the tract would be graded toward the river and a hard surface road laid from the plant to the river.

Maybach said bids would be asked in August for building the plant, a joint project of Crown-Zellerbach and Time Inc.

He said the plant is scheduled to be in production by Nov. 1, 1958, when Time's present paper contract expires.

AUTO INDUSTRY

Air Suspension May Be Top Advance Next Year

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT, April 27 (AP)—Wide adaptation of air suspension may be one of the major engineering advances to be offered by the auto industry in 1958.

In this newest of suspension systems bellows, containing a constantly measured amount of air, replace the time-honored leaf and coil springs. To the extent that one unit is installed at each wheel the suspension can be called "independent."

Air suspension already has been adapted to some coaches and trucks. More recently General Motors, which has done a great deal of pioneering work on the new system, installed it as a feature of its Cadillac ElDorado brougham.

Industry gossip says several makers outside the GM group will have air suspension with the introduction of their 1958 model cars. Mentioned in this connection is Ford's new Edsel line, to be brought out in September. However, engineering details of the newest of the Ford lines still are closely guarded secrets.

Major components of a typical air suspension system are a dome, rubber diaphragm, retaining plate, a piston, three leveling valves an air compressor, and electric motor and an air reservoir.

The dome is secured to the car frame. Piston and diaphragm fit into the dome. The air in the dome acts on the diaphragm and serves as the spring.

The leveling valves, one at each rear wheel and one controlling both front springs, meter the flow of air to the domes. This determines the car height. Each valve is actuated by a rod that reacts to the up and down position of the car body in relation to the wheel

The air compressor is powered by an electric motor. It is mounted on top of the generator. The air reservoir is installed just forward of the radiator.

The air suspension system obviously is more complicated than the convention coil or leaf spring installation and its collateral components add to the under-hood congestion. But it has been subjected, without failure, to shock tests never encountered in any practicable car operation.

Ford spokesmen have said the forthcoming Edsel cars "will be different from anything" heretofore offered by the car makers. It will be so distinctive, they said, that it will be immediately recognizable at a distance.

That suggests styling changes more radical than any heretofore attempted by the industry. That, of course has in turn stimulated a lot of speculation. This is precisely what the Ford high command has sought in what probably has been the most intense pre-introduction promotion campaign the industry has known in many years.

Just about every car maker is carrying on intensive research with braking systems. Quicker dissipation of heat generated in the braking of fast moving cars has been a major objective of experts in brake design.

One supplier concern specializing in brake design reportedly has developed a liquid-cooled unit. That principle of brake cooling long has been considered, but generally it was regarded as impractical.

Buick recently said it had set up a permanent brake testing project in Los Angeles The testing "course," Buick reported, is 196 miles long, over the major freeways, mountain roads and downtown areas. The test cars carry equipment to record brake pressure, temperature and other data.

NO COMMENT
By JAMES W. DOUTHAT

WASHINGTON, April 27 (Special) — Nation-wide protests rolling in on Congress against high taxes — accompanied by threats of a "tax revolt" — have made a deep impression in Washington.

An immediate result is a scramble for political advantage that would come from lowering the onerous burden of federal taxation. This contest centers in Congress.

There is sentiment in Congress to enact a tax cut bill before adjournment of the present session—effective next Jan. 1. This sentiment is found chiefly in the House. Senators talk more of a tax cut bill next year.

Congressional Sentiment—Members of the House — especially sensitive to public sentiment—say that their mail demanding tax reduction now equals that urging the slashing of President Eisenhower's $71.8 billion budget.

Speaker Rayburn, after a meeting with Democratic members of the tax-originating House Ways and Means Committee, said that while chances for tax cuts appeared good, Democrats will not make a decision until "around June" on whether they will try to push through a bill this year to take effect next January 1. Mr. Ravburn added that Democrats are not going to be "irresponsible."

Rep. Reed (R-N.Y.), ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, called promises of tax reduction "vague and premature." While convinced that "lower taxes are essential," Mr. Reed added that such reduction "can be realized only to the extent that reduced government spending makes it possible or to the extent that such tax reduction compels a concomitant spending reduction."

A cautious attitude towards tax cuts is also evident in the Senate. Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, wants first to see the end result of budget-cutting efforts, which now total about $1 billion. He indicated that $3 to $4 billion would have to be cut if tax reduction talk is to be cut if tax reduction action. Sen. Bridges (R-N.H.), ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee, takes much the same view.

Should the Democrats try to push through tax reduction, it is almost certain that it would be either a $100 increase in the present $600 personal exemption; the old discredited $20 tax credit; or a split in the first $2,000 bracket, with a lower rate, probably 10 per cent, instead of the present 20 per cent, applying to the first $1,000

Republican strategy as to the exact form of tax reduction to be supported, should the Democrats open such a drive later in the session, is not quite clear.

Labor Union Restrictions—Behind the scenes Congressional discussion revolves around this question: Can Congress afford to go home without enacting desirable labor union legislation?

Some members feel that the people — including union members — have been so outraged by disclosures of labor union racketeering that Congress will be severely criticized if it does not enact legislation.

Opposed to this view is a belief that big labor unions would be satisfied to see some "milk and water" legislation rushed through Congress in order to forestall fundamental changes in labor laws.

Legislation is pending in the Senate to provide for some federal supervision of union welfare and benefit funds. But members of the McClellan racket investigating committee know that this is only one of the problems involved in union corruption.

Senator McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate investigating committee, has indicated the possibility of legislation being offered by the committee in June.

Meanwhile, the racket investigating committee swung into disclosures of union force and violence and use of "goon squads" and "terror tactics" to force compliance with union dictation.

What it takes to be a successful bridegroom today

(with special reference to cash)

The time is rapidly passing when a young man can impress a girl – or her parents – solely with good intentions, good looks and the scent of cologne. The tests today are sterner.

Fundamental is a certain awareness in the delicate matter of money. If you expect some day to be a groom—or if there is one coming up in your family – here are the tests it's wise for a man to pass:

Test 1: He understands the advantages of setting aside money to own stocks or bonds. Nobody is more aware of the fact that investment in the common stock of some sound company can increase family income through dividends, can increase the family's worth if the company grows. He knows that he does not have to be in the upper brackets to invest, that as a matter of fact two out of three shareowners have incomes under $7500 a year.

Test 2: He knows all about the Monthly Investment Plan, including the fact that it enables him to buy stock in many of America's greatest companies for only $40 every three months – up to $1000 a month – helping him, in a steady, convenient way, become an owner of his share of American business.

Test 3: He uses his bean. He knows he should not invest a dime until such basic things as bills and family emergencies are provided for. He knows how foolish it is to risk his surplus money on mere tips or rumors. He is aware that a company may not pay dividends – and may not grow. So he always gets the facts before he buys.

Test 4: He has read our excellent free booklet "INVESTMENT FACTS" which gives the records of some 280 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange which have paid cash dividends every three months for 20 to 92 years. From this booklet he has also learned many interesting facts about investing, such as the cost of buying and selling stocks, where to get good advice and how to open an account with a Member Firm.

Test 5: Smartest move of all, he has got acquainted with a friendly broker in a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange, who is helping him plan an investment program. He knows the broker's job is to help him get facts he wants, give him advice, and serve him when he decides to buy or sell.

When you get hold of this kind of bridegroom you've got a dandy. How do you pass these tests? Let no one put you to shame. Drop in at the nearest Member Firm for the booklet and good advice. It's free. Or send the coupon right now.

Texas Raises Its Allowable

AUSTIN, April 27 (AP)—The Railroad Commission reported today an increase of 9,442 barrels in the average calendar day oil allowables over last week in Texas. The allowable today was 3,578,222 barrels compared to 3,545,000 last Saturday.

The commission said 270 oil and 31 gas wells were completed along with 145 dry holes.

Oil well completions for the year rose to 5,321, still below the 5,449 in 1956. Gas well completions increased to 585 compared to 563. Dry holes totaled 2,665 compared to 2,554.

Summer Lab At Northeast Open June 11

Northeast State's fifth summer laboratory school will open June 11 and close August 7, President Lewis C. Slater announced Saturday.

The school, which is designed for elementary age children, will be housed in the new Administration Building where classes were held last summer.

Running from Monday through Friday, the daily schedule is set approximately from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. A definite hour program will be announced at an early date, Mrs. Evelyn Barnes, director of teacher training at Northeast, announced.

Correlating with the summer laboratory school will be the offering of two courses in professional study, Education 180 and Education 181, both listed as Observation and Participation in the Elementary School. Each course carries three semester hours of credit and is designed to give students the benefit of demonstration teaching done by well trained and experienced teachers, Mrs. Barnes said.

Seminars dealing with professional problems on teaching in the elementary school will accompany classroom observations.

In addition to regular class work on the part of laboratory school pupils, trained personnel will be available to aid children who have special problems.

Parents who are interested in enrolling children for the summer are requested to contact Mrs. Evelyn Barnes by telephoning FA 3-5121. Since the number of pupils will be limited, she explained, application for the school should be made at an early date.

13 MILLION GALLONS BIG...BUT JUST A DROP IN THE BUCKET

The ESSO WASHINGTON slid down the ways on February 15, 1957, the newest of the 110 ocean-going tankers in the Esso fleets.

She can carry 318,000 barrels of oil . . . 13 million gallons. But that's just a drop in the bucket compared with the 40 billion gallons that Jersey Standard affiliates delivered to customers last year.

As economies expand . . . as populations grow . . . as people live better, oil must provide more and more energy to power factories, to fuel farm machinery, to drive ships and planes and motor vehicles, to heat and light homes and offices.

Last year we supplied more than twice the oil we did ten years ago. During 1956 alone, sales rose 8 per cent. This year our customers will need still more.

It's a big job . . . and it requires vast amounts of costly equipment. As our Annual Report to shareholders points out, we spent $1,083,000,000 last year searching for oil and gas and paying for such things as tankers, pipelines and refineries. And in 1957, we plan to spend another $1,250,000,000 to find, produce and deliver the oil people will be needing tomorrow . . . and ten and twenty years from now.

Because Jersey Standard is willing and able to make such investments and because our operations are efficient, we make a profit. In 1956 it was $808,535,000. About half of it went back into the business to help pay for the new facilities.

Our successful year was good news for the 403,000 shareholders who own the company . . . they got dividends of $2.10 per share on the money they invested.

It was good news for our 156,000 employees . . . whose wages and benefits came to $906,000,000.

It was good news for governments. Operating and income taxes, import duties, consumer taxes and other payments from our operations brought to the United States and other governments a record $2,171,000,000. That was five times the dividends to shareholders, more than double the payroll and benefits to employees.

Best of all, our operations were good news for the people of the free world, who rely heavily on the energy of oil for their economic and social progress.

In this, our 75th anniversary year, we intend to continue our efforts to remain successful, profitable and growing, in order to serve people well.

If you would like a copy of our 1956 Annual Report to shareholders, please write us at Room 1626, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York 20, N. Y.

Texas Raises Its Allowable

AUSTIN, April 27 (AP)—The Railroad Commission reported today an increase of 9,442 barrels in the average calendar day oil allowables over last week in Texas. The allowable today was 3,578,222 barrels compared to 3,545,000 last Saturday.

The commission said 270 oil and 31 gas wells were completed along with 145 dry holes.

Oil well completions for the year rose to 5,321, still below the 5,449 in 1956. Gas well completions increased to 585 compared to 563. Dry holes totaled 2,665 compared to 2,554.

Summer Lab At Northeast Open June 11

Northeast State's fifth summer laboratory school will open June 11 and close August 7, President Lewis C. Slater announced Saturday.

The school, which is designed for elementary age children, will be housed in the new Administration Building where classes were held last summer.

Running from Monday through Friday, the daily schedule is set approximately from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. A definite hour program will be announced at an early date. Mrs. Evelyn Barnes, director of teacher training at Northeast, announced.

Correlating with the summer laboratory school will be the offering of two courses in professional study, Education 180 and Education 181, both listed as Observation and Participation in the Elementary School. Each course carries three semester hours of credit and is designed to give students the benefit of demonstration teaching done by well trained and experienced teachers, Mrs. Barnes said.

Seminars dealing with professional problems on teaching in the elementary school will accompany classroom observations.

In addition to regular class work on the part of laboratory school pupils, trained personnel will be available to aid children who have special problems.

Parents who are interested in enrolling children for the summer are requested to contact Mrs. Evelyn Barnes by telephoning FA 3-5121. Since the number of pupils will be limited, she explained, application for the school should be made at an early date.

13 MILLION GALLONS BIG... BUT JUST A DROP IN THE BUCKET

The ESSO WASHINGTON slid down the ways on February 15, 1957, the newest of the 110 ocean-going tankers in the Esso fleets.

She can carry 318,000 barrels of oil . . . 13 million gallons. But that's just a drop in the bucket compared with the 40 billion gallons that Jersey Standard affiliates delivered to customers last year.

As economies expand . . . as populations grow . . . as people live better, oil must provide more and more energy to power factories, to fuel farm machinery, to drive ships and planes and motor vehicles, to heat and light homes and offices.

Last year we supplied more than twice the oil we did ten years ago. During 1956 alone, sales rose 8 per cent. This year our customers will need still more.

It's a big job . . . and it requires vast amounts of costly equipment. As our Annual Report to shareholders points out, we spent $1,083,000,000 last year searching for oil and gas and paying for such things as tankers, pipelines and refineries. And in 1957, we plan to spend another $1,250,000,000 to find, produce and deliver the oil people will be needing tomorrow . . . and ten and twenty years from now.

Because Jersey Standard is willing and able to make such investments and because our operations are efficient, we make a profit. In 1956 it was $808,535,000. About half of it went back into the business to help pay for the new facilities.

Our successful year was good news for the 403,000 shareholders who own the company . . . they got dividends of $2.10 per share on the money they invested.

It was good news for our 156,000 employees . . . whose wages and benefits came to $906,000,000.

It was good news for governments. Operating and income taxes, import duties, consumer taxes and other payments from our operations brought to the United States and other governments a record $2,171,000,000. That was five times the dividends to shareholders, more than double the payroll and benefits to employees.

Best of all, our operations were good news for the people of the free world, who rely heavily on the energy of oil for their economic and social progress.

In this, our 75th anniversary year, we intend to continue our efforts to remain successful, profitable and growing, in order to serve people well.

If you would like a copy of our 1956 Annual Report to shareholders, please write us at Room 1626, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York 20, N. Y.

Bums Topple Bucs With 14 Hits, 6-2

PITTSBURGH, April 27 (AP) — Don Newcombe, flashing the spark that helped him win 27 games last year, pitched 9-hit ball, scored one of the runs and batted in two more today as the Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2 to bring big Newk his first victory of the season.

The big right hander never was in serious trouble. He struck out three batters.

It was Newcombe's second start of the season. He was in superb shape today, showing no sign of tiring as he went the distance.

The big right hander was in back of Don Zimmer in crossing the plate in the second inning when Gino Cimoli cracked a two-run single to open the scoring.

The Dodgers jumped on Ronnie Kline for four hits in the third inning, wacked him for two more hits and a run in each the fourth and fifth inning, before he went to the shower.

The Dodgers collected 14 hits off of five Pirate pitchers — one a triple by Duke Snider who also batted in one of the runs with a long fly in center field earlier in the game.

Sox Nip Yanks, 2-1

Two Unearned Runs Provide Boston's Win

NEW YORK, April 27 (UP)— The surprising Boston Red Sox whipped the New York Yankees, 2-1, today with a pair of unearned runs to extend their winning streak to five games.

It was a tough loss for Bobby Shantz, making his first official start in a Yankee uniform. The little left-hander held the Red Sox to eight hits but his Yankee teammates made only five hits off Tom Brewer and his reliever in the ninth, Ike Delock.

Third baseman Billy Martin's error on Frank Malzone's grounder in the first inning set up the first Boston run. Billy Klaus advanced Malzone to third with a single to right, and then Ted Williams drove in the run with a hit to center.

Shortstop Gil McDougald's error paved the way for Boston's second run in the third. Malzone drew one of four bases on balls off Shantz to start the inning and was trapped off first until McDougald threw wildly past first baseman Bill Skowron. Malzone stopped at second on Klaus' single to left, moved to third on a walk to Williams and scored as Dick Gernert grounded into a force out.

The Yankees got their run in the first when Brewer ran into control trouble. Hank Bauer opened with a broken-bat single over Brewer's head and went to second on Mickey Mantle's hit to right. Yogi Berra forced Mantle, Bauer advancing to third. Skowron and McDougald then worked Brewer for walks to force in the run.

83RD TURF CLASSIC

Colorful Field For Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (AP)— The 83rd running of the colorful Kentucky Derby at ancient Churchill Downs shaped up today as one of the most interesting races in many years. Kentucky hardboots lean toward the Calumet farm pair of Gen. Duke and Iron Leige, but admit at least five colts could capture the famous mile and one quarter thoroughbred classic.

The lineup for the $125,000 - added event next Saturday at this old cavalry post may not gel until after the one mile Derby Trial Tuesday. However, a field of around 10—give or take a couple —may be locked in the automatic starting gate at 3:30 p.m. CST post-time.

Interest in the run for the roses has been steadily mounting due to a series of four big Florida races last winter. Racing fans, at the track and over television, have seen Gen. Duke and the Wheatley stable's Bold Ruler each win a pair from the other.

The Derby will be the rubber match, and although the Calumet entry and Bold Ruler will get the majority of play at the parimutuel windows, something else might emerge in the winner's circle.

Bold River ran a spectacular race April 20, just getting up in the final stride to grab a nose decision over Gallant Man in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica in New York. The Wood distance is a mile and one eighth, and it was the first time Gallant Man — owned by Ralph Lowe of Midland, Tex.—ever had tried more than seven furlongs. He made Bold Ruler, owned by Mrs. Henry Cargenie Phipps, Palm Beach, Fla., and New York, break the track record to win.

The fifth colt receiving close scrutiny in the Blue Grass country is a well-traveled Kentucky-bred named Round Table. He won the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland Thursday in track record time for a mile and an eighth. Round Table, winning by six lengths, was timed in 1:47 2-5.

Round Table was bred by the Claiborne farm and sold in Florida last winter to Travis M. Kerr, Oklahoma oilman, for a reported $175,000. The colt was flown to California and finished third in the Santa Anita Derby, then easily won the Bay Meadows April 6. He was flown to Kentucky a few days later.

Others being considered as possible starters by Col. Bill Corum, Downs' president, include the Ada L. Rice pair of Indian Creek and Man Up Stairs, T. A. Grissom's Shan Pac, Clifford Lussky's Federal Hill, S. Miller's Better Bee, and the Cain Hoy stable pair of One-Eyed King and Lucky Dip.

However, the big interest will be in the Bold Ruler-Gen. Duke rivalry. In late January Bold Ruler equalled the Hialeah track record for seven furlongs and defeated Gen. Duke by 4½ lengths in the Bahamas Stakes. Two weeks later Gen. Duke snatched a head decision over Bold Ruler in the Everglades. On March 2 Bold Ruler eighth record, winning the Flamingo broke the Hialeah mile and one go Derby at Gulfstream Park, and this time Mrs. Gene Markey's colt broke the track record and equalled the world standard for a mile and one eighth, whipping Bold Ruler by a length and a half. In the last three races, Iron Liege finished third.

Iron Liege, Federal Hill and Round Table also have tremendous speed. Iron Liege has broken one track record and equalled another. Federal Hill equalled the track record winning the Louisiana Derby at the Fair Grounds, then cracked a world record for 6½ furlongs at Gulfstream. Round Table ran the fastest mile and one sixteenth by a 3-year-old in the history of Bay Meadows.

Calumet, of Lexington, Ky., has won five derbies, more than any other establishment. The late Warren Wright owned Calumet the first four times the stable won with Whirlaway, Pensive, Citation and Ponder. Mrs. Wright, now Mrs. Markey, owned Hill Gail, the 1952 winner.

Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim of New York, owner of the Cain Hoy stable, had the 1953 winner when Dark Star upset the great Native Dancer.

Mrs. Phipps has tried three times without success, but her trainer, 82-year-old Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, saddled three winners for the Belair Stud. They were Gallant Fox, Omaha and Johnstown. Mr. Fitz will be on hand when Bold Ruler attempts to give the east another Derby hero. It will be his first Louisville Derby visit since 1942.

Willie Molter, trainer of Round Table, saddled the 1954 winner, Determine, for Andy Crevolin of California.

Eddie Arcaro, winner of five derbies for another record, rides Bold Ruler, with Willie Hartack on Gen. Duke and Dave Erb aboard Iron Liege. Last May Erb won the Derby with the D. and H. stable's Needles, and Hartack finished second with Calumet's Fabius. Hartack and Erb now are in cahoots. On the other hand, Arcaro, who piloted Whirlaway, Citation and Hill Gail for Calumet, will be out to stop the Devil's red and blue silks this time.

Ben Jones, who saddled six winners, is now the Calumet general manager and his son, Jimmy will do the honors this time. Ben had five for Calumet and his sixth was the Woolford farm's Lawrin in 1938.

The usual Derby crowd of around 100,000 is expected, and many visitors already are on hand for the Derby Open Golf Tournament In addition there is a week-long list of exhibitions, parades, parties, the Friday night fight between Joey Maxim and Eddie Machen, and then the big blowout on Saturday.

Braves Beat Reds With Burdette, 5-4

CINCINNATI, April 27 (AP) — There wasn't even the slightest sign of a protest tonight as fidgety Lew Burdette survived trouble several times and hurled the Milwaukee Braves to a 5-4 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs.

Only ten days ago Burdette was accused by Redleg Manager Birdie Tebbetts of being a "cheating spitballer" and a crowd of 23,816 turned out tonight in threatening weather to see what would happen when they came together again.

Burdette was operating under the eye of a slow motion movie camera, set up by Redleg General Manager Gabe Paul in an effort to detect whether Burdette actually throws the illegal spitball.

His victory tonight was nothing unusual. It was his ninth straight triumph over Cincinnati, in a series dating back to 1955, and it was Milwaukee's fifth victory over the Redlegs this season without a defeat.

A's Check Chisox In Last Frame, 3-2

KANSAS CITY, April 27 (AP) — Jim Pisoni lined a single off relief pitcher Dixie Howell with one out in the ninth tonight, scoring Hal Smith for the Kansas City Athletics' first victory of the season off the Chicago White Sox, 3-2.

The Sox had taken four straight off the As.

Howell relieved starter Dick Donovan with one out in the ninth, the score 2-1 and the A's Harry Simpson on second base. Simpson had singled and adanced on a sacrifice by Lou Skizas.

Smith bashed a single off Luis Aparicio's glove to score Simpson with the tying run and leave the issue up to Howell. Pisoni's single into left field sent Smith scampering home.

Virgil Trucks, who pitched the last two innings, was the winner. Alex Kellner, veteran A's lefthander, went out for a pinch hitter in the seventh after holding the Sox to four hits and a single run.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Although Coach Cecil Pirkey, new head man of athletics at West Monroe High School, has been on the job nearly a month, the general public of this area will be afforded an opportunity to meet the new Rebel chieftan tomorrow night when the West Monroe Quarterback Club presents Coach Pirkey at a chicken spaghetti supper scheduled for 7:30 o'clock at the school cafeteria.

The gathering promises to be the biggest of its kind ever held in West Monroe with around 1,000 Rebel boosters expected. Certainly J. R. "Dick" Bell, Quarterback president; Robert C. Ervin, publicity chief; and their various committees have done a fine job of promoting the supper and it'll be through no fault of theirs if the attendance lags.

The Pirkey introductory supper has a two-fold purpose. In addition to getting the fans acquainted with the new coach who takes his bow in Louisiana's tripe-A circuit this fall, the fete will serve to help raise funds to conduct a training camp for the Rebels next August. The reorganized athletic department also is due to have its own football stadium ready for dedication this fall. Work on the stadium is now progressing rapidly with most of the metal superstructure already in place for the grandstand.

Success of tomorrow's supper will determine the success of the football camp, considered a necessity in this day and time if you're to keep pace with your rivals. Tickets for the supper are $1.50 per plate for adults and 75 cents for students.

Ruston's "Dub" Jones, former Tulane football great and ex-pro performer with the Cleveland Browns, will be guest speaker for the occasion, and Lou Daniels will be master of ceremonies.

Many committees—chicken, cake, salad, and the like—were set up to fill supper requirements, and the list of persons striving for the success of Pirkey's coming-out party is imposing. They assure their jobs well done.

In addition to President Bell and Ervin, those actively engaged in promotion of the event as leaders in various duties include Mr. and Mrs. John McCormick, Hobson Norris, Oliver Cloyd, Haze Gentry, Fred Salley, Joe Ford, Mrs. J. F. Jones, C. C. Bell Jr., Forrest Jarvis, Dunbar Hunt, Carner Cooper, Henry Colbert, F. C. McConnell, Herman Chapman, Walter Dean, George Wyle, Mrs. Gladys Seymour, Lawrence Wilson, John Watson, Johnny Scalia, all other members of the Quarterback Club, plus the Band Boosters, and the Rebelettes.

A lot of "just plain Rebel fans" who don't belong to any of the organizations but have the welfare of their school's athletics at heart will do their share to support the supper.

Villanova Claims Penn Relays Title

PHILADELPHIA, April 27 (AP)— Villanova's national indoor track champions walked off with the Relays today. A breath - taking mile victory as the sun was setting finally pulled the Wildcats ahead of Texas and Manhattan.

Going into the last of eight major relays, Villanova, Texas and Manhattan each had won two of the coveted titles, while little Winston-Salem, N. C., Teachers had taken one.

This was the showdown among the three giants of the mammoth carnival which lured more than 3,000 athletes to the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin Field.

Ed Collymore and Charlie Stead ran the first two legs for Villanova and they appeared well - heaten. Manhattan and Texas were battling for the lead, with the Wildcats a good 15 yards back.

But Olympic 1,500-meter champion Ron Delany, who had anchored Villanova's other two victories, took over and made up about 13 yards. He handed the stick to Charlie Jenkins, the Olympic 400-meter champion. Stride by stride Jenkins overtook Manhattan's Dick Simmons and Eddie Southern of Texas until he grabbed the lead. While he had those two licked, Morgan State's Bob McMurray came zipping around on the outside and Jenkins had to fight him off in the final strides.

The winning time was 3:12.7. Southern overtook McMurray in the last yard for second. Manhattan was fourth. Jenkins' anchor leg was 46.4, but McMurray, who came from far back, was even faster at 45.9.

Villanova's other two victories were in the distance medley (10:10.7 yesterday) and the sprint medley relay (3:24.6).

Texas won both its specialties, the quarter-mile and half-mile relays. The Longhorns set world records of 39.9 and 1:22.7, respectively, in these two events in the past three weeks and the sun-baked crowd of 31,000 half-expected the marks to be lowered further.

As it turned out, the Texans tied meet records in each. They ran the quarter in 41.4, tying a standard set by a Texas team back in 1936. Their 1:25.4 half-mile tied the record held jointly by North Texas Teachers, Manhattan and Cornell.

Filly Pillow Talk Winner Of Oaks Prep

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (AP) —Pillow Talk, a long shot, came on in the stretch to win the featured $10,000-added Oaks Prep today as the spring racing meet opened at Churchill Downs.

Responding to strong handling of jockey Kenny Church, the 3-year-old daughter of Mr. Trouble covered the six furlongs in 1:11-1-5 over a fast track.

The odds - on favorite in the race for 3-year-old fillies, Nile Lily, finished third behind Great Pride.

Pillow Talk, coupled with Salamance, was entered by Hal Price Headley. She overtook Nile Lily, who had led all the way, as the field of 11 turned for home.

Pillow Talk returned $45, $12, and $4.40; Great Pride, coupled with Pamper Me., paid $5.60 and $3, and Nile Lily's payoff was $2.60.

Some 19,000 fans watched the Oaks Prep, considered a stepping stone to the $35,000-added Kentucky Oaks, a mile and a sixteenth dash for 3-year-old fillies, to be run here Friday.

Other races coming up include the Derby Prep Tuesday, the Churchill Downs Handicap Thursday, and the race-of-races, the $125,000 - added Kentucky Derby Saturday.

Sox Nip Yanks, 2-1

Two Unearned Runs Provide Boston's Win

NEW YORK, April 27 (UP)—The surprising Boston Red Sox whipped the New York Yankees, 2-1, today with a pair of unearned runs to extend their winning streak to five games.

It was a tough loss for Bobby Shantz, making his first official start in a Yankee uniform. The little left-hander held the Red Sox to eight hits but his Yankee teammates made only five hits off Tom Brewer and his reliever in the ninth, Ike Delock.

Third baseman Billy Martin's error on Frank Malzone's grounder in the first inning set up the first Boston run. Billy Klaus advanced Malzone to third with a single to right, and then Ted Williams drove in the run with a hit to center.

Shortstop Gil McDougald's error paved the way for Boston's second run in the third. Malzone drew one of four bases on balls off Shantz to start the inning and was trapped off first until McDougald threw wildly past first baseman Bill Skowron. Malzone stopped at second on Klaus' single to left, moved to third on a walk to Williams and scored as Dick Gernert grounded into a force out.

The Yankees got their run in the first when Brewer ran into control trouble. Hank Bauer opened with a broken-bat single over Brewer's head and went to second on Mickey Mantle's hit to right. Yogi Berra forced Mantle, Bauer advancing to third. Skowron and McDougald then worked Brewer for walks to force in the run.

1ST FOR NEWK

Bums Topple Bucs With 14 Hits, 6-2

PITTSBURGH, April 27 (AP) — Don Newcombe, flashing the spark that helped him win 27 games last year, pitched 9-hitball, scored one of the runs and batted in two more today as the Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2 to bring big Newk his first victory of the season.

The big right hander never was in serious trouble. He struck out three batters.

It was Newcombe's second start of the season. He was in superb shape today, showing no sign of tiring as he went the distance.

The big right hander was in back of Don Zimmer in crossing the plate in the second inning when Gino Cimoli cracked a two-run single to open the scoring.

The Dodgers jumped on Ronnie Kline for four hits in the third inning, wacked him for two more hits and a run in each the fourth and fifth inning, before he went to the shower.

The Dodgers collected 14 hits off of five Pirate pitchers — one a triple by Duk Snider who also batted in one of the runs with a long fly in center field earlier in the game.

83RD TURF CLASSIC

Colorful Field For Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (AP)—The 83rd running of the colorful Kentucky Derby at ancient Churchill Downs shaped up today as one of the most interesting races in many years. Kentucky hardboots lean toward the Calumet farm pair of Gen. Duke and Iron Leige, but admit at least five colts could capture the famous mile and one quarter throroughbred classic.

The lineup for the $125,000 - added event next Saturday at this old cavalry post may not gel until after the one mile Derby Trial Tuesday. However, a field of around 10—give or take a couple —may be locked in the automatic starting gate at 3:30 p.m. CST post-time.

Interest in the run for the roses has been steadily mounting due to a series of four big Florida races last winter. Racing fans, at the track and over television, have seen Gen. Duke and the Wheatley stable's Bold Ruler each win a pair from the other.

The Derby will be the rubber match, and although the Calumet entry and Bold Ruler will get the majority of play at the parimutuel windows, something else might emerge in the winner's circle.

Bold River ran a spectacular race April 20, just getting up in the final stride to grab a nose decision over Gallant Man in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica in New York. The Wood distance is a mile and one eighth, and it was the first time Gallant Man — owned by Ralph Lowe of Midland, Tex.—ever had tried more than seven furlongs. He made Bold Ruler, owned by Mrs. Henry Cargenie Phipps, Palm Beach, Fla., and New York, break the track record to win.

The fifth colt receiving close scrutiny in the Blue Grass country is a well-traveled Kentucky-bred named Round Table. He won the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland Thursday in track record time for a mile and an eighth. Round Table, winning by six lengths, was timed in 1:47 2-5.

Round Table was bred by the Claiborne farm and sold in Florida last winter to Travis M. Kerr, Oklahoma oilman, for a reported $175,000. The colt was flown to California and finished third in the Santa Anita Derby, then easily won the Bay Meadows April 6. He was flown to Kentucky a few days later.

Others being considered as possible starters by Col. Bill Corum, Downs' president, include the Ada L. Rice pair of Indian Creek and Man Up Stairs, T. A. Grissom's Shan Pac, Clifford Lussky's Federal Hill, S. Miller's Better Bee, and the Cain Hoy stable pair of One-Eyed King and Lucky Dip.

However, the big interest will be in the Bold Ruler-Gen. Duke rivalry. In late January Bold Ruler equalled the Hialeah track record for seven furlongs and defeated Gen. Duke by 4½ lengths in the Bahamas Stakes. Two weeks later Gen. Duke snatched a head decision over Bold Ruler in the Everglades. On March 2 Bold Ruleighth record, winning the Flamingo Derby at Gulfstream Park, and this time Mrs. Gene Markey's colt broke the track record and equalled the world standard for a mile and one eighth, whipping Bold Ruler by a length and a half. In the last three races, Iron Liege finished third.

Iron Liege, Federal Hill and Round Table also have tremendous speed, Iron Liege has broken one track record and equalled another. Federal Hill equalled the track record winning the Louisiana Derby at the Fair Grounds, then cracked a world record for 6½ furlongs at Gulfstream. Round Table ran the fastest mile and one sixteenth by a 3-year-old in the history of Bay Meadows.

Calumet, of Lexington, Ky., has won five derbies, more than any other establishment. The late Warren Wright owned Calumet the first four times the stable won with Whirlaway, Pensive, Citation and Ponder. Mrs. Wright, now Mrs. Markey, owned Hill Gail, the 1952 winner.

Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim of New York, owner of the Cain Hoy stable, had the 1953 winner when Dark Star upset the great Native Dancer.

Mrs. Phipps has tried three times without success, but her trainer, 82-year-old Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, saddled three winners for the Belair Stud. They were Gallant Fox, Omaha and Johnstown. Mr. Fitz will be on hand when Bold Ruler attempts to give the east another Derby hero. It will be his first Louisville Derby visit since 1942.

Willie Molter, trainer of Round Table, saddled the 1954 winner, Determine, for Andy Crevolin of California.

Eddie Arcaro, winner of five derbies for another record, rides Bold Ruler, with Willie Hartack on Gen. Duke and Dave Erb aboard Iron Liege. Last May Erb won the Derby with the D. and H. stable's Needles, and Hartack finished second with Calumet's Fabius. Hartack and Erb now are in cahoots. On the other hand, Arcaro, who piloted Whirlaway, Citation and Hill Gail for Calumet, will be out to stop the Devil's red and blue silks this time.

Ben Jones, who saddled six winners, is now the Calumet general manager and his son, Jimmy will do the honors this time. Ben had five for Calumet and his sixth was the Woolford farm's Lawrin in 1938.

The usual Derby crowd of around 100,000 is expected, and many visitors already are on hand for the Derby Open Golf Tournament In addition there is a week-long list of exhibitions, parades, parties, the Friday night fight between Joey Maxim and Eddie Machen, and then the big blowout on Saturday.

Braves Beat Reds With Burdette, 5-4

CINCINNATI, April 27 (AP) — There wasn't even the slightest sign of a protest tonight as fidgety Lew Burdette survived trouble several times and hurled the Milwaukee Braves to a 5-4 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs.

Only ten days ago Burdette was accused by Redleg Manager Birdie Tebbetts of being a "cheating spitballer" and a crowd of 23,816 turned out tonight in threatening weather to see what would happen when they came together again.

Burdette was operating under the eye of a slow motion movie camera, set up by Redleg General Manager Gabe Paul in an effort to detect whether Burdette actually throws the illegal spitball.

His victory tonight was nothing unusual. It was his ninth straight triumph over Cincinnati, in a series dating back to 1955, and it was Milwaukee's fifth victory over the Redlegs this season without a defeat.

KANSAS CITY, April 27 (AP) — Jim Pisoni lined a single off relief pitcher Dixie Howell with one out in the ninth tonight, scoring Hal Smith for the Kansas City Athletics' first victory of the season off the Chicago White Sox, 3-2.

The Sox had taken four straight off the As.

Howell had relieved starter Dick Donovan with one out in the ninth, the score 2-1 and the A's Harry Simpson on second base. Simpson had singled and adanced on a sacrifice by Lou Skizas.

Smith bashed a single off Luis Apricio's glove to score Simpson with the tying run and leave the issue up to Howell. Pisoni's single into left field sent Smith scampering home.

Virgil Trucks, who pitched the last two innings, was the winner. Alex Kellner, veteran A's lefthander, went out for a pinch hitter in the seventh after holding the Sox to four hits and a single run.

Villanova Claims Penn Relays Title

PHILADELPHIA, April 27 (AP)—Villanova's national indoor track champions walked off with the Relays today. A breath - taking mile victory as the sun was setting finally pulled the Wildcats ahead of Texas and Manhattan.

Going into the last of eight major relays, Villanova, Texas and Manhattan each had won two of the coveted titles, while little Winston-Salem, N. C., Teachers had taken one.

This was the showdown among the three giants of the mammoth carnival which lured more than 3,000 athletes to the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin Field.

Ed Collymore and Charlie Stead ran the first two legs for Villanova and they appeared well - beaten. Manhattan and Texas were battling for the lead, with the Wildcats a good 15 yards back.

But Olympic 1,500-meter champion Ron Delany, who had anchored Villanova's other two victories, took over and made up about 13 yards. He handed the stick to Charlie Jenkins, the Olympic 400-meter champion. Stride by stride Jenkins overtook Manhattan's Dick Simmons and Eddie Southern of Texas until he grabbed the lead. While he had those two licked, Morgan State's Bob McMurray came zipping around on the outside and Jenkins had to fight him off in the final strides.

The winning time was 3:12.7. Southern overtook McMurray in the last yard for second. Manhattan was fourth. Jenkins' anchor leg was 46.4, but McMurray, who came from far back, was even faster at 45.9.

Villanova's other two victories were in the distance medley (10:10.7 yesterday) and the sprint medley relay (3:24.6).

Texas won both its specialties, the quarter-mile and half-mile relays. The Longhorns set world records of 39.9 and 1:22.7, respectively, in these two events in the past three weeks and the sun-baked crowd of 31,000 half-expected the marks to be lowered further.

As it turned out, the Texans tied meet records in each. They ran the quarter in 41.4, tying a standard set by a Texas team back in 1936. Their 1:25.4 half-mile tied the record held jointly by North Texas Teachers, Manhattan and Cornell.

Filly Pillow Talk Winner Of Oaks Prep

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (AP)—Pillow Talk, a long shot, came on in the stretch to win the featured $10,000-added Oaks Prep today as the spring racing meet opened at Churchill Downs.

Responding to strong handling of jockey Kenny Church, the 3-year-old daughter of Mr. Trouble covered the six furlongs in 1:11-1-5 over a fast track.

The odds - on favorite in the race for 3-year-old fillies, Nile Lily, finished third behind Great Pride.

Pillow Talk, coupled with Salamance, was entered by Hal Price Headley. She overtook Nile Lily, who had led all the way, as the field of 11 turned for home.

Pillow Talk returned $45, $12, and $4.40; Great Pride, coupled with Pamper Me., paid $5.60 and $3, and Nile Lily's payoff was $2.60.

Some 19,000 fans watched the Oaks Prep, considered a stepping stone to the $35,000-added Kentucky Oaks, a mile and a sixteenth dash for 3-year-old fillies, to be run here Friday.

Other races coming up include the Derby Prep Tuesday, the Churchill Downs Handicap Thursday, and the race-of-races, the $125,000 - added Kentucky Derby Saturday.

EQUALS SIME MARK

Morrow Reclaims Drake Dash Mark

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 27 (UP)—Olympic sprint champion Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian tied the Drake Relays record of :09.4 today ain the 100-yard dash to win back the title he lost last year to Dave Sime.

Morrow thus avenged the first defeat of his collegiate career suffered here last year in a pouring rain.

The fleet Olympic star pulled away from Ira Murchison of Western Michigan at the halfway mark and won with three yards to spare.

Sime set the :09.4 relays mark last year in upsetting Morrow, and Morrow in turn had to match that record today to beat his Olympic teammate, Murchison.

Willie Stevens of Tennessee A&I got the relays off to a flying start by setting a new drake record in the opening event—the 120-yard high hurdles.

Stevens flew down the track in :13.8, easily eclipsing the old record of :14.1 set by Harrison Dillard of Baldwin Wallace in 1947 and 1948.

Charles Batch of Missouri also beat Dillard's record in finishing second in :14.0. Gene O'Connor of Kansas State was third.

Missouri set a new American collegiate record in the 480-yard shuttle high hurdle relays in :58.4, breaking the 17-year-old record of :58.6 set by Texas.

There was no doubt about the record. Three judges clocked Missouri at :58.3 and three at :58.4.

The new champions are John McIntyre, Karl Englund, Henry Weibe and Charles Batch.

Abilene Christian celebrated its promotion into the university class by setting a new mark the quarter-mile relay in :40.5. Anchorman Morrow capped the run, which gave Abilene Christian both the college and university records at the Drake Relays. The old mark was :41.0 set by Texas in 1941.

Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain surprised by tying for first place in the high jump. The 7-foot basketball star from Kansas and Don Stewart of Southern Methodist cleared the bar at 6 feet 6 1-4 inches. The relays mark, however, is 6-8 set by Pete Watkins of Texas A&M in 1943.

JACK O'BRIAN AT KALLIO'S

MARTIN AWARD, TOO

Clement To Speak At Wildlife Meet

F. Lamar Clement, director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, will be the featured speaker here Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the Ouachita Unit of the Wild Life Federation.

Clement will be featured on a program that has been labeled "one of the best ever held here," according to president A. S. (Bud) Tidwell.

The meeting, scheduled for the Virginia Hotel at 7:30 p.m., will also feature Col. V. E. Smith, chief enforcement agent of the Louisiana Forestry Commission.

Clement will speak on the Louisiana wildlife activities and will conduct an open session at which time questions will be raised from the floor.

Tidwell said the public throughout northeast Louisiana is invited to attend the meeting.

Also highlighting the meeting will be the presentation of the annual Floyd Martin Memorial award to the outstanding member of the Ouachita unit during 1956.

Tidwell said duck hunters will find a special interest in the meeting with the demonstratnon of an "inexpensive, practical" duck blind by Hilton Hazell of Monroe.

Hazell will demonstrate the construction of the blind and will give blue prints of its design to those hunters interested in building such a blind.

Unit member Jack Rushing will receive a state award for being second highest in Louisiana for soliciting members in the federation. Rushing totalled 188.

Tidwell said the unit will conduct its regular business and will also discuss the Hog Bayou proposal of providing a means for fish to return from Hog Bayou into Bayou DeSiard.

John Zufall, a representative of the National Rifleman's Association, will give a demonstration on firearms and the meeting will be opened with the showing of a film—"Wildlife on Review."

Tidwell said for those hunters interested in remaining after the meeting has officially closed, the unit will show a second film — "Waterfowl in Slow Motion."

George Curtis After Title

George Curtis get a chance to succeed his brother, Jack, as Louisiana's state heavyweight champion here Monday night at Kallio,s Areana when he battles Prince Emir for the gleaming title belt.

Neither of the participants presently reigns as the titleholder with Commissioner Dave Silverstein holding the belt following a mix-up in which Jack dropped the title last week.

Substituting for Antone Leone, Emir slammed the champ,s head and shoulder into a ring post and used a hammer lock to force a submission from the well-known state kingpin. Silverstein, however, refused to name Emir the titalist on the grounds that Curtis was outside of the ring when he was injured.

With Jack already under contract to wrestle elsewhere this Monday and Silverstein placing the belt on the block for all comers, George was the Curtis family's lone hope of retaining the throne.

Emir, who many think should have been awarded the title, had this to say about his second try for the championship, "Everyone there last week knew that I was the new champ of Louisiana. I whipped Curtis in a title match, why shouldn't I be champion. As for George trying to keep me from winning it this week, I'm really not worried. I took care of him and his nephew in that tag match last Monday and it won't be a problem to whip him again."

A 90-minute time limit has been placed on the battle with two falls needed to win.

Demon Jack O.Brian of Death Valley makes his local debut in the evening,s semi-final against Joe McCarthey, St. Joe, Mo., in a 60-minute limited duel. McCarthey will be returning to the Monroe mat for the first time in over a year to face the well-seasoned grappler from the Houston, Tex., area.

Local talent gets on the card in the opening match when Bill Barney of West Monroe encounters Phil Brummett from Alexandria. A 45-minute bound has been placed on this affair.

Regular admission prices will be charged with Promoter Gus Kallio promising that his newly-installed fans will keep the expected capacity crowd comfortable throughout the evening.

EQUALS SIME MARK

Morrow Reclaims Drake Dash Mark

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 27 (UP)—Olympic sprint champion Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian tied the Drake Relays record of :09.4 today ain the 100-yard dash to win back the title he lost last year to Dave Sime.

Morrow thus avenged the first defeat of his collegiate career suffered here last year in a pouring rain.

The fleet Olympic star pulled away from Ira Murchison of Western Michigan at the halfway mark and won with three yards to spare.

Sime set the :09.4 relays mark last year in upsetting Morrow, and Morrow in turn had to match that record today to beat his Olympic teammate, Murchison.

Willie Stevens of Tennessee A&I got the relays off to a flying start by setting a new drake record in the opening event—the 120-yard high hurdles.

Stevens flew down the track in :13.8, easily eclipsing the old record of :14.1 set by Harrison Dillard of Baldwin Wallace in 1947 and 1948.

Clement To Speak At Wildlife Meet

F. Lamar Clement, director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, will be the featured speaker here Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the Ouachita Unit of the Wild Life Federation.

Clement will be featured on a program that has been labeled "one of the best ever held here," according to president A. S. (Bud) Tidwell.

The meeting, scheduled for the Virginia Hotel at 7:30 p.m., will also feature Col. V. E. Smith, chief enforcement agent of the Louisiana Forestry Commission.

Clement will speak on the Louisiana wildlife activities and will conduct an open session at which time questions will be raised from the floor.

Tidwell said the public throughout northeast Louisiana is invited to attend the meeting.

Also highlighting the meeting will be the presentation of the annual Floyd Martin Memorial award to the outstanding member of the Ouachita unit during 1956.

Tidwell said duck hunters will find a special interest in the meeting with the demonstratnon of an "inexpensive, practical" duck blind by Hilton Hazell of Monroe.

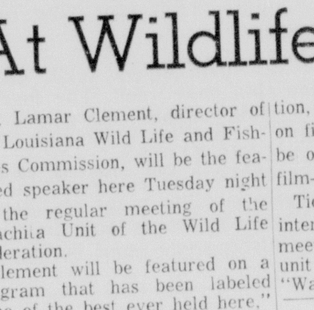
Hazell will demonstrate the construction of the blind and will give blue prints of its design to those hunters interested in building such a blind.

Unit member Jack Rushing will receive a state award for being second highest in Louisiana for soliciting members in the federation. Rushing totalled 188.

Tidwell said the unit will conduct its regular business and will also discuss the Hog Bayou proposal of providing a means for fish to return from Hog Bayou into Bayou DeSiard.

John Zufall, a representative of the National Rifleman's Association, will give a demonstration on firearms and the meeting will be opened with the showing of a film—"Wildlife on Review."

Tidwell said for those hunters interested in remaining after the meeting has officially closed, the unit will show a second film — "Waterfowl in Slow Motion."



The schedule of solunar periods has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The major periods begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The minor periods are of somewhat shorter duration.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 27 (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates will play the Columbus Jets of the International League here May 27 in an exhibition baseball game.

George Curtis After Title

George Curtis get a chance to succeed his brother, Jack, as Louisiana's state heavyweight champion here Monday night at Kallio,s Areana when he battles Prince Emir for the gleaming title belt.

Neither of the participants presently reigns as the titleholder with Commissioner Dave Silverstein holding the belt following a mix-up in which Jack dropped the title last week.

Substituting for Antone Leone, Emir slammed the champ,s head and shoulder into a ring post and used a hammer lock to force a submission from the well-known state kingpin. Silverstein, however, refused to name Emir the titalist on the grounds that Curtis was outside of the ring when he was injured.

With Jack already under contract to wrestle elsewhere this Monday and Silverstein placing the belt on the block for all comers, George was the Curtis family's lone hope of retaining the throne.

Emir, who many think should have been awarded the title, had this to say about his second try for the championship, "Everyone there last week knew that I was the new champ of Louisiana. I whipped Curtis in a title match, why shouldn't I be champion. As for George trying to keep me from winning it this week, I'm really not worried. I took care of him and his nephew in that tag match last Monday and it won't be a problem to whip him again."

A 90-minute time limit has been placed on the battle with two falls needed to win.

Demon Jack O.Brian of Death Valley makes his local debut in the evening,s semi-final against Joe McCarthey, St. Joe, Mo., in a 60-minute limited duel. McCarthey will be returning to the Monroe mat for the first time in over a year to face the well-seasoned grappler from the Houston, Tex., area.

Local talent gets on the card in the opening match when Bill Barney of West Monroe encounters Phil Brummett from Alexandria. A 45-minute bound has been placed on this affair.

Regular admission prices will be charged with Promoter Gus Kallio promising that his newly-installed fans will keep the expected capacity crowd comfortable throughout the evening.

Rain Ends 2nd Battle With Tribe Leading

NATCHITOCHES, La., April 27 (Special) — Northeast State was leading 2-0 in the bottom half of the fifth inning in the second game of a double header with Northwestern when a heavy rain caused the game to be called off.

Northwestern, at the time, had two men on base and no one out.

In the first game the Demons won by a score of 2-1 in nine innings.

Northeast runs in the second game came when Gary Huckaby blasted a home run over the center field fence, scoring Jackie Brooks from second base. Brooks had stolen second after being walked by N.S.C. lefthander Larry Reeves.

On the mount for Northeast was righthander Jim Mahoney who had allowed the Demons three hits before "the bottom fell out." One of the hits was a double to left field by "Red" McNew.

Pitcher Morris Bruce, a lefthander, batted in the winning run in the last half of the ninth inning as Northwestern took the first game.

Center fielder Jerry Cloutier scored both runs for the Demons, first in the bottom of the seventh when catcher Harry Fontenot singled, bringing Cloutier home from second and in the ninth on Bruce's hunt.

Jim Laudadio, Northeast catcher batted in the Indians' lone run in the second when he hit a long fly to left field, scoring Jim Mock from third.

Bruce and righthander "Bo" Laird engaged in a hurlers' duel in a contest which was constantly threatened by rain. The game went into extra innings when NSC tied it up in the last of the seventh.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

Match Game Championship

The city match game championships began this week. E. B. Peddy, last year's champ and a high finalist in the state matches, is seeded and will not bowl until the finals.

Theo Finkbeiner, Sonny Durham, Walter Cash, Bob Creighton, Russell Bates, and Red Holley are entered in the tournament.

Other entries include Ed Villa, Al Huffman, Kenny Creighton, Bob Pace, Tommy Higgins, Bob Scott, Mack Taylor, Luke Coonrod, Mutt Carroll, Charles Walker and Bud Lyons.

Keith Moore, who is sponsoring the tournament, expects to have at least three more to join in the 18-game roll off.

Six bowlers with the highest total of pin fall will fight it out in the finals. The Peterson Point system of scoring will be used.

Another Tournament

Another interesting tournament that will be going on the last week in June, all of July, and through August 4th, is the Maxie Kosop Endurance Classic.

It is unquestionably the toughest tournament in the bowling world today. In the men's singles they bowl 40 games. The women bowl 20 games, and 20 games for the five-man team event.

The tournament is handicap—75 per cent difference of highest known average against 200 for the men and for the women 75 per cent difference of highest average against 190.

If any of you keglers are headed out Ogden, Utah, way and would like to find out more about the tournament I can give you the information.

BOWLING CHATTER .....

Casey Jones' Cloverleaf team topped Monroe's "66" three points to one this past week. The loss pushed the "66" team two points behind the league-leading Cloverleaf team.

A meeting of the Scratch League officials will be held this week to determine a bowling night and reorganization of the league. Monroe Concrete won the title last year with four teams finishing one point behind in second place.

CLEVELAND, April 27 (AP)—Lefty Herb Score cut the Detroit Tigers down with three hits and fanned 10 batters today for a Cleveland Indian victory, 2-1.

Cleveland's winning run was scored in the eighth by Al Smith, whose single had been followed by another single from the bat of Vic Wertz. The Indians had scored their first tally in the fourth, when Gene Woodling doubled to left field took third on a fly by Smith and scored on a fly by Wertz.

Cleveland made only seven hits off loser Paul Foytack and reliefer Steve Gromek, who entered in the seventh.

Score had a shutout going into the ninth when a walk to Ray Boone, a single by Bill Tuttle, a wild pitch and an infield out gave the Tigers their only run.

27 CARIBBEANS

More Latin Flavor For Major Leagues

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Big league baseball has that Latin rhythm this spring with 27 players from the Caribbean area on the rosters including five of the 16 regular shortstops.

Cuba is the heaviest contributor with 13 major leaguers, followed by Puerto Pico with six and Venezuela with three. There is one player each from Panama, Mexico, the Dominican Republic, the Virgin Islands and the Bahamas.

The New York Giants have the largest contingent from the Caribbean with five players in their rebuilding job. Ossie Virgil from the Dominican has taken over the third base job and Andre Rodgers from Nassau is the new shortstop. Ruben Gomez of Puerto Rico is the top pitcher on the club with a 2-0 record and Valmy Thomas, the new catcher from the Virgini Islands has seen limited service. Ramon Monzant, a pitcher from Venezuela who was late in reporting, is due to get into action as soon as possible.

Washington, of course, is loaded with four Cubans. Two of them, Camilio Pascual and Pedro Ramos, are regular starting pitchers. A third, Evelio Hernandez, did a fine job in his first assignment, but was chased in his second. The Senators also have a handy pinch hitter in Cuban Julio Becquer.

The shortstop regulars are Dodgers with the Giants, Chico Fernandez of Cuba with the Phillies, Willy Miranda of Cuba with Baltimore, Chico Carrasquel of Venezuela with Cleveland and Luis Aparicio of Venezuela with the Chicago White Sox.

Hector Lopez, Kansas City's third baseman from Panama, is one of the hottest. Through Wednesday's games, Lopez was hitting .344 with three home runs and eight runs batted in. He drove in six runs against Cleveland Wednesday night.

The A's also have first baseman Vic Power of Puerto Rico who has been sidelined by injuries since he was hit on the head by a thrown ball in an exhibition game. He played briefly Wednesday night for the first time.

In addition to Miranda, who is hitting a surprising .320 or thereabouts, Baltimore has Sandy Consuegra and Mike Fornieles, two Cubans, on its pitching staff.

As a result of a shuffled infield at Cleveland, Mexican Bobby Avila has shoved around to third, to fill the gap left by Al Rosen's retirement.

Minnie Minoso, still going strong after a fine year in the Cuban Winter League, is rolling along with a .368 average through Wednesday's games.

Perhaps the best of the Caribbean pitchers has yet to see action. Juan Pizarro, a highly touted Puerto Rican rookie who had a tremendous strikeout record in Class A last year, is up with Milwaukee but hasn't been used. The Braves also have Felix Mantilla, another Puerto Rican, as a utility infielder.

Pittsburgh's contingent includes two Puerto Ricans, right fielder Roberto Clements and pitcher Luis Arroyo who has lost his two starts, Ramon Mejias, a Cuban had been used in the outfield with the Pirates until he suffered a muscle spasm Tuesday at New York.

NATCHITOCHES, La., April 27 (Special) — Nor heast State was leading 2-0 in the bottom half of the fifth inning in the second gam of a double header with Northwestern when a heavy rain caused the game to be called off.

Northwestern, at the time, had two men on base and no one out.

In the first game the Demons won by a score of 2-1 in nine innings.

Northeast runs in the second game came when Gary Huckaby blasted a home run over the center field fence, scoring Jackie Brooks from second base. Brooks had stolen second after being walked by N.S.C. lefthander Larry Reeves.

On the mount for Northeast was righthander Jim Mahoney who had allowed the Demons three hits before "the bottom fell out." One of the hits as a double to left field by "Red" McNew.

Pitcher Morris Bruce, a lefthander, bunted in the winning run in the last half of the ninth inning as Northwestern took the first game.

Center fielder Jerry Cloutier scored both runs for the Demos, first in the bottom of the seventh when catcher Harry Fontenot singled, bringing Cloutier home from second and in the ninth on Bruce's bunt.

Jim Laudadio, Northeast catcher batted in the indians' lone run in the second when he hit a long fly to left field, scoring Jim Mock from third.

Bruce and righthander "Bo" Laird engaged in a hurlers' duel in a contest which was constantly threatened rain. The game went into extra innings when NSC tied it up in the last of the seventh.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

Match Game Championship

The city match game championships began this week. E. B. Peddy, last year's champ and a high finalist in the state matches, is seeded and will not bowl until the finals.

Theo Finkbeiner, Sonny Durham, Walter Cash, Bob Creighton, Russell Bates, and Red Holley are entered in the tournament.

Other entries include Ed Villa, Al Huffman, Kenny Creighton, Bob Pace, Tommy Higgins, Bob Scott, Mack Taylor, Luke Coonrod, Mutt Carroll, Charles Walker and Bud Lyons.

Keith Moore, who is sponsoring the tournament, expects to have at least three more to join in the 18-game roll off.

Six bowlers with the highest total of pin fall will fight it out in the finals. The Peterson Point system of scoring will be used.

Another Tournament

Another interesting tournament that will be going on the last week in June, all of July, and through August 4th, is the Maxie Kosop Endurance Classic.

It is unquestionably the toughest tournament in the bowling world today. In the men's singles they bowl 40 games. The women bowl 20 games, and 20 games for the five-man team event.

The tournament is handicap—75 per cent difference of highest known average against 200 for the men and for the women 75 per cent difference of highest average against 190.

If any of you keglers are headed out Ogden, Utah, way and would like to find out more about the tournament I can give you the information.

BOWLING CHATTER

The Monroe Bowling Center team copped first place in the Pioneer League, winning out over Schlitz Beer and Henderson Curb Market.

Walter Cash, Chuck Anders, Keith Moore, Dave Weber and Eddie Fleming make up the team. Congratulations on your fine bowling and good sportsmanship.

Bill Dyer tossed a big 249 game to take third place in the high game department of the Major League. Cash holds the high game for the league with a big 257.

Continental Labs slipped in its bid for the Major League lead dropping four points to the ever dangerous Standard Office Supply team.

Casey Jones' Cloverleaf team topped Monroe's "66" three points to one this past week. The loss pushed the "66" team two points behind the league-leading Cloverleaf team.

A meeting of the Scratch League officials will be held this week to determine a bowling night and reorganization of the league. Monroe Concrete won the title last year with four teams finishing one point behind in second place.

SCORE WINNER

Indians Shade Tigers, 2-1

CLEVELAND, April 27 (AP)—Lefty Herb Score cut the Detroit Tigers down with three hits and fanned 10 batters today for a Cleveland Indian victory, 2-1.

Cleveland's winning run was scored in the eighth by Al Smith, whose single had been followed by another single from the bat of Vic Wertz. With Joe Altobelli running for Wertz and rookie Roger Maris at Bat, Al Kaline dropped Maris' fly and while Altobelli was forced at second, Smith came in with the home team's second run.

The Indians had scored their first tally in the fourth, when Gene Woodling doubled to left field took third on a fly by Smith and scored on a fly by Wertz.

Cleveland made only seven hits off loser Paul Foytack and reliefer Steve Gromek, who entered in the seventh.

Score had a shutout going into the ninth when a walk to Ray Boone, a single by Bill Tuttle, a wild pitch and an infield out gave the Tigers their only run.

Campbell 3-2 Winner Over Rival Robbins

PINEHURST, N.C., April 27 (UP)—Walker Cupper Bill Campbell found security in a red-hot putter today to down defending champion Hillman Robbins Jr., 3 and 2, in the final round of the North and South amateur golf championship.

Campbell, a Huntington, W. Va., insurance salesman and father of five, had trouble with his tee shots but could do no wrong with his putter to thwart Robbins' bid too become the first champion to succeed himself in 19 years here.

Robbins, an Air Force lieutenant from Memphis, Tenn., settled down after a poor morning round that left him trailing by five holes at the midway point of the 36-hole final.

Betty Dodd, a pace-setter Friday, also shot a 75 today for third place at 218.

More Latin Flavor For Major Leagues

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Big league baseball has that Latin rhythm this spring with 27 players from the Caribbean area on the rosters including five of the 16 regular shortstops.

Cuba is the heaviest contributor with 13 major leaguers, followed by Puerto Pico with six and Venezuela with three. There is one player each from Panama, Mexico, the Dominican Republic, the Virgin Islands and the Bahamas.

The New York Giants have the largest contingent from the Caribbean with five players in their rebuilding job. Ossie Virgil from the Dominican has taken over the third base job and Andre Rodgers from Nassau is the new shortstop. Ruben Gomez of Puerto Rico is the top pitcher on the club with a 2-0 record and Valmy Thomas, the new catcher from the Virgini Islands has seen limited service. Ramon Monzant, a pitcher from Venezuela who was late in reporting, is due to get into action as soor as possible.

Washington, of course, is loaded with four Cubans. Two of them, Camilio Pascual and Pedro Ramos, are regular starting pitchers. A third, Evelio Hernandez, did a fine job in his first assignment, but was chased in his second. The Senators also have a handy pinch hitter in Cuban Julio Becquer.

The shortstop regulars are Dodgers with the Giants, Chico Fernandez of Cuba with the Phillies, Willy Miranda of Cuba with Baltimore, Chico Carrasquel of Venezuela with Cleveland and Luis Aparicio of Venezuela with the Chicago White Sox.

Hector Lopez, Kansas City's third baseman from Panama, is one of the hottest. Through Wednesday's games, Lopez was hitting .344 with three home runs and eight runs batted in. He drove in six runs against Cleveland Wednesday night.

The A's also have first baseman Vic Power of Puerto Rico who has been sidelined by injuries since he was hit on the head by a thrown ball in an exhibition game. He played briefly Wednesday night for the first time.

In addition to Miranda, who is hitting a surprising .320 or thereabouts, Baltimore has Sandy Consuegra and Mike Fornieles, two Cubans, on its pitching staff.

As a result of a shuffled infield at Cleveland, Mexican Bobby Avila has shoved around to third, to fill the gap left by Al Rosen's retirement.

Minnie Minoso, still going strong after a fine year in the Cuban Winter League, is rolling along with a .368 average through Wednesday's games.

Perhaps the best of the Caribbean pitchers has yet to see action. Juan Pizarro, a highly touted Puerto Rican rookie who had a tremendous strikeout record in Class A last year, is up with Milwaukee but hasn't been used. The Braves also have Felix Mantilla, another Puerto Rican, as a utility infielder.

Pittsburgh's contingent includes two Puerto Ricans, right fielder Roberto Clements and pitcher Luis Arroyo who has lost his two starts, Ramon Mejias, a Cuban had been used in the outfield with the Pirates until he suffered a muscle spasm Tuesday at New York.

Tide Spikemen Whip Southern In 103-33 Meet

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., April 27 (AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide swept 16 first places, erased three Thomas Field records, and posted season highs for 12 events in routing Mississippi Southern trackmen today, 103-33.

New home field records went to Don Kinderknecht, at 196 feet, 6 inches, in the javelin; to Jesse Crowell, at 1:56.3 in the 800, and to freshman pole vaulter John Uelses of Miami.

Uelses, competing as an "extra" whose performance did not figure in the meet score, cleared 13 feet, 6 inches. The old record was 13 feet.

Trio Banned 30 Days For Derby Action

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (UP)—Contestants in the $30,000 Kentucky Derby Open Golf Tournament took the day off to go to the races today, but there was plenty of action in PGA ranks as four top touring pros drew 30-day suspensions for improper conduct.

Bill Casper Jr., a placid 205-pounder from Bonita, Calif., will enter Sunday's final 18 holes with a two-stroke lead over Australian Peter Thomson, former National Open champion Jack Fleck of Rochester, Mich., and Johnny Pott of Shreveport, La.

PGA tournament director Harvey Raynor announced the 30-day suspension of long-driving George Bayer of Los Angeles; Don January of Lampasas, Tex.; Ernie Vossler of Fort Worth, Tex., and Doug Higgins of Midland, Tex., for "detrimental conduct," under PGA rules.

The players' actions stemmed from their ire over being denied permission to withdraw from the tournament when their 36-hole scores indicated they would not finish among the leaders. By running up the large scores they assured themselves of being cut from the field after three rounds.

One PGA official commented that identical scores of 84 by three outstanding golfers such as January, Higgins and Vossler "strained the limits of coincidence."

It was understood the four had asked to be excused so they could go at once to Fort Worth to begin practice for next week's Colonial Invitational Tournament.

Raynor, who called the episode "a deliberate slap in the face for golf . . . disgraceful and childish," did not specify whether the suspension would bar the players from the Colonial, which is PGA approved but not PGA-sponsored. He said there would be further discussion of the matter at Fort Worth.

Maroons Grab Doubleheader From Bengals

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., April 27 (AP)—Mississippi State won the first game of a doubleheader from Louisiana State 4-1 today, but dropped into second place in the western division of the Southeastern Conference when LSU took the nightcap 2-0.

Alabama, which ended a three-game sweep over Tulane, moved into first place with a 9-3 record. Mississippi State has a 9-4 mark.

Mississippi State won the opener in the second inning with two runs on a single by Jim McNally, Terry Murphy's triple, and Doug Litton's single. LSU's run came in the third when Joe Mailhos walked and scored after singles by Redfield Bryan and Al White.

LSU won the nightcap with two unearned runs in the fifth inning on two singles, a sacrifice, a walk and two errors.

Warmerdam's Vault Record Finally Falls

PALO ALTO, Calif., April 27 (AP)—Bob Gutowski of Occidental College today cleared 15 feet 8¼ inches to better Cornelius (Dutch) Warmerdam's world outdoor pole vault record that had stood secure to top 16 feet.

Warmerdam, who set the outdoor mark at 15-7¾ in Modesto, Calif., May 23, 1942, retains the highest official vaulting mark on record, however, with his 15-8½ indoor world standard at the stadium in Chicago, March 20, 1943.

After bettering Warmerdam's "miracle mark" by a half inch on his first attempt in today's dual meet, Gutowski failed three times to top 16 feet.

Weather conditions were perfect. With a slight breeze blowing at his back, Gutowski arched over the bar with several inches to spare.

Gutowski's best previous outdoor height was 15 feet 5 inches. That was two weeks ago against UCLA in a dual meet at Pasadena.

The Occidental senior, who was 22 Thursday, finished second to the Rev. Bob Richards in the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne, clearing 14 feet 10¼ inches. He has been inching toward the record all season after vaulting 15 feet 6 inches indoors at the Millrose Games in New York last winter.

'Bama Grabs Twin Header From Greenies

NEW ORLEANS, April 27 (AP)—Alabama won a Southeastern Conference doubleheader from Tulane by identical 4-1 scores today and took the lead in the western division race.

The victory gave Alabama a conference record against 9-4 for Mississippi State which split a twinbill with Louisiana State.

Alabama southpaw Bobby Ledford gave up six hits in the opener and scored two runs. The visitors won the game in the seventh inning with three runs on a walk and singles by Ledford, Chuck Bancroft, Fred Frickie and Jack Kubiszyn.

Tulane's run came on a homer by Tony Reginelli, his fourth of the season.

In the nightcap, two errors and a double by Dale Rice gave Alabama the winning run in the first inning. Tulane tallied in the second on Jim Zimmerle's double, two walks and a hit batsman. The victory was credited to Pete Reaves who relieved starter Howard Tepper in the second.

Tulane's SEC record dropped to 6-6.

Colorado Takes 3rd Consecutive Relays Victory

BOULDER, Colo., April 27 (UP)—Colorado University raced to its third consecutive Colorado Relays championship through rain and snow here today, easily outscoring second place Southern Methodist.

Colorado rolled up 25 points by winning three of the six relay events, while tying for first place in a fourth event. Southern Methodist's only win in the 880-yard relay.

Two Kansas schools, Kansas State College and Fort Hayes State, tied for third place with six points each, followed by Utah 5; New Mexico and Colorado A&M, each; Wyoming, 3, and Denver University and the Air Force Academy, 1 each.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (UP)—Contestants in the $30,000 Kentucky Derby Open Golf Tournament took the day off to go to the races today, but there was plenty of action in PGA ranks as four top touring pros drew 30-day suspensions for improper conduct.

Bill Casper Jr., a placid 205-pounder from Bonita, Calif., will enter Sunday's final 18 holes with a two-stroke lead over Australian Peter Thomson, former National Open champion Jack Fleck of Rochester, Mich., and Johnny Pott of Shreveport, La.

PGA tournament director Harvey Raynor announced the 30-day suspension of long-driving George Bayer of Los Angeles; Don January of Lampasas, Tex.; Ernie Vossler of Fort Worth, Tex., and Doug Higgins of Midland, Tex., for "detrimental conduct," under PGA rules.

The players' actions stemmed from their ire over being denied permission to withdraw from the tournament when their 36-hole scores indicated they would not finish among the leaders. By running up the large scores they assured themselves of being cut from the field after three rounds.

One PGA official commented that identical scores of 84 by three outstanding golfers such as January, Higgins and Vossler "strained the limits of coincidence."

It was understood the four had asked to be excused so they could go at once to Fort Worth to begin practice for next week's Colonial Invitational Tournament.

Raynor, who called the episode "a deliberate slap in the face for golf . . . disgraceful and childish," did not specify whether the suspension would bar the players from the Colonial, which is PGA approved but not PGA-sponsored. He said there would be further discussion of the matter at Fort Worth.

Tide Spikemen Whip Southern In 103-33 Meet

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., April 27 (AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide swept 16 first places, erased three Thomas Field records, and posted season highs for 12 events in routing Mississippi Southern trackmen today, 103-33.

New home field records went to Don Kinderknecht, at 196 feet, 8 inches, in the javelin; to Jesse Crowell, at 1:56.3 in the 800, and to freshman pole vaulter John Uelses of Miami.

Uelses, competing as an "extra" whose performance did not figure in the meet score, cleared 13 feet, 6 inches. The old record was 13 feet.

Tech got five hits off George Thomas in the seventh inning of the opener to score four runs by J. W. Mercer, Wade Scott, Curtis Allen and Clyde Thompson.

SLC clinched the nightcap in the overtime ninth inning when Sheldon Fernandez' grand slammer broke a 1-1 deadlock. The homer scored Kenny Ridgell, Jerry Kurtz, Tommy Bell and Fernandez SLC's conference record moved to 8-3, four victories ahead of second place rival Southwestern Louisiana Institute. Tech's GSC mark evened out at 4-4.

Warmerdam's Vault Record Finally Falls

PALO ALTO, Calif., April 27 (AP)—Bob Gutowski of Occidental College today cleared 15 feet 8¼ inches to better Cornelius (Dutch) Warmerdam's world outdoor pole vault record that had stood secure to top 16 feet.

Warmerdam, who set the outdoor mark at 15-7¾ in Modesto, Calif., May 23, 1942, retains the highest official vaulting mark on record, however, with his 15-8½ indoor world standard at the stadium in Chicago, March 20, 1943.

After bettering Warmerdam's "miracle mark" by a half inch on his first attempt in today's dual meet, Gutowski failed three times to top 16 fett.

Weather conditions were perfect. With a slight breeze blowing at his back, Gutowski arched over the bar with several inches to spare.

Gutowski's best previous outdoor height was 15 feet 5 inches. That was two weeks ago against UCLA in a dual meet at Pasadena.

The Occidental senior, who was 22 Thursday, finished second to the Rev. Bob Richards in the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne, clearing 14 feet 10¼ inches. He has been inching toward the record all season after vaulting 15 feet 6 inches indoors at the Millrose Games in New York last winter.

'Bama Grabs Twin Header From Greenies

NEW ORLEANS, April 27 (AP)—Alabama won a Southeastern Conference doubleheader from Tulane by identical 4-1 scores today and took the lead in the western division race.

The victory gave Alabama a conference record against 9-4 for Mississippi State which split a twinbill with Louisiana State.

Alabama southpaw Bobby Ledford gave up six hits in the opener and scored two runs. The visitors won the game in the seventh inning with three runs on a walk and singles by Ledford, Chuck Bancroft, Fred Frickie and Jack Kubiszyn.

Tulane's run came on a homer by Tony Reginelli, his fourth of the season.

In the nightcap, two errors and a double by Dale Rice gave Alabama the winning run in the first inning. Tulane tallied in the second on Jim Zimmerle's double, two walks and a hit batsman. The victory was credited to Pete Reaves who relieved starter Howard Tepper in the second.

Tulane's SEC record dropped to 6-6.

Colorado Takes 3rd Consecutive Relays Victory

BOULDER, Colo., April 27 (UP) Colorado University raced to its third consecutive Colorado Relays championship through rain and snow here today, easily outscoring second place Southern Methodist.

Colorado rolled up 25 points by winning three of the six relay events, while tying for first place in a fourth event. Southern Methodist's only win in the 880-yard relay.

Two Kansas schools, Kansas State College and Fort Hayes State, tied for third place with six points each, followed by Utah 5; New Mexico and Colorado A&M, each; Wyoming, 3, and Denver University and the Air Force Academy, 1 each.

Either rain or snow fell throughout the cold afternoon, cutting down the winning times.

Second Hearing Is Slated In AF Probe

By HARRY SHARPE

WASHINGTON, April 27 (UP)—A House Armed Services Subcommittee has scheduled a second investigation of the Air Force's insistence on using costlier concrete instead of asphalt on its runways.

In charge will be Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D-La.).

Maj. Gen. Lee B. Washbourne, assistant Air Force chief of staff for installations, advised Congress last year the air arm would spend $325,000,000 for paving in the present fiscal year, three-fourth of it concrete.

The cost differential between concrete and asphalt is about 32 a square yard — $8 for concrete and $6 for asphalt.

In 1955 another subcommittee exacted a promise the Air Force would pave with asphalt except in 'critical areas" — fueling stations, warmup pads and takeoff points. The subcommittee accepted this in lieu of mandatory legislation and figured it could save the taxpayers $50,000,000.

Reverted To Concrete

In May, 1956, however, the Air Force reverted to concrete on grounds asphalt could not take the heat and weight stresses of huge jet-age bombers. This was after air base commanders complained almost unanimously against asphalt.

The Air Force issued revised 'paving criteria" specifying the requirements for what it called "primary use" pavement. The asphalt institute charged this all but foreclosed use of asphalt. But the Air Force stood ts ground, with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's approval, after a special test of asphalt at Kelly Air Force Base, Tex.

The test has been a subject of controversy since that time. J. E. Buchanan, asphalt institute president, recently charged it was a "one shot affair" made under unrealistic conditions and based on "invalid conclusions." He accused the Air Force of using it to "disqualify" asphalt and of refusing to allow the industry to lay another test pavement which he said "would meet all" heat and weight requirements.

Paving Criteria

The Air Force's current paving criteria, issued May 25, 1956, defines "primary use" pavement as "(1) all paved areas on which aircraft are regularly parked, serviced, maintained, or preflight checked (2) all runways having adequate length, width and approaches to permit sustained use by combat or combat support aircraft, and (3) taxiways connecting paved areas defined in (1) or (2)."

It also set up weight standards based on the size of modern bombers ranging from 300,000 to 456,000 pounds, and directed that runways used for heavy, channelized traffic be paved down the center with concrete.

There were some exceptions favoring asphalt but none that soothed the ire of the asphalt institute. Last March, however, the Air Force agreed to finance a further study of its criticism of the Kelly base test. It advanced mony to the Army Corps of Engineers to continue experimental work at the "flexible pavements branch" at Vicksburg, Miss.

Shift Of Policy

The National Petroleum Association commented that "this would appear to represent a shift of policy by which the Air Force gave every indication of closing the door firmly against asphalt when it ordered earlier Vicksburg tests suspended."

These are only a few of the facets the Hebert committee is expected to explore. A subcommittee spokesman told the United Press the inquiry "is on the agenda and will be reached in order of scheduling, probably late this spring.

Oil and asphalt interests will be ready. He and his aides have their command. They hope to have the support of the Army Engineers, who differ with the Air Force over some paving criteria. Gen. Washbourne also will be ready. He and his aides have given careful study to the issue since the dispute first developed four years ago.

Ike's Aide Asks Congressmen To Approve Budget

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 27 (UP)—Presidential assistant Dr. Gabriel Hauge last night urged acceptance of President Eisenhower's proposed record budget for 1958 to give the nation "an adequate arsenal of peace."

The economic adviser told Republican leaders here for the second of six regional "grass roots" conferences that $45 billion of the $71 billion total budget is earmarked for "the business of waging peace."

"To pay for it requires of us high taxes," Hague said, "but it gives President Eisenhower a military deterrent power so great that no Soviet dictator could, with hope of gain, launch an attack against us."

"With vigilant control over expenditures and with success in fostering the growing economy that brings higher revenues," he said, "we can look forward to a sufficiently large surplus to justify another tax cut for every taxpayer as we make some further payment on the (national) debt.

"We are fully aware that people want a tax cut," he said, "and we want one too if it isn't paid for out of deficits."

The economist expressed confidence that the nation's current prosperity would continue. He said Democrats would have a "tough time" unseating Republicans in 1960 if the boom remained healthy.

Bi-State Farms Fail To Record Higher Income

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — Farmers of Louisiana and Mississippi are off to a rather poor start on 1957 income.

For the first two months of the year, a Department of Agriculture report showed today, cash receipts of farmers in both states from sales of crops and livestock are below the 1956 two-month period.

Louisiana farmers are only slightly below a year ago but Mississippi farmers are far down the line.

The report shows cash receipts of Mississippi farmers from sales in January and February totaled only $72,620,000 against $96,605,000 for the corresponding period a year ago, a drop of about 23 percent.

For Louisiana the figures are $47,797,000 up to March 1 this year against $48,853,000 for January-February 1956.

Nationally, there was a slight increase in farm income for the two months.

However, the Mississippi picture isn't necessarily as bleak as it may appear since the 1956 total reflects late marketings of a good 1955 cotton crop and a good 1957 cotton crop could pull the total even or ahead later in the year.

Sale of livestock and livestock products by Mississippi farmers the first two months of the year produced $24,812,000, an increase over the total of $22,49,000 a year earlier. Thus the drop was all accounted for by a lower total income from crops — $48,008,000 the first two months this year against $74,256,000 a year ago.

In Louisiana crops accounted for $28,309,000 and livestock for $19,488,000 in January and February, against $30,701,000 and $18,152,000 respectively a year ago.

It advanced mony to the Army Corps of Engineers to continue experimental work at the "flexible pavements branch" at Vicksburg, Miss.

Shift Of Policy

The National Petroleum Association commented that "this would appear to represent a shift of policy by which the Air Force gave every indication of closing the door firmly against asphalt when it ordered earlier Vicksburg tests suspended."

These are only a few of the facets the Hebert committee is expected to explore. A subcommittee spokesman told the United Press the inquiry "is on the agenda and will be reached in order of scheduling, probably late this spring.

Oil and asphalt interests will be ready. He and his aides have their command. They hope to have the support of the Army Engineers, who differ with the Air Force over some paving criteria. Gen. Washbourne also will be ready. He and his aides have given careful study to the issue since the dispute first developed four years ago.

Ike's Aide Asks Congressmen To Approve Budget

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 27 (UP)—Presidential assistant Dr. Gabriel Hauge last night urged acceptance of President Eisenhower's proposed record budget for 1958 to give the nation "an adequate arsenal of peace."

The economic adviser told Republican leaders here for the second of six regional "grass roots" conferences that $45 billion of the $71 billion total budget is earmarked for "the business of waging peace."

"To pay for it requires of us high taxes," Hague said, "but it gives President Eisenhower a military deterrent power so great that no Soviet dictator could, with hope of gain, launch an attack against us."

"With vigilant control over expenditures and with success in fostering the growing economy that brings higher revenues," he said, "we can look forward to a sufficiently large surplus to justify another tax cut for every tax payer as we make some further payment on the (national) debt.

"We are fully aware that people want a tax cut," he said, "and we want one too if it isn't paid for out of deficits."

The economist expressed confidence that the nation's current prosperity would continue. He said Democrats would have a "tough time" unseating Republicans in 1960 if the boom remained healthy.

Bi-State Farms Fail To Record Higher Income

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — Farmers of Louisiana and Mississippi are off to a rather poor start on 1957 income.

For the first two months of the year, a Department of Agriculture report showed today, cash receipts of farmers in both states from sales of crops and livestock are below the 1956 two-month period.

Louisiana farmers are only slightly below a year ago but Mississippi farmers are far down the line.

The report shows cash receipts of Mississippi farmers from sales in January and February totaled only $72,820,000 against $96,605,000 for the corresponding period a year ago, a drop of about 23 percent.

For Louisiana the figures are $47,797,000 up to March 1 this year against $48,853,000 for January-February 1956.

Nationally, there was a slight increase in farm income for the two months.

However, the Mississippi picture isn't necessarily as bleak as it may appear since the 1956 total reflects late marketings of a good 1955 cotton crop and a good 1957 cotton crop could pull the total even or ahead later in the year.

Sale of livestock and livestock products by Mississippi farmers the first two months of the year produced $24,812,000, an increase over the total of $22,49,000 a year earlier. Thus the drop was all accounted for by a lower total income from crops — $48,008,000 the first two months this year against $74,256,000 a year ago.

In Louisiana crops accounted for $28,309,000 and livestock for $19,488,000 in January and February, against $30,701,000 and $18,152,000 respectively a year ago.

It's Spring And Party Dress Time

Springtime is party - dress time for little girls. Any small lass will adore the fairy tale crispness and daintiness of organdy, and mothers second the choice. Organdy is washable enough to survive party spills and games — a quick swish through suds, and it emerges fresh and crisp as new.

Little girl elegance may be achieved on organdy stitched on the automatic swing - needle sewing machine, local sewing center experts point out. Ruffling and shirring are the work of a moment, and the effect is frothy.

A basic puff - sleeved dress, made from any standard pattern may be given fashion emphasis by rows of smocking on the bodice. The machine is set to produce domino and zig-zag stitches with elastic thread on the bobbin — elastic does the shirring, and the decorative stitches give a pretty finish.

Scallops teamed with lace produce decorative effects on another little - girl party dress. The scallop disc makes spaced scallops, the ruffled edging is gathered and stitched by machine. Lace and scallops are used on the collar, and outline the shaped panels on the skirt.

A party dress can work miracles toward turning a little girl into a fairy princess, no matter how tomboyish she is.

Next time you bake a chocolate cake from a mix, add finely chopped walnuts to the batter. Then as soon as the cake comes from the oven, pour an orange syrup over it. Make the syrup from grated orange rind and orange juice.

If you use a baking pan that is about 11 by 7 inches for Yorkshire pudding, you'll need about ¼ cup beef drippings for the bottom of the pan before the batter is added.

The A. L. Peters, Jrs., Are Honored

Many parties have been given honoring Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. L. Peters, Jr., since their arrival from Bangkok, Thailand, where Col. Peters was attached to the American Embassy.

Friday night's compliment to the visitors was a supper party with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rogers, hosts in their home on Island Drive. Supper was served on the patio lighted with hurricane lamps. The party table held lovely arrangement of fruits and vegetables.

The guests included with Col. and Mrs. Peters were Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Credille Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. John Sherrouse, Jr.

Earlier in the week, Mrs. Credille Calhoun entertained with a morning coffee in her home in Edgewater Gardens. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. A. L. Peters Mrs. Joseph Brown, Mrs. Trippett Faulk, Mrs. Claire Chennault, Mrs. J. V. Jones and Mrs. Ted McCrocklin. There were 50 guests.

Mrs. Faheam Cannon assisted Mrs. Alfred Brin when she entertained for Mrs. Peters with a neighborhood tea on Tuesday afternoon. Her home on Point Drive was festive with bright colored roses and iris. The guests were Mrs. A. L. Peters, Mrs. Robert Evans, Mrs. Claire Chennault, Mrs. O. B. Frazier, Mrs. Mortimer Raphael, Mrs. Credille Calhoun and Mrs. William Inabnet.

Wednesday's parties were an informal morning coffee with Mrs. Tobo Woods and Mrs. J. W. Cummins hostesses in the Wood home in Edgewater Garden.

At noon Mrs. Claire Chennault entertained with a luncheon at the Country Club. Yellow lilies and roses in a black lacquered bowl centered the table set for eight guests.

That same evening Mr. and Mrs. Tripp Faulk, Jr., invited members of the family for supper in their home on Forsythe Ave.

Mrs. Charles Hayes was hostess at a high tea at four in the afternoon on Thursday and yesterday Mrs. J. E. Walsworth entertained at luncheon at the Virginia Hotel. In the evening the Roland Browns were dinner hosts.

This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Gentry will entertain in their home on Country Club Rd. for the popular visitors.

Col. and Mrs. Peters will conclude their visit on May 1 to leave for their new assignment in Washington, D. C.

Marinate cube steaks in a mixture of soy sauce, cooking sherry and crushed garlic; add a little sugar. Drain and cook quickly in a little peanut oil or butter in a skillet.

It's Spring And Party Dress Time

Springtime is party - dress time for little girls. Any small lass will adore the fairy tale crispness and daintiness of organdy, and mothers second the choice. Organdy is washable enough to survive party spills and games — a quick swish through suds, and it emerges fresh and crisp as new.

Little girl elegance may be achieved on organdy stitched on the automatic swing - needle sewing machine, local sewing center experts point out. Ruffling and shirring are the work of a moment, and the effect is frothy.

A basic puff - sleeved dress, made from any standard pattern may be given fashion emphasis by rows of smocking on the bodice. The machine is set to produce domino and zig-zag stitches with elastic thread on the bobbin — elastic does the shirring, and the decorative stitches give a pretty finish.

Scallops teamed with lace produce decorative effects on another little - girl party dress. The scallop disc makes spaced scallops, the ruffled edging is gathered and stitched by machine. Lace and scallops are used on the collar, and outline the shaped panels on the skirt.

A party dress can work miracles toward turning a little girl into a fairy princess, no matter how tomboyish she is.

Next time you bake a chocolate cake from a mix, add finely chopped walnuts to the batter. Then as soon as the cake comes from the oven, pour an orange syrup over it. Make the syrup from grated orange rind and orange juice.

If you use a baking pan that is about 11 by 7 inches for Yorkshire pudding, you'll need about ¼ cup beef drippings for the bottom of the pan before the batter is added.

The A. L. Peters, Jrs., Are Honored

Many parties have been given honoring Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. L. Peters, Jr., since their arrival from Bangkok, Thailand, where Col. Peters was attached to the American Embassy.

Friday night's compliment to the visitors was a supper party with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rogers, hosts in their home on Island Drive. Supper was served on the patio lighted with hurricane lamps. The party table held lovely arrangement of fruits and vegetables.

The guests included with Col. and Mrs. Peters were Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Credille Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. John Sherrouse, Jr.

Earlier in the week, Mrs. Credille Calhoun entertained with a morning coffee in her home in Edgewater Gardens. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. A. L. Peters Mrs. Joseph Brown, Mrs. Trippett Faulk, Mrs. Claire Chennault, Mrs. J. V. Jones and Mrs. Ted McCrocklin. There were 50 guests.

Mrs. Faheam Cannon assisted Mrs. Alfred Brin when she entertained for Mrs. Peters with a neighborhood tea on Tuesday afternoon. Her home on Point Drive was festive with bright colored roses and iris. The guests were Mrs. A. L. Peters, Mrs. Robert Evans, Mrs. Claire Chennault, Mrs. O. B. Frazier, Mrs. Mortimer Raphael, Mrs. Credille Calhoun and Mrs. William Inabnet.

Wednesday's parties were an informal morning coffee with Mrs. Tobo Woods and Mrs. J. W. Cummins hostesses in the Wood home in Edgewater Garden.

At noon Mrs. Claire Chennault entertained with a luncheon at the Country Club. Yellow lilies and roses in a black lacquered bowl, centered the table set for eight guests.

That same evening Mr. and Mrs. Tripp Faulk, Jr., invited members of the family for supper in their home on Forsythe Ave.

Mrs. Charles Hayes was hostess at a high tea at four in the afternoon on Thursday and yesterday Mrs. J. E. Walsworth entertained at luncheon at the Virginia Hotel. In the evening the Roland Browns were dinner hosts.

This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Gentry will entertain in their home on Country Club Rd. for the popular visitors.

Col. and Mrs. Peters will conclude their visit on May 1 to leave for their new assignment in Washington, D. C.

MISS BONNIE FAYE BALCH'S betrothal to Charles Edward Tullos, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tullos, of Swartz, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Angus A. Balch, of Monroe. Their nuptial vows will be said in the Swartz Baptist Church in September.

St. Francis Hospital Auxiliary Hospital-ity Silver Tea And Tour

On Sunday, May 5, from 3 to 5 p.m. the public will again be able to visit several of Monroe's most outstanding homes and gardens during the St. Francis Hospital Auxiliary's third annual tea and tour.

The hosts on this occasion are Sister Gregory at St. Joseph's Home, Sterlington Road; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill, Deborah Drive; Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Simonton, Deborah Drive; Mr. and Mrs. Clay Wilson, 2020 Pargoud Blvd.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brown, 624 Loop Road, where tea will be served.

This tea and tour provides hundreds of interested men and women with new ideas, modern and conventional, which may be incorporated into present or future building, and as it is a silver tea, is one of the chief fund - raising projects of the auxiliary.

Special projects already accomplished by the auxiliary are: making of curtains for all hospital rooms, furnishing one room, redecoration of the children's ward, an isolet for premature babies, and a patient - lift, which goes from room to room, saving much pain in moving of the ill. The present plan of expenditure is to establish a nursing Student Scholarship Loan Fund. This last project will be equally welcomd by doctors of the community and the staffs of hospitals, for the shortage of nurses is acute.

Vaught-Miller Vows Pledged In Afternoon

Of special interest was the wedding of Miss Joy Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Miller to Henry Gordon Vaught, son of Mr. William Vaught and the late Mrs. Eva Vaught, both families of Sicily Island.

The Sicily Island Baptist Church was the setting for the exchange of vows performed at 5 o'clock in the afternoon by Rev. Ralph E. Webber. Standards of fern and branched candelabra garlanded with English ivy and tied with clusters of orange blossoms decorated the church. The family pews were marked with satin ribbons.

The nuptial music was presented by Miss Patricia Brooks at the organ and B. K. Miller, Jr., brother of the bride and Miss Martha Franks, vocalists.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was of Chantilly lace and tulle over taffeta. The long torso bodice was fashioned with a low neckline and lace sleeves ending in petal points over the wrists. The voluminous skirt of tulle was appliqued with medallions of hand clipped lace. A coronet of seed pearls held her veil of illusion and she carried a fan shaped bouquet of stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Miss Billie Anderson, of Lake Charles, dressed in pink lace and tulle over taffeta, served as maid of honor. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations tied with pink satin streamers.

James Dan Baxter was the best man and Charles Miller, brother of the bride and Judson Tillinghast, cousin of the groom served as candlelighters.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the banquet hall of the church. Mrs. Miller received her guests in a dress of mauve lace over taffeta with a matching hat and a corsage of white carnations. A black and white silk print with black silk cummerbund was worn by the groom's sister, Mrs. John Van Deren, Jr. who assisted Mrs. Miller in receiving. The bride's table was covered with a cutwork cloth over pink satin. Mrs. Jack Gilbert presided at the punch bowl and Miss Martha Franks served the wedding cake embossed with delicate pink and white roses and topped with a pair of love birds holding miniature wedding rings. Miss Sara Gambrell invited the guests to sign the bride's book.

Later in the evening the young couple left for a short honeymoon. For traveling the bride wore a violet printed silk with matching hat and accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

IN CONCERT

Cites Fleisher's Faith, Enthusiasm

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK, April 27 (UP)—Leon Fleisher's faith in and enthusiasm for what he plays on his piano are barely contained. They seem poised on every note as though about to fall over into exaggerations and distortions. But he holds back from the brink and there is drama in his playing.

The examples are his playings of Rachmaninoff's Rhapsody on a theme of Paganini and Franck's Symphonic Variations, with the Cleveland Orchestra under George Szell (Epic-LC3330) and Braham,s Variations and fugue on a theme of Handel and his Opus 36 waltzes (Epic-3331).

You will be impressed also by the solidity of Victor Schioler's playing of two of the late Beethoven piano sonatas, the 30th and 32nd. The music requires it and has monumental awesomeness only when it is so played. Schioler is Denmark's leading pianist (Capitol-P18046).

Claudio Arrau's highly individualistic Chopin - playing is newly exemplified by his recording of the first set of etudes, opus 10, and the concert allegro, opus 46. It is tight rather than free-flowing — held back rather than let go (Angel35413).

Franck's Organ Music

E. Power Biggs has made a tour of Spain and Portugal, recording their ancient organs with the music of 16th, 17th, and 18th century organists of those countries. For fans of the organ and lovers of organ music, the resulting record, "Organ Music of Spain and Portugal," will be an event (Columbia-KL5167).

But musically and even sentimentally there is more substance to a recording of three of Cesar Franck's "six pieces" composed for and played by the composer on the organ of Saint Clotilde, Paris. Here they are played on the same instrument by Jean Langlais and they are among the masterpieces in organ music, particularly the "grand piece symphonique" (Ducretet - Thompson-93071).

The ballet score which Charles Mackerras constructed from bits and pieces torn out of the lesser known of Verdi's operas has been recorded by the Philharmonia Orchestra with Mackerras conducting. Called "The Lady and the Fool," it has great interest because of its Verdian flavors. Mackerras chose his bits and pieces well and dealt with them respectfully (RCA Victory-LM-2039).

'The Brave One' Introduces New 10-Year-Old Star

A new motion picture star will dominate the screen and audience at the Jim Theatre, where "The Brave One," $2,000,000 King Brothers production will open Wednesday. Michel Ray, 10-year-old film newcomer, is the central attraction of this RKO picture.

Seen previously in "The Divided Heart," a much-praised screen event, young Michel has been handed an entirely different and much more demanding assignment in the current film.

In a surprising display of talent, the youngster portrays a Mexican boy fiercely devoted to his pet. The animal is a pedigreed bull nurtured from birth by the farmer boy who strives to save it from slaughter when the bull grows up to be a fighter and is sequestered for possible doom in the vast Plaza de Mexico bullring in Mexico City.

Young Ray, however, has the ability to transform tragedy into suspense and delivers a remarkably ingratiating performance in earlier rural sequences in the cast ture.

Outstanding players in the cast include Rodolfo Hoyos who appears as the boy's father and competent Elsa Cardenas seen as Maria, the sister.

Other notables in the group include Carlos Navarro and Joi Lansing. Mexico's celebrated Matador Fermin Rivera, plays himself in the climactic Plaza de Mexico arena sequences where 80,000 cheering onlookers occupied the stands.

Filmed in CinemaScope and Technicolor, "The Brave One" is a notable photographic achievement as well as a dramatic screen event. Mexican locale of the Robert Rich story provides colorful and authentic background.

Irving Rapper's direction and the photography by Jack Cardiff will unquestionably rate various award nominations and Victor Young's original music score, enhanced by maximum fidelity sound, adds emotional depth to the picture's appeal.

DUTY CALLS FOR BOTH STARS

Deborah Kerr and Robert Mitchum are shown in a poignant scene from Twentieth Century-Fox's distinguished film, "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," which opens today at the Paramount Theatre. In the scene, the two recognize each of their respective calls to service, despite the unusual circumstances that have marooned them on a lonely island behind enemy lines in World War II.

'Marine And Sister Angela' Is Unique, Intriguing Film

"Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," which opens today at the Paramount Theatre, is a strange and absorbing story of World War II. It is a strange and intriguing, yet moving, story of a Marine and a Nun who are stranded alone on a South Pacific Island, behind Japanese lines.

Last week the management of the theatre arranged a sneak preview of the film and the comments around the Twin Cities have been favorable, in fact, very complimentary of the motion picture.

Although it is packed with physical action, the picture is primarily a drama of human and spiritual emotions. It is a tender story of a friendship of a woman dedicated to God, and a man dedicated to the Corps. When the Marine finally realizes this fact, he acts with a devotion which belies his former actions.

Robert Mitchum portrays the tough Marine corporal, who has one idea — to return to friendly lines, until fate decides differently — for a while. As the nun, Sister Angela, Deborah Kerr gives one of her finest performances.

Directed by John Huston, the film takes the viewers to the remote island, at first unoccupied except by the two, through two brief occupations by Japanese troops and finally to the conquest of the island by American forces.

The picture was five years in the filming and is based on a novel by Charles Shaw. Music was composed by George Auric. It is in CinemaScope and color by DeLuxe.

Britain Plans Naval Changes In Nuclear Age

LONDON, April 27 (AP) — Britain wrote the end yesterday to a historic chapter in the story of the Royal Navy.

The government announced plans for a nuclear age navy with the emphasis on small, fast ships instead of the heavy battleships and cruisers which spearheaded Britain's fighting fleet in two world wars.

Bound for the scrap heap are four famed battleships—the King George V, the Duke of York, the Anson and the Howe. Traditional cruisers are to make way for fast fleet escort vessels carrying guided missiles.

Britain's future navy will consist of highly mobile task force groups built around modernized and re-equipped aircraft carriers. Their attacking power will center on the new 1,500-mile-an-hour Blackburn N3 bomber, which can carry an atomic bomb.

Reports Plan

The naval reorganization was announced by the first lord of the admiralty, Lord Selkirk, in a memorandum on 1957-58 expenditure estimates.

"Today it is more than ever important that our armed forces should be quickly on the spot where there is trouble, to prevent a local fire from spreading," Selkirk said.

PAST AND PRESENT

Many Donations Received, Many More Are Needed

By MARIE KENT

Several out of town people as well as citizens of the Twin Cities are taking advantage of the chance to help organize a Museum for this area. It has been said, "this is truly a chance in a life time." It is the duty of every citizen in this comunity to do a share.

The Ouachita Geneological and Historical Society is grateful to all who have given their help thus far. Our relics are growing in number each day and we are in dire need of more display cases. Each year our people spend several dollars visiting parks and museums of other states. Why nots pend a part of that to help organize a museum here in your own community? One that we can point to with pride.

We are interested in relics, records, and information pertaining to local history. A drive is now on for collecting funds with which to purchase the much needed display cases. Those interested may call Mrs. Travis Tynes, phone 2-6476.

Last week we received a side saddle. It was among several donations made by Mrs. A. D. Brown of West Monroe. This relic will be a sight of wonder and amusement to our children of the future. The saddle is the fleeced lined type which was considered a good, average style "piece of goods" in its day. It was purchased in Cameron Parish for Mrs. Brown's mother, Mary Virginia Doland, prior to 1891, on her eighteenth birthday.

Among Mrs. Brown's donations were several hand made baby dresses and gowns. A silk dress about 36 inches in length, was hand made by Mr. Brown's great grandmother Malone, for Samuel Moore Brown born 1892. There was also a folding pill bag that was the property of Dr. Samuel Brown of Anderson, South Carolina. Dr. Brown was a surgeon in the Confederate army.

An instrument bag which was given to Dr. Walter Joseph Brown when he graduated from Beleview Hospital Medical College in New York in 1884 still contains many of the instruments used by the traveling doctor in that day. The different types of instruments recall the history of our great early "healers" who rode on horseback for many miles to doctor the ill, pull teeth, treat the work animals, or any other duty that might befall them. We owe a lot to such men as these doctors were. It is with great pride we place these relics on display in our museum in memory of these wonderful men who like your fore fathers, lived, fought and died while helping make the history of the States as well as this area. These relics serve another purpose. What is a better way for our children to learn and understand our history than actually seeing the relics that were so much a part of our people of yesterday?

We are happy to announce that we have a large back log of donations and we hope to be able to acknowledge them in this column in the near future. We are also thankful to the News-Star—World for providing us with a means in which to reach you. We need the help of all of you. May we have yours soon?

Also starred in the film are Wendell Corey, Edmund O'Brien and Lee Marvin. The picture starts today at the Jim Theatre.

IN CONCERT

Cites Fleisher's Faith, Enthusiasm

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK, April 27 (UP)—Leon Fleisher's faith in and enthusiasm for what he plays on his piano are barely contained. They seem poised on every note as though about to fall over into exaggerations and distortions. But he holds back from the brink and there is drama in his playing.

The examples are his playings of Rachmaninoff's Rhapsody on a theme of Paganini and Franck's Symphonic Variations, with the Cleveland Orchestra under George Szell (Epic-LC3330) and Brahams Variations and fugue on a theme of Handel and his Opus 36 waltzes (Epic-3331).

You will be impressed also by the solidity of Victor Schioler's playing of two of the late Beethoven piano sonatas, the 30th and 32nd. The music requires it and has monumental awesomeness only when it is so played. Schioler is Denmark's leading pianist (Capitol-P13046).

Claudio Arrau's highly individualistic Chopin - playing is newly exemplified by his recording of the first set of etudes, opus 10, and the concert allegro, opus 46. It is tight rather than free-flowing — held back rather than let go (Angel35413).

Franck's Organ Music

E. Power Biggs has made a tour of Spain and Portugal, recording their ancient organs with the music of 16th, 17th, and 18th century organists of those countries. For fans of the organ and lovers of organ music, the resulting record, "Organ Music of Spain and Portugal," will be an event (Columbia-KL5167).

But musically and even sentimentally there is more substance to a recording of three of Cesar Franck's "six pieces" composed for and played by the composer on the organ of Saint Clotilde, Paris. Here they are played on the same instrument by Jean Langlais and they are among the masterpieces in organ music, particularly the "grand piece symphonique" (Dacretet - Thompson-93071).

The ballet score which Charles Mackerras constructed from bits and pieces torn out of the lesser known of Verdi's operas has been recorded by the Philharmonia Orchestra with Mackerras conducting. Called "The Lady and the Fool," it has great interest because of its Verdian flavors. Mackerras chose his bits and pieces well and dealt with them respectfully (RCA Victory-LM-2039).

'The Brave One' Introduces New 10-Year-Old Star

TV notes

This will give you some idea of the cost of TV shows. The recent play, "A Night of Rain," on "Kraft Television Theater" had just three persons in the cast. But there were 78 in the crew necessary to get the show on the air —11 in the control room, 19 on the technical staff, 15 on cameras and microphones, 12 on the physical production and 21 in the stage crew. And, of course, there were 53 office personnel involved who did not have to be present for the actual broadcast.

Art expert Billy Pearson, the jockey of "The $64,000 Question" program last year, is having a try at being a TV actor in Hollywood. He is playing Donald Lam, a private eye, in a new half-hour filmed series called "Cool and Lam" for which the pilot program is being shot for CBS at 20th Century-Fox. Benay Venuta plays Bertha Cool.

Martha Rountree's organization, which produces such fare as "Martha Rountree's Press Conference," now on ABC, and "Leave It to the Girls," which is expected to return to the air soon, is preparing a filmed series that will present details about "authentic haunted houses."

"Date With the Angels," the new filmed comedy series with Betty White and Bill Williams coming to the 10 p.m. Friday spot on ABC May 10, deals with the adventures of a couple in the first year of marriage.

The telecast of the world middleweight championship bout between champion Gene Fullmer and Sugar Ray Robinson in Chicago May 1 will be blacked out in the Chicago area, which will, however, get a radio account of the fight.

A 16mm color film version of the "Disneyland" program, "Our Friend the Atom," will be available by fall to schools, scientific, industrial, governmental, civic and fraternal organizations. The program had its second TV airing on ABC April 24.

A new dramatic western series starring Richard ("Medic") Boone will occupy the 9:30 to 10 p.m. Saturday spot on the CBS network in the fall. "Have Gun — Will Travel" is the title, and Boone, of course, plays a gunfighter.

Golfer Dr. Cary Middlecoff, Sonny James, George Jessel and Shelley Winters will be featured on the next Bob Hope hour for NBC, May 5 at 9 p.m.

Singers signed for the second annual tour of NBC's opera company include John Alexander, Frances Bible, Adelaide Bishop, Shirlee Emmons, Igor Gorin, Mac Morgan, Elaine Malbin, Emile Renan and Luigi Vellucci.

Among those in leading roles in support of Mickey Rooney when he plays George M. Cohan in an NBC spectacular May 11 will be Teresa Brewer, Gloria de Haven, James Dunn, Eddie Foy, Jr., June Havoc and Roberta Sherwood.

"Kraft Television Theater" dramas will run to youth May 1 and 8. On the first date Sal Mineo will appear in "Drummer Man," and Tommy Sands will head up the cast for "Flesh and Blood" the following week.

George Gobel and Jeannie Carson will be guest stars on Ray Bolger's show Thursday, May 9.

Stamp Honors Teachers In Latest Issue

The education of the youth of America is emphasized on a new 3-cent commemorative to be released July 1. The stamp, honoring "The Teachers of America," will be first placed on sale at Philadelphia during the centennial convention of the National Education Assn.

Depicted on the stamp is young woman teacher and two of her pupils, a boy and a girl, discussing a world globe. The teacher holds a book in one hand. The wording reads — Honoring The Teachers of America, National Education Association 1857-1957.

Collectors desiring first day covers may send their addressed envelopes, together with money order remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Philadelphia 1, Pa. The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers."

Speaking of centennial commemoratives, the four stamps honoring the 100th anniversary of the first Ceylon postage stamps are now available at your local stamp dealer. Two of the adhesives bear a vignette drawing of the first Ceylon stamp. The other two show 100 years of progress with drawings of an airplane, locomotive, steamship and a truck.

Denmark honors the 150th anniversary of the establishment of the Royal Museum for Nordic Ancient Antiquities (now the National Museum) by issuing two new stamps. The 30 ore red shows the Prince's Palace. The 60 ore dark blue depicts the "Solvognen (The Sun God's Chariot).

Stamp Honors Teachers In Latest Issue

The education of the youth of America is emphasized on a new 3-cent commemorative to be released July 1. The stamp, honoring "The Teachers of America," will be first placed on sale at Philadelphia during the centennial convention of the National Education Assn.

Depicted on the stamp is young woman teacher and two of her pupils, a boy and a girl, discussing a world globe. The teacher holds a book in one hand. The wording reads — Honoring The Teachers of America, National Education Association 1857-1957.

Collectors desiring first day covers may send their addressed envelopes, together with money order remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Philadelphia 1, Pa. The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers."

Speaking of centennial commemoratives, the four stamps honoring the 100th anniversary of the first Ceylon postage stamps are now available at your local stamp dealer. Two of the adhesives bear a vignette drawing of the first Ceylon stamp. The other two show 100 years of progress with drawings of an airplane, locomotive, steamship and a truck.

Denmark honors the 150th anniversary of the establishment of the Royal Museum for Nordic Ancient Antiquities (now the National Museum) by issuing two new stamps. The 30 ore red shows the Prince's Palace. The 60 ore dark blue depicts the "Solvognen (The Sun God's Chariot).

Knowland Hopeful U.S. Can Cut Tax Take, Slash Debt

MIAMI, Fla., April 27 (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) said Friday night if Congress can keep federal spending from going up it can create a five-billion-dollar surplus for tax cuts and debt payment.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, said continuance of the present high level of individual and business taxes "will ultimately destroy our free enterprise system."

In a speech prepared for the Assn. of American Physicians and Surgeons, Knowland called for a minimum reduction of three billion dollars in President Eisenhower's $71,800,000,000 spending budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

This reduction would bring expenditures down close to the $68,900,000,000 level estimated for the current fiscal year.

Eisenhower's budget for the coming year contemplates a surplus of $1,800,000,000. This is on the expectation that revenues will reach $73,600,000,000. The three-billion-dollar budget cut urged by Knowland would raise the expected surplus to the neighborhood of five billion dollars.

Eisenhower has said actual spending contemplated in his budget cannot be cut materially. He has specifically rejected proposals for a two-billion-dollar reduction.

Knowland said few people realize that "all we need to do at the present time in order to be able to reduce our towering national debt and cut taxes is to stop increasing federal expenditures."

"In order to have a budget surplus of almost five billion dollars in the forthcoming fiscal year, all we need to do is to keep federal expenditures from rising above their already high current level," he said. "This reduction of three billion dollars can and must be achieved as a minimum. I pledge my efforts to this end."

Planners Given Free Hand With Jackson Program

JACKSON, Miss., April 27 (AP) — Mayor Allen Thompson yesterday gave the city planning board a free hand with expansion plans he hopes will boost Jackson's population to 150,000.

Thompson said he would "like to see more outlying areas taken into the city limits" to help boost the population.

"If we had a population of 150,000," he told reporters," we ctuld creceive more benefits" including greater federal and state funds and more national publicity.

Soviets Charge Israeli Reserves Being Called Up

JERUSALEM, Israel, April 27 (UP)—Soviet broadcasts accused Israel yesterday of calling up reserve troops and mobilizing tank units at key cities along the tense border with Jordan.

The Moscow radio Arabic-language, broadcasts, beamed throughout the Middle East, said the alleged military preparations were designed to give "moral support" to pro-western elements in Jordan.

The Soviet Union's powerful transmitters also told Jordan and its Arab neighbors that "Israel will seize certain parts of Jordan if the opportunity presents itself."

Israeli officials denied the Soviet charges. They said it would be impossible to keep such a troop mobilization secret in this small nation.

At the same time, informed sources said Israeli Foreign Minister Golda Meir protested to U.S. Ambassador Edward L wson today over allegations that Israel had designs on Jordanian territory.

The sources said the protest followed a meeting between Mrs. Meir and Lawson Thursday in which the U. S. envoy was reported to have warned Israel against the dangers of taking action as a result of the Jordanian crisis.

Mrs. Meir was reported to have denied that Israel had any plans to dismember Jordan. The Palestinian section of King Hussein's country stretches along the left bank of the Jordan River. Many Israelis are known to regard the Jordan River as Israel's natural frontier.

Great Need For Scientists Cited

COLUMBUS, Miss., April 27 (AP)—Scientists were challenged to help meet the requirements of an age of super science as the Mississippi Academy of Science opened its two-day convention at Mississippi State College for Women yesterday.

Dr. Frank M. Hull, academy president, said, "while academy members are devoted men and women to whom the science career has been a reward in itself, we must now look about for opportunities to help meet this new age."

Leading the task of present-day science, he said, is an acute shortage of scientists, engineers and technicians of every type.

"The electron has married the missile in this our new civilization," he said, "and her children are of a demanding nature.

"The need for the nuclear scientist challenges our educational system. But it seems to me that our educational system is geared to mediocrity and mass production. We are not geared to the early recognition of scientific talent."

But, he cautioned, because of the outstanding need for nuclear scientists and others in that field, "we are apt to forget the many other needs such as plant breeders, biochemists, petroleum chemists, and cancer, heart dystrophy, and mental disease researchers—truly science is advancing on a thousad fronts."

Cut Finger Root Of Good Fortune

By TOM BENTON

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 27 (AP)—At 34, George Fuzak is on the verge of a prosperity that he finds hard to believe. And at the root of his good fortune was a cut finger.

Fuzak's business is ready-to-use tape bandages, an ordinary kind of business. But because he thoughtfully applied the old adage about building a better mousetrap and the world would beat a path to your door, his gross sales moved from $9,000 in 1953 to $138,000 in 1956.

That's an increase of 1,500 per cent in three years.

Did you ever try to cover a cut on the end of your finger, or perhaps a broken finger nail, with a tape bandage? Well, so did George Fuzak. And he found it frustrating. So he devised a new pattern for a "fingertip" bandage to do the trick quickly and neatly.

That's his better mousetrap. And the rest of the arage is now coming true.

It's a gimmick — as Fuzak readily concedes. But it seems to fill a need. Fuzak and the family-owned enterprise he calls the United State Plastic Bandage Co. have given the new bandage a throough test through direct mail sales to industrial despensaries. The result was the huge increase in gross sales.

Now he is embarking on his consumer sales program through drug stores.

Fuzak calls his idea a "form-cut fingertip dressing," basically, the sticky plastic bandage is cut in the form of a capital "H" with the gauze patch extending along the crossbar. Extending in either direction from the crossbar are short tabs.

To apply the dressing, the user simply wraps the uprights of the "H" around the finger from opposite sides, with the cross-bar running up over the tip of the finger. This leaves the tabs sticking out each way from the fingertip, and these are pulled down the sides of the finger to complete the seal.

Fuzak himself thought up the basic "H" shape of the bandage. Bernard Boles, now his general manager, came up with the tab idea. Jointly, they hold a design and method patent on the bandage.

Fuzak fell into the business almost by accident.

In 1949 George became associated with a Canadian manufacturer of bandage strips as a part-time salesman, he continued to work with his father, Maryan Fuzak, in the foreign motion picture distributing business.

In 1953, he had a falling-out with the manufacturer, but rather than lose U. S. sales he had already lined up, he decided to take a whirl at making up packages of bandages himself. He had $200 cash, borrowed another $2,300.

The whole family pitched in — father, mother, two brothers. But it wasn't enough to insure success.

At the same time, informed sources said Israeli Foreign Minister Golda Meir protested to U.S. Ambassador Edward L wson today over allegations that Israel had designs on Jord nian territory.

The sources said the protest followed a meeting between Mrs. Meir and Lawson Thursday in which the U. S. envoy was reported to have warned Israel against the dangers of taking action as a result of the Jordanian crisis.

Mrs. Meir was reported to have denied that Israel had any plans to dismember Jordan. The Palestinian section of King Hussein's country stretches along the left bank of the Jordan River. Many Israelis are known to regard the Jordan River as Israel's natural frontier.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Great Need For Scientists Cited

COLUMBUS, Miss., April 27 (AP)—Scientists were challenged to help meet the requirements of an age of super science as the Mississippi Academy of Science opened its two-day convention at Mississippi State College for Women yesterday.

Dr. Frank M. Hull, academy president, said, "while academy members are devoted men and women to whom the science career has been a reward in itself, we must now look about for opportunities to help meet this new age."

Leading the task of present-day science, he said, is an acute shortage of scientists, engineers and technicians of every type.

"The electron has married the missile in this our new civilization," he said, "and her children are of a demanding nature.

"The need for the nuclear scientist challenges our educational system. But it seems to me that our educational system is geared to mediocrity and mass production. We are not geared to the early recognition of scientific talent."

But, he cautioned, because of the outstanding need for nuclear scientists and others in that field, "we are apt to forget the many other needs such as plant breeders, biochemists, petroleum chemists, and cancer, heart dystrophy, and mental disease researchers—truly science is advancing on a thousad fronts."

Cut Finger Root Of Good Fortune

By TOM BENTON

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 27 (AP)—At 34, George Fuzak is on the verge of a prosperity that he finds hard to believe. And at the root of his good fortune was a cut finger.

Fuzak's business is ready-to-use tape bandages, an ordinary kind of business. But because he thoughtfully applied the old adage about building a better mousetrap and the world would beat a path to your door, his gross sales moved from: $9,000 in 1953 to $138,000 in 1956.

That's an increase of 1,500 per cent in three years.

Did you ever try to cover a cut on the end of your finger, or perhaps a broken finger nail, with a tape bandage? Well, so did George Fuzak. And he found it frustrating. So he devised a new pattern for a "fingertip" bandage to do the trick quickly and neatly.

That's his better mousetrap. And the rest of the arage is now coming true.

It's a gimmick — as Fuzak readily concedes. But it seems to fill a need. Fuzak and the family-owned enterprise he calls the United State Plastic Bandage Co. have given the new bandage a throough test through direct mail sales to industrial despensaries. The result was the huge increase in gross sales.

Now he is embarking on his consumer sales program through drug stores.

Fuzak calls his idea a "form-cut fingertip dressing," basically, the sticky plastic bandage is cut in the form of a capital "H" with the gauze patch extending along the crossbar. Extending in either direction from the crossbar are short tabs.

To apply the dressing, the user simply wraps the uprights of the "H" around the finger from opposite sides, with the cross-bar running up over the tip of the finger. This leaves the tabs sticking out each way from the fingertip, and these are pulled down the sides of the finger to complete the seal.

Fuzak himself thought up the basic "H" shape of the bandage. Bernard Boles, now his general manager, came up with the tab idea. Jointly, they hold a design and method patent on the bandage.

Fuzak fell into the business almost by accident.

In 1949 George became associated with a Canadian manufacturer of bandage strips as a part-time salesman, he continued to work with his father, Maryan Fuzak, in the foreign motion picture distributing business.

In 1953, he had a falling-out with the manufacturer, but rather than lose U. S. sales he had already lined up, he decided to take a whirl at making up packages of bandages himself. He had $200 cash, borrowed another $2,300.

The whole family pitched in — father, mother, two brothers. But it wasn't enough to insure success.

THE WORLD OF BOOKS AND MUSIC

TERRIBLE, BUT GOOD

Novel On Berlin's Fall Is Excellent

BERLIN. By Theodor Plievier (Doubleday, $4.50).

This book is massive, brilliant and terrible in its relentless detailing of the bloody destruction of a city —in this case the always magic Berlin.

As the story opens, the city is dying, slowly, bleeding from a hundred thousand wounds. It is being beaten to death by bombs, artillery, rockets, rifle fire.

The beautiful city of Berlin is an anvil, a charnelhouse, a flaming ruin. The numbed people cower in sewers with stink of death in their nostrils. It is written so realistically that you can almost smell the death, the blood, see the tears and the horror on the faces of its people. It is in the closing days of World War II for Germany. Her armies have been all but beaten, her air force is grounded for the lack of fuel. And the once - proud stepping SS troops are fast disappearing. Berlin is shattered.

From the East come the Russians, wave upon wave, the tanks bulking along the ruined streets belching fire, the troops flooding into the gutted buildings to rape and loot and kill.

In the West are heard the guns of the other Allies. In the center of the trembling, shattered city, the remnants of the German High Command wander wide - eyed through the concrete chambers where they are soon to die, the mad incantations of their Fuhrer ringing in theirc ears.

Soon it will be over. The Third Reich will be crushed. What fate awaits the people of Berlin?

Plievier, author of the panoramic novels, Stalingrad and Moscow, has written a dramatic and tremendously exciting novel about the fall of Nazi German's queen city and the chaotic period that followed the fall. In it, he has looked deeply and long into the terrible heart of war — a heart that even today continues to beat.

He also captured the spirit and the scope of the momentous events that have had such a lasting effect on the political structure of contemporary Europe; the ruthless annexation by the Soviets of every significant asset of the conquered lands, the ferocious redrawing of ideologies, allegiances, and principles, the anxiety and fright that still plague a divided land.

All of this is recounted in terms of people — the people in Berlin are altogether human — and it is their humanity, which, in the end, gives meaning to the forces that are loose around them.

Last Word On Horses Found In This Book

The COMPLETE BOOK OF HORSES By Howard J. Lewis (Random House, $2.95).

There have been books and books on horses — all kinds. But the latest offering on the subject by Random House is it.

It is the last word on horses — and features some of the best pictures you ever saw. In the book, you will find all the facts, plus wonderful stories and legends about your favorites — from thoroughbreds and westerns to circus horses and polo ponies.

In fact, you'll find the whole story about every breed, every color and every kind of horse.

And to make this a really complete book of horses, the author has collected fine pictures from many of America's leading animal photographers. These handsome portraits and exciting action photos — along with fully detailed descriptions — make this book a "must" for all who like horses.

The Town 2nd In Faulkner Trilogy

THE TOWN, By William Faulkner, Random House.

Back with Yoknapatawphians again, picking up from his novel "The Hamlet" of a good 15 years ago, Faulkner gives us here the second part of a contemplated trilogy intended to wind up at some future date in "The Mansion."

This is the curious bumbling account of the Snopeses, who sent their first scout into Jefferson inconspicuously behind a mule and began really to infiltrate about the day when livery stables were turning into garages. Flem Snopes was married to Eula Varner but just how much of a husband he has been in fact is the subject of question among the boys and grownups. Linda is her daughter, is she his? Everybody knows Eula is having a time with Major de Spain, and they don't fail to note that Flem advances quickly from cafe job to power-plant superintendent to vice president of de Spain's own bank.

There are other Snopeses, an insidious crowd that worms its way into a handsome little photography business with filthy pictures as a sideline, and also gets control of a chain of small stores. But our main concern is with the fate of Eula, Flem, de Spain, Gavin Stevens the lawyer and Linda, whose various passions are first fired and then cooled by a complex involvement with the banking situation, wills, and other legal documents.

Shabby Sins Is The Lure In This One

THE FEAST OF LUPERCAL, By Brian Moore, Little, Brown.

Old Devine! the boys jeer; that old woman! they mock behind his back; and his friend Tim Heron, twice his age, speaks to him as if they were equally well along in years.

Has he let life pass by? He worries about it. He is 37, he teaches in a Catholic boys' school in Belfast, he has feared even to look at a girl. What a stupid reputation to have, he exclaims to himself; and naive and innocent, he steps out blindly into deadly danger:

Tim has a visiting niece, Una. Devine has an unassigned role in a play he is managing. He gives the part to Una, coaches her privately, takes her to tea, dinner and dance. She is 20, she has had trouble with a married man, it is said. But it can't be true of that pretty sweet girl, Devine cries. The boys write jingles on the lavatory walls, Tim accuses him, a priest connives to use the threat of scandal as a means of personal advancement.

The second novel by the author of the memorable "Lonely Passion of Judith Hearne," this has not the awesome intensity of the first, yet it's an outstanding piece of writing. Una is such a fleshy minx, precociously weary of experience; Devine suffers for such a little love and such a big emptiness. Their tragedy lies not in her naughtiness or his innocence, but in their incompletion.

CAMERA NOTES

Reflections Can Add To Pictures

By JOHN OLDENBURG
Camera Editor

Today's picture presents a series of complications, as one looks at it for the first time. Glance number one seems to tell that it is a picture of a set of twin boys, then as one does a doubletake, he realizes that he must be standing in front of a set of mirrors, which is true . . . a three - way mirror to be correct. Then when one looks more, he will see an anxious mother trying to get the little fellow to strut his stuff. The little fellow is Danny Redding, whom we tried to get to show off for a straw hat day picture.

Shooting into mirrors and trying to get reflections sharp presents quite a unique problem. If the subject is about three feet from the mirror, the photographer will have to focus on a spot halfway between the subject and the mirror in order to get them both in focus. Also, one must be careful when shooting at a mirror that the flash will bounce awa from the camera lens. This is important because otherwise one will have decided hot spots in the picture, which will make it unusable.

Another good hint for this type of shooting is to try to hold the flash gun high enough above the subjects' head to not only throw the reflected flash down, but also to mold the features by casting some direct shadows under the nose, eyes and chin. All in all, it is very interesting to try to come up with a good print from this type of photography.

We have just about enough good pictures of those cute babies, but we are still waiting for that last good one. So either dig down through the files again, or get the old brownie out and start shooting some more. Get them in to Camera Notes, in care of the News-Star, Monroe.

Guide To Good Reading

FRANCES FLANDERS, Librarian

NEW FICTION TITLES

I am happy that this week we have some interesting books of fiction to offer our readers. Probably the outstanding book of the week is "Far, Far the Mountain Peak" by John Masters. This book is another of his fine book with an Indian setting. It is the story of twenty years of the life of Peter Savage, British civil servant and mountaineer. This is a book of many dimensions. Woven together are the realistic and heartbreakingly triumphant tale of a marriage, the suspenseful story of the years through World War I when Peter Savage tries his will and his friends to the breaking point, the complex picture of India in its restless time of early nationalism, and the thrilling assaults on great mountains that transport the reader with every excitement and danger climbing. The finale finds Peter Savage believing in people as persons rather than in personal glory for himself.

A very exciting story of adventure and intrigue set in Tangier is called "Ferguson" and was written by Rayne Kruger. It is the story of a man who at the age of thirty - six had tossed up his career, and set out to escape a world he no longer believed in. In Tangier the mecca of criminals from East and West, Ferguson discovered that the price of freedom runs high. This is the compelling story of a man who imperiled his life by evading the consequences of being himself. Taut, stark and masterfully told, Ferguson races toward a shattering climax.

A most exciting story of intrigue and international politics set in Boston in the years 1770-1771 is "The Braintree Mission" by Nicholas E. Wyckoff. It is a story of how history might have taken a different course and makes fascinating reading. Helen Topping Miller, while not a great writer is a very pleasing and interesting writer and her books are always popular. Her latest novel is called "Sing One Song." It has its setting in Ktntucky at the period of the war between the states. Kentucky though supposedly neutral, was really a battleground where father opposed son and brother set himself against brother. It is a story of strife, tension and love and one that her many fans are sure to enjoy. "Not Yet" by Terestka Torres is an arresting novel set in France in the days of the Phony war. It is a rare portrait of the emotions of a girl no longer a child, but not yet a woman and how she grew up. It has had immense popularity in France and has been translated into English by Miss Torres's husband, Meyer Levin.

In the field of non-fiction there are also a number of new and exciting titles. One of these is called "Rebels and Redcoats" and was written by George F. Scheer and High F. Rankin and has been called the living story of the American Revolution. It consists of actual quotations from many sources and serves to truly bring the period alive again. It is a book for all students of history.

New Biographies

Certain to create a great deal of interest and comment is the autobiography of Diana Barrymore called "Too Much, Too Soon." One reviewer said that this book would lose for her the few friends that she had left. At any rate it is an expose of the theatrical and glamor set and is one that will be very interesting to those who like that sort of thing. A man who had a great influence on the preservation of our natural resources was John Muir. Charles Norman has written an intensely interesting account of his life for young people which he calls "John Muir, Father of our National Parks." It is the story of a young man who had a dream for his country and saw it come true. One of the outstanding modern biographers is Catherine Drinker Bowen. Her latest work is called "The Lion and the Throne." It is an account of the life and times of Sir Edward Coke, a man who had a great influence on the development of the English law. It is a serious and thoughtful book, but one that is certainly worth a careful perusal.

Travel

If you cannot travel, reading about far away places is almost as good as being there. Two books for the arm chair reader are available among the new books this week. "One is "The Great Plantation" by Clifford Dowdey. The other is called "This Delicious Land Portugal" and was written by Marie Noele Kelly. The great plantation is a complete profile of Berkely Hunderd plantation in Virginia. It is also the story of the Harrison family who established the plantation and who made a great contribution to early American history. The book about Portugal is one to make any traveler want to go there. It is profusely illustrated and many of the illustrations are in color. Both of these are books you will want to read.

Practical Books

A beautiful as well as a practical book is Kathleen Yerger Johnstone's "Sea Treasure; A Guide to Shell Collecting." This would be a wonderful book to take if you were going to spend a summer at the sea shore. It is also an excellent book to use if you have been there and brought back a collection of shells and would like to identify them. In recent months we have heard a great deal about automation. Now we have a complete book on the subject called "Let Erma Do It" written by David O. Woodbury. Read this book and find out about Erma and some of her brilliant mechanical friends including Eniac, Univac, Audrey and Whirlwind. An interesting fact about Audrey who belongs to the Bell Laboratories is that she makes no response to women's voices. "The First Book of Ches" by Horwitz and Reinfeld will be eagerly welcomed by devotees of the sport. A new addition to the cookbook collection is "The Home Book of Spanish Cookery" compiled by Marina Pereyra de Aznar and Nina Froud.

Using the resources of the Ouachita Parish Public Library can open wide the doors to a more interesting and happier world for you and your family. If you are not using its resources, we invite you to do so as soon as possible.

CAMERA NOTES

Reflections Can Add To Pictures

Today's picture presents a series of complications, as one looks at it for the first time. Glance number one seems to tell that it is a picture of a set of twin boys, then as one does a doubletake, he realizes that he must be standing in front of a set of mirrors, which is true . . . a three - way mirror to be correct. Then when one looks more, he will see an anxious mother trying to get the little fellow to strut his stuff. The little fellow is Danny Redding, whom we tried to get to show off for a straw hat day picture.

Shooting into mirrors and trying to get reflections sharp presents quite a unique problem. If the subject is about three feet from the mirror, the photographer will have to focus on a spot halfway between the subject and the mirror in order to get them both in focus. Also, one must be careful when shooting at a mirror that the flash will bounce awa from the camera lens. This is important because otherwise one will have decided hot spots in the picture, which will make it unusable.

Another good hint for this type of shooting is to try to hold the flash gun high enough above the subjects' head to not only throw the reflected flash down, but also to mold the features by casting some direct shadows under the nose, eyes and chin. All in all, it is very interesting to try to come up with a good print from this type of photography.

We have just about enough good pictures of those cute babies, but we are still waiting for that last good one. So either dig down through the files again, or get the old brownie out and start shooting some more. Get them in to Camera Notes, in care of the News-Star, Monroe.

Guide To Good Reading

Now At The Ouachita Parish Public Library

NEW FICTION TITLES

I am happy that this week we have some interesting books of fiction to offer our readers. Probably the outstanding book of the week is "Far, Far the Mountain Peak" by John Masters. This book is another of his fine book with an Indian setting. It is the story of twenty years of the life of Peter Savage, British civil servant and mountaineer. This is a book of many dimensions. Woven together are the realistic and heartbreakingly triumphant tale of a marriage, the suspenseful story of the years through World War I when Peter Savage tries his will and his friends to the breaking point, the complex picture of India in its restless time of early nationalism, and the thrilling assaults on great mountains that transport the reader with every excitement and danger climbing. The finale finds Peter Savage believing in people as persons rather than in personal glory for himself.

A very exciting story of adventure and intrigue set in Tangier is called "Ferguson" and was written by Rayne Kruger. It is the story of a man who at the age of thirty - six had tossed up his career, and set out to escape a world he no longer believed in. In Tangier the mecca of criminals from East and West, Ferguson discovered that the price of freedom runs high. This is the compelling story of a man who imperiled his life by evading the consequences of being himself. Taut, stark and masterfully told, Ferguson races toward a shattering climax.

A most exciting story of intrigue and international politics set in Boston in the years 1770-1771 is "The Braintree Mission" by Nicholas E. Wyckoff. It is a story of how history might have taken a different course and makes fascinating reading. Helen Topping Miller, while not a great writer is a very pleasing and interesting writer and her books are always popular. Her latest novel is called "Sing One Song." It has its setting in Kntucky at the period of the war between the states. Kentucky though supposedly neutral, was really a battleground where father opposed son and brother set himself against brother. It is a story of strife, tension and love and one that her many fans are sure to enjoy. "Not Yet" by Terestka Torres is an arresting novel set in France in the days of the Phony war. It is a rare portrait of the emotions of a girl no longer a child, but not yet a woman and how she grew up. It has had immense popularity in France and has been translated into English by Miss Torres's husband, Meyer Levin.

In the field of non-fiction there are also a number of new and exciting titles. One of these is called "Rebels and Redcoats" and was written by George F. Scheer and High F. Rankin and has been called the living story of the American Revolution. It consists of actual quotations from many sources and serves to truly bring the period alive again. It is a book for all students of history.

New Biographies

Certain to create a great deal of interest and comment is the autobiography of Diana Barrymore called "Too Much, Too Soon." One reviewer said that this book would lose for her the few friends that she had left. At any rate it is an expose of the theatrical and glamor set and is one that will be very interesting to those who like that sort of thing. A man who had a great influence on the preservation of our natural resources was John Muir. Charles Norman has written an intensely interesting account of his life for young people which he calls "John Muir, Father of our National Parks." It is the story of a young man who had a dream for his country and saw it come true. One of the outstanding modern biographers is Catherine Drinker Bowen. Her latest work is called "The Lion and the Throne." It is an account of the life and times of Sir Edward Coke, a man who had a great influence on the development of the English law. It is a serious and thoughtful book, but one that is certainly worth a careful perusal.

Travel

If you cannot travel, reading about far away places is almost as good as being there. Two books for the arm chair reader are available among the new books this week. "One is "The Great Plantation" by Clifford Dowdey. The other is called "This Delicious Land Portugal" and was written by Marie Neele Kelly. The great plantation is a complete profile of Berkely Hunderd plantation in Virginia. It is also the story of the Harrison family who established the plantation and who made a great contribution to early American history. The book about Portugal is one to make any traveler want to go there. It is profusely illustrated and many of the illustrations are in color. Both of these are books you will want to read.

Practical Books

A beautiful as well as a practical book is Kathleen Yerger Johnstone's "Sea Treasure; A Guide to Shell Collecting." This would be a wonderful book to take if you were going to spend a summer at the sea shore. It is also an excellent book to use if you have been there and brought back a collection of shells and would like to identify them. In recent months we have heard a great deal about automation. Now we have a complete book on the subject called "Let Erma Do It" written by David O. Woodbury. Read this book and find out about Erma and some of her brilliant mechanical friends including Eniac, Univac, Audrey and Whirlwind. An interesting fact about Audrey who belongs to the Bell Laboratories is that she makes no response to women's voices. "The First Book of Ches" by Horwitz and Reinfeld will be eagerly welcomed by devotees of the sport. A new addition to the cookbook collection is "The Home Book of Spanish Cookery" compiled by Marina Pereyra de Aznar and Nina Froud.

Using the resources of the Ouachita Parish Public Library can open wide the doors to a more interesting and happier world for you and your family. If you are not using its resources, we invite you to do so as soon as possible.

Last Word On Horses Found In This Book

The COMPLETE BOOK OF HORSES By Howard J. Lewis (Random House, $2.95).

There have been books and books on horses — all kinds. But the latest offering on the subject by Random House is it.

It is the last word on horses — and features some of the best pictures you ever saw. In the book, you will find all the facts, plus wonderful stories and legends about your favorites — from thoroughbreds and westerns to circus horses and polo ponies.

In fact, you'll find the whole story about every breed, every color and every kind of horse.

And to make this a really complete book of horses, the author has collected fine pictures from many of America's leading animal photographers. These handsome portraits and exciting action photos — along with fully detailed descriptions — make this book a "must" for all who like horses.

The Town 2nd In Faulkner Trilogy

THE TOWN, By William Faulkner, Random House.

Back with Yoknapatawphians again, picking up from his novel "The Hamlet" of a good 15 years ago, Faulkner gives us here the second part of a contemplated trilogy intended to wind up at some future date in "The Mansion."

This is the curious bumbling account of the Snopeses, who sent their first scout into Jefferson inconspicuously behind a mule and began really to infiltrate about the day when livery stables were turning into garages. Flem Snopes was married to Eula Varner but just how much of a husband he has been in fact is the subject of question among the boys and grownups. Linda is her daughter, is she his? Everybody knows Eula is having a time with Major de Spain, and they don't fail to note that Flem advances quickly from cafe job to power-plant superintendent to vice president of de Spain's own bank.

There are other Snopeses, an insidious crowd that worms its way into a handsome little photography business with filthy pictures as a sideline, and also gets control of a chain of small stores. But our main concern is with the fate of Eula, Flem, de Spain, Gavin Stevens the lawyer and Linda, whose various passions are first fired and then cooled by a complex involvement with the banking situation, wills, and other legal documents.

THE HOME SHIFT

Look For Comfort In Garden Attire

By Mildred Swift

It's fun to ride around and see the different garden attire worn by women gardeners. Blue jeans are the fashion of the day. I haven't seen many outfits that look like those worn by the heroine in the movies — you know—the big garden hat, lovely sun dress and immaculate gloves. We gardeners go in for comfort so we can enjoy the gardening. Position is important, too, when you're digging or weeding. Squating may cause muscular strain. Kneeling and sitting are most comfortable positions for low work. Invest in a foam rubber pad to cushion your knees and insulate against dampness. For even greater sitting comfort, use an old footstool with a board nailed across the bottom so the legs won't dig in the ground.

Gardening

Nurseries have roses planted in buckets. You can still plant these with good results. Cut the bucket and ease the ball into a well-prepared hole.

If your violets have not been divided and reset for three or more years, don't neglect that job. After several years of crowding, violets just seem to disappear along in August. There are several reasons for this: First, they choke themselves to death. Second, the sow bugs are working on the roots now, weakening the violet plant and when the hot weather comes, they are too weak to go through the summer. A 50 per cent liquid chlordane sprayed on the ground will help get that pest. Third, the red spider kills the violet plants during the hot weather. Sulphur will help keep this spider from settling on the plants but use Malathion to kill him. When the hot weather comes just pick up a can of dusting sulphur each time you walk in the garden. You'll need it for mildew, leaf spot and red spider.

About this time of year the weeds and grass come up through the brick in your patio and walks. You can kill this by using any weed poison, double strength. Mix and pour on the weeds and grass.

Virginia Creeper and poison ivy look very much alike. Poison ivy has three leaves and Virginia Creeper five. This ivy and old-fashioned honey suckle are both hard to kill. Any chemical that will get rid of them will kill other plants, too. The surest method of annihilation is to put on your gloves and long sleeves and dig and pull out the roots.

Around the Home

Several people have said it's time to give the stocking information again. Here it is: If you have a number of mismated nylon hose, different colors, you can change them all to the same color. Just put the hose in a large boiler and cover with water. Let boil for one hour. The first thirty minutes the hose lose color, the next thirty monutes they take on color, all the same. You'll have an entire new wardrobe of hose. The boiling will not change dark seams or heels. Be sure to keep the hose punched down in the water occasionally. It works! Just try it.

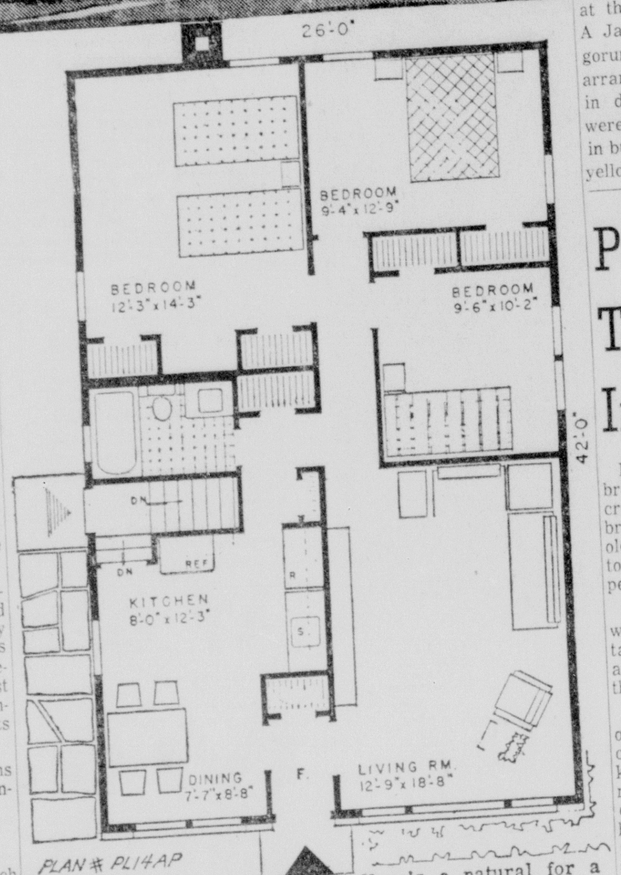
To remove stains from copper or brass, try this old-fashioned but effective little trick. Dip half a lemon into salt and rub on the metal.

Something new — Three cornered pants may now be changed without the agonies of bent safety pins, pricked fingers and nervous maneuvering. This different device is a diaper equipped with fast action dot fasteners. The fasteners are adjustable to fit infants from birth to 18 months old.

Watch for Open House programs next week. Subjects to be announced.

See you next Sunday.

Serving split pea soup for lunch or supper? Add 1 to 2 tablespoons of California sherry per serving and garnish the soup with bacon croutons. Make the croutons by cutting cubes of bread, and sauteeing them to a golden brown in bacon drippings.



SIMPLE BUT ATTRACTIVE: Here's a natural for a narrow plot. Although covering only 26 feet across the front, it offers three bedrooms and convenient living and dining areas. Square footage is 1,092. The plan is PL14AP Architect Samuel Paul, 89-51 164th St., Jamaica 32, N.Y.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Iris Featured By J. Wright

By Mary M. Jardine

Iris were featured in the designs presented by John A. Wright at the Garden Center this week. A Japanese Flower Cart (Goshuguruma) was selected for the first arrangement which was vertical in design. The first placements were tall stalks of pale blue iris, in bud and bloom followed by deep yellow iris. Ti leaves were grouped in the background adding depth to this striking arrangement. The container of heavy black metal was a perfect foil for the strength and beauty of these magnificent iris.

The second arrangement was entirely of iris in pastel tones. A modern bowl in natural earth tan with a pastel lining was chosen for this design. Tall buds of white iris were selected for the primary placement followed by a white iris bloom. The secondary line was a blue iris bud. Three pasel blue iris blooms, skillfully placed to show the individual beauty of each flower completed the beautiful and delicate deisgn.

We wish to thank Misses Eunice and Atlanta Meadows of Ruston for the beautiful iris used in this week's show.

The modern brown compote lined with gray selected for the next design seemed to demand a vertical design. Siberian iris foliage and buds formed the background with deep purple Spuria iris and buds following the established vertical line. Calla foliage was placed low in the bowl to break the severity of the line and incidentally to hide the needlepoint holder.

Another delightful arrangement featured the deep red - violet Watsonias so prevalent in our gardens at this time. A rectangular green bowl held the triangular design. The Watsonias were grouped together to form the vertical placement with iris foliage added in the background for strength. Fully open deep pink roses were grouped at the base with golden - tipped arborvitae placed behind them to complete the triangle pattern.

We are very proud of the awards presented to the Louisiana Tech Collegiate judging team in the first annual Intercollegiate Horticultural Judging Contest held recently in Baton Rouge. John A. Wright, associate professor of horticulture, was coach for this team. The members were: Thomas Gilbert, Monroe; Ralph Merritt, Shreveport; Mrs. Frank Parrish, Ruston; Lane Thurman, Alexandria. Honors won were trophy for high scoring team and large placque for high scoring team in nursery division. Individual plaques were awarded each team member by the American Association of Nurserymen, Inc. Lane Thurman won the trophy for high scoring individual in the entire contest. Congratulations to this fine team and their coach.

Precautions To Be Taken In Brickwork

DO . . . know that leaks through brickwork are usually caused by crumbling mortar between the bricks, although occasionally very old bricks become porous enough to admit water in protracted rainy periods.

DO . . . remove loose mortar with a cold chisel and hammer, tapping gently so as not to disturb any of the solid mortar or damage the bricks themselves.

DO . . . get all loose mortar out of the joint, soak the area thoroughly (preferably with some kind of sprayer) and apply a ready - mixed mortar or one part of portland cement, one part of hydrated lime and three parts of fine sand with just enough water to make a workable mixture.

DO . . . apply the mortar with a pointing trowel, filling the opening flush with the brick and, after a few minutes, drawing the trowel across the mortar to make a very tiny indentation that will permit water to run off.

DON'T . . . work with a large amount of mortar at a time, as this will result in getting some of the mixture on the face of the bricks.

DON'T . . . neglect when replacing an entire brick, to soak the new brick thoroughly for several minutes as well as to wet down the opening completely.

DON'T . . . forget that, when you suspect that water is making an entry through porous bricks, you can use a waterproofing compound which is applied like paint but will not change the color of the bricks.

DON'T . . . overlook a periodic inspection of all brickwork around a house, making the repairs before water has a chance to move in and cause damage to inside walls and ceilings.

Here's a tasty twist to chicken salad. To 1 cup cooked, chopped chicken, add ½ cup each of crumbled, crisp bacon and diced western - grown celery. Toss with cooked salad dressing. Serve it in a red tomato cup, or a cooked artichoke, from which the choke has been removed.

EXTENSION NEWS, VIEWS

Women To Observe National HD Week

By Euna Spielman

Tht week of April 28-May 4 is National Home Demonstration Week, an observation in which the Home Demonstration clubs of Louisiana, 23 of which are in Ouachita parish, and the 47 other states will join. The purpose is not merely to publicize the clubs themselves but to call to the attention of homemakers everywhere the values and opportunities of home demonstration work, whether they are club members or not.

Home demonstration work, sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service and conducted partly with the aid of the many thousands of club members in the state, offers a unique and important service to every homemaker. The task of the Agricultural Extension Service itself is to disseminate information on better methods of farming and homemaking, and encourage their adoption.

The Home Demonstration clubs have pioneered many improvements in the various arts of homemaking that have contributed greatly to better living on the farm and, indeed, to better living in all homes. But the scope of home demonstration work is even broader than that. Through their clubs the homtmakers take an active part in community life.

Through their affiliation with the Associate County Women of the world, an association of similar groups from other free countries, they even have worldwide interests. The home demonstration work carried on by extension is not exclusively for home demonstration club members. But there is a place in her local home demonstration club for every homemaker who wants to share the activities of this busy and progressive organization.

The Home Demonstration program of Ouachita parish is planned to reach both youth and adults. It is under the supervision of a home demonstration agent and two associate home demonstration agents, namely Mrs. Audrey H. Dawson, who devotes her time to work with girls in 4-H; and Mrs. Mildred Swift, who is in charge of marketing information for consumers. All three agents are happy to serve Ouachita parish's people in any way they can.

To Attend State Meeting

Mrs. E. M. Granberry, president, and Mrs. L. A. Whitlock, general director, of the Ouachita Home Demonstration Council, accompanied by the agent, will attend state meeting at L. S. U. May 6-7.

Club Activities

Each of the 23 communities in which there is an organized home demonstration club will have a clean - up campaign May 2. These clubs urge the support of the entire community in this clean-up campaign. Thirteen Home Demonstration clubs will observe National Home Demonstration Week by having a community night meeting at which time a program will be given showing the value of the work.

Five clubs will have a church program relative to homemaking. Other activities which home demonstration clubs will have during the week are tours, window displays, posters, and visits by city clubs. Each club member will receive an identification card signed by Miss Ellen leNoir, state home demonstration agent, under whose guidance the work has made wonderful progress.

All clubs will participate in a casual dress revue, including girls and women as a part of this observance. But since there are so many community activities during the week of April 28-May 4, this revue will be May 18.

If you would like to enroll in a club, call 3-2251 and give my secretary, Mrs. Lila L. Fite, your name and address. I will see that you are enrolled.

Landscaping

By EUNA SPIELMAN

Suggestions given by Mrs Winona Chauffe, home garden specialist of L. S. U. extension service, are: Watch roses for aphids and spray weekly with an all purpose spray. Shear verbena beds, removing old flowers. Plants will bloom fully again. Dust gladiolas weekly with 5 per cent DDT for thrips. Separate violets into single stems after blooming. Violets like rich soil, well drained, plenty of water and prefer sun. For a more colorful yard this summer plant bedding begonias, amaranthus, acalypha, hibiscus, crotons, caladiums, verbena, sedum, plumbaga and vinca.

We have a supply of revised mimeographed bulletins on "Control of Pests of Ornamental and Flowering Plants." You may get one by calling 3-2251 for a copy.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Warm Weather 'Lilies' At Home In The South

By William Lanier Hunt

Southern gardeners are slowly beginning to realize that they can grow a kind of "lilies" that are not as difficult as many true lilies are. The large, bell-shaped crinums look like lilies but are really tough, heat resistant bulbous plants from the hotter parts of the world. Most of the true, "scale-bulb" lilies are native to the world's cooler and cold sections.

In our hot and sometimes dry Southern gardens the crinums are perfectly at home. They will respond to watering and fertilizer amazingly. Most of them are large and need plenty of space in a garden, but they can be worked into the shrub border to give it a touch of color in spring, summer or fall.

Old gardens and towns all over the middle and lower South have a few of the old-fashioned kinds of crinums. Some of these lily-shaped flowers are white, some are white with red stripes and are called "milk-and-wine" lilies. Then there are solid pinks, both light and deep. Do not think these old crinums are all, however, for there are named varieties in crinums just as there are named daffodils and tulips.

The crinum called Cecil Houdyshel, created by Mr. Houdyshel of La Verne, Calif., some years ago is possibly the finest named crinum one can buy because it is not only a beautiful pink "lily" in shape, but, after it has been planted two or three years, it seems to bloom almost continuously from early summer or late spring right through till frost kills the big leaves to the ground. It is heartening to see that some of the most up-to-date seed and bulb stores in the South are beginning to sell bulbs of this and other fine named crinums.

If yo want a "lily" in true wine red, get a bulb of the crinum called Ellen Bosanquet. This was created in Florida by Mr. Louis Bosanquet. There is a pretty pink crinum that blooms early in the year named for Louis Bosanquet, too. In white, you can have the white form of Crinum Powelli, usually listed as C. Powell alba. This variety is upright and produces dozens of tall stems topped with heads of white flowers. It long ago received the coveted Award of Merit from The Royal Horticulture Society of England.

One of the great collectors and growers of crinums down in Florida is Mr. Wyndham Hayward at Winter Park. If you are travelling down there, you can stop and see his plants. Winter Park is near Orlando.

When preparing the ground for a crinum, remember that this bulb will be an enormous thing when it comes. Some are as big as your head. Others will be longish like a very giant onion. A crinum needs as much diet removed for its preparation as a tree! You will not be setting out something temporary but a "permanent piece" in the landscape. Dig out the soil two or three feet deep and remove as much as a bushel or two of soil. Replace this soil with the richest garden dirt you can find, and when you are working it up, stir a big double handful of bone meal per bushel into the dirt before you put it in the hole. Set the bulb so that at least all the green part of the leaves is out of the ground. Most crinums will want to have three or four inches of the neck out, too. Fertilize and water crinums once a month for lots of flowers.

Average Man Can Build Patio Roof For Himself

By ANDREW C. LANG

The dictionary defines a patio as "a house or building area open to the sky."

Presumably, then, if you put a roof on it, the patio becomes something else . . . just what, we don't know. But whatever it becomes, the transformation occurs thousands of times over every year as more and more Americans move along with the trend toward increased outdoor living.

A patio roof is something you can build yourself. In some areas you may have to obtain a building permit to make even this small addition to your house, but this would have to be done even if a professional were hired.

Many Types

There are several different types of framework that can be constructed to support the roof, with even more variations in the kinds of materials that can be used as the covering. The framework we're going to discuss now will support any kind of roof material. In addition, it will be for a carport or a storage area or even as the first step in the eventual construction of an enclosed porch.

So that we can be a little specific about dimensions, let's assume that the patio you wish to cover is 12 feet long by 8 feet wide, a fairly average size, and that the floor is made of concrete or some other form of masonry.

Three posts will be necessary to support the front end of the roof; that is, the part of the roof that will be farthest from the house. These posts should be 4x4s and should be placed in the ground just outside the paved part of the patio. The posts should be sunk in concrete, being sure that, at the very least, the part that is in the ground is soaked with a wood preservative. You will be even wiser to coat every bit of wood that goes into the frame with a preservative, using the colorless type if you desire to maintain the natural appearance of the wood.

7-Foot Clearance

The front end of the roof should be at least 7 feet from the patio floor. In buying the 4x4s, remember to allow for the distance the posts will go into the ground plus the thickness of the floor. The posts must be set into the ground at least 2 feet . . . and more in areas where there is much frost.

Your lumber yard or building supply dealer can advise you about this. Let's say the thickness of the masonry floor is 4 inches and you are going to set the posts into the ground to a depth of 2½ feet. That's a total of 2 feet, 10 inches which, added to 7 feet, makes a total of 9 feet, 10 inches. The 4x4s, therefore, must be at least that long. If you buy 10-footers, set them into the ground to a depth of 2 feet, 8 inches instead of the orignally - planned 2 feet, 6 inches. You then will not have to cut the posts, and you'll still have a roof with a front end 7 feet from the paved floor.

Allow For Slope

A long 2x4 . . . in this case, 12 feet long . . . must be attached horizontally to the house to support the back end of the roof. Since allowance must be made for a slope that will permit drainage, this attachment is made at a point on the house at least 8 feet from the ground. A 2x6 is run across the three vertical posts which are set into the ground — and more 2x6s are placed at right angles to it and the house, forming the rafter section of the framework. In measuring how long these rafters should be, a couple of inches should be allowed for an overhang. Some cross braces — small pieces of 2x4s — are used between the rafters for added strength.

This is the simplest kind of framework construction, yet it will be fully satisfactory no matter what kind of roof material is put on over it. Two precautions must be observed. First, make a sketch of what the completed framework will look like, ignoring its artistic merit as long as you can understand it. This will enable you to see ahead of time whether, and where, any notches have to be cut in the lumber for secure joints. And secondly, use the strongest fasteners that will do the job . . . not the kind that are easiest to use.

About Homes And Gardens

THE HOME SHIFT

Look For Comfort In Garden Attire

By Mildred Swift

It's fun to ride around and see the different garden attire worn by women gardeners. Blue jeans are the fashion of the day. I haven't seen many outfits that look like these worn by the heroine in the movies — you know—the big garden hat, lovely sun dress and immaculate gloves. We gardeners go in for comfort so we can enjoy the gardening. Position is important, too, when you're digging or weeding. Squating may cause muscular strain. Kneeling and sitting are most comfortable positions for low work. Invest in a foam rubber pad to cushion your knees and insulate against dampness. For even greater sitting comfort, use an old tootstool with a board nailed across the bottom so the legs won't dig in the ground.

Gardening

Nurseries have roses planted in buckets. You can still plant these with good results. Cut the bucket and ease the ball into a well-prepared hole.

If your violets have not been divided and reset for three or more years, don't neglect that job. After several years of crowding, violets just seem to disappear along in August. There are several reasons for this: First, they choke themselves to death. Second, the sow bugs are working on the roots now, weakening the violet plant and when the hot weather comes, they are too weak to go through the summer. A 50 per cent liquid chlordane sprayed on the ground will help get that pest. Third, the red spider kills the violet plants during the hot weather. Sulphur will help keep this spider from settling on the plants but use Malathion to kill him. When the hot weather comes just pick up a can of dusting sulphur each time you walk in the garden. You'll need it for mildew, leaf spot and red spider.

About this time of year the weeds and grass come up through the brick in your patio and walks. You can kill this by using any weed poison, double strength. Mix and pour on the weeds and grass.

Virginia Creeper and poison ivy look very much alike. Poison ivy has three leaves and Virginia Creeper five. This ivy and old-fashioned honey suckle are both hard to kill. Any chemical that will get rid of them will kill other plants, too. The surest method of annihilation is to put on your gloves and long sleeves and dig and pull out the roots.

Around the Home

Several people have said it's time to give the stocking information again. Here it is. If you have a number of mismated nylon hose, different colors, you can change them all to the same color. Just put the hose in a large boiler and cover with water. Let boil for one hour. The first thirty minutes the hose lose color, the next thirty monutes they take on color, all the same. You'll have an entire new wardrobe of hose. The boiling will not change dark seams or heels. Be sure to keep the hose punched down in the water occasionally. It works! Just try it.

To remove stains from copper or brass, try this old-fashioned but effective little trick. Dip half a lemon into salt and rub on the metal.

Something new — Three cornered pants may now be changed without the agonies of bent safety pins, pricked fingers and nervous maneuvering. This different device is a diaper equipped with fast action dot fasteners. The fasteners are adjustable to fit infants from birth to 18 months old.

Watch for Open House programs next week. Subjects to be announced.

See you next Sunday.

Serving split pea soup for lunch or supper? Add 1 to 2 tablespoons of California sherry per serving and garnish the soup with bacon croutons. Make the croutons by cutting cubes of bread, and sauteeing them to a golden brown in bacon drippings.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

By Mary M. Jardine

Iris were featured in the designs presented by John A. Wright at the Garden Center this week. A Japanese Flower Cart (Goshuguruma) was selected for the first arrangement which was vertical in design. The first placements were tall stalks of pale blue iris, in bud and bloom followed by deep yellow iris. Ti leaves were grouped in the background adding depth to this striking arrangement. The container of heavy black metal was a perfect foil for the strength and beauty of these magnificent iris.

The second arrangement was entirely of iris in pastel tones. A modern bowl in natural earth tan with a pastel lining was chosen for this design. Tall buds of white iris were selected for the primary placement followed by a white iris bloom. The secondary line was a blue iris bud. Three pasel blue iris blooms, skillfully placed to show the individual beauty of each flower completed the beautiful and delicate deisgn.

We wish to thank Misses Eunice and Atlanta Meadows of Ruston for the beautiful iris used in this week's show.

The modern brown compote lined with gray selected for the next design seemed to demand a vertical design. Siberian iris foliage and buds formed the background with deep purple Spuria iris and buds following the established vertical line. Calla foliage was placed low in the bowl to break the severity of the line and incidentally to hide the needlepoint holder.

Another delightful arrangement featured the deep red - violet Watsonias so prevalent in our gardens at this time. A rectangular green bowl held the triangular design. The Watsonias were grouped together to form the vertical placement with iris foliage added in the background for strength. Fully open deep pink roses were grouped at the base with golden - tipped arborvitae placed behind them to complete the triangle pattern.

We are very proud of the awards presented to the Louisiana Tech Collegiate judging team in the first annual Intercollegiate Horticultural Judging Contest held recently in Baton Rouge. John A. Wright, associate professor of horticulture, was coach for this team. The members were: Thomas Gilbert, Monroe; Ralph Merritt, Shreveport; Mrs. Frank Parrish, Ruston; Lane Thurman, Alexandria. Honors won were trophy for high scoring team and large placque for high scoring team in nursery division. Individual plaques were awarded each team member by the American Association of Nurserymen, Inc. Lane Thurman won the trophy for high scoring individual in the entire contest. Congratulations to this fine team and their coach.

Precautions To Be Taken In Brickwork

DO . . . know that leaks through brickwork are usually caused by crumbling mortar between the bricks, although occasionally very old bricks become porous enough to admit water in protracted rainy periods.

DO . . . remove loose mortar with a cold chisel and hammer, tapping gently so as not to disturb any of the solid mortar or damage the bricks themselves.

DO . . . get all loose mortar out of the joint, soak the area thoroughly (preferably with some kind of sprayer) and apply a ready - mixed mortar or one part of portland cement, one part of hydrated lime and three parts of fine sand with just enough water to make a workable mixture.

DO . . . apply the mortar with a pointing trowel, filling the opening flush with the brick and, after a few minutes, drawing the trowel across the mortar to make a very tiny indentation that will permit water to run off.

DON'T . . . work with a large amount of mortar at a time, as this will result in getting some of the mixture on the face of the bricks.

DON'T . . . neglect when replacing an entire brick, to soak the new brick thoroughly for several minutes as well as to wet down the opening completely.

DON'T . . . forget that, when you suspect that water is making an entry through porous bricks, you can use a waterproofing compound which is applied like paint but will not change the color of the bricks.

DON'T . . . overlook a periodic inspection of all brickwork around a house, making the repairs before water has a chance to move in and cause damage to inside walls and ceilings.

Here's a tasty twist to chicken salad. To 1 cup cooked, chopped chicken, add ½ cup each of crumbled, crisp bacon and diced western - grown celery. Toss with cooked salad dressing. Serve it in a red tomato cup, or a cooked artichoke, from which the choke has been removed.

Landscaping

By EUNA SPIELMAN

Suggestions given by Mrs Winona Chauffe, home garden specialist of L. S. U. extension service, are: Watch roses for aphids and spray weekly with an all purpose spray. Shear verbena beds, removing old flowers. Plants will bloom fully again. Dust gladiolas weekly with 5 per cent DDT for thrips. Separate violets into single stems after blooming. Violets like rich soil, well drained, plenty of water and prefer sun. For a more colorful yard this summer plant bedding begonias, amaranthus, acalypha, hibiscus, crotons, caladiums, verbena, sedum, plumbaga and vinca.

EXTENSION NEWS, VIEWS

Women To Observe National HD Week

By Euna Spielman

Tht week of April 28-May 4 is National Home Demonstration Week, an observation in which the Home Demonstration clubs of Louisiana, 23 of which are in Ouachita parish, and the 47 other states will join. The purpose is not merely to publicize the clubs themselves but to call to the attention of homemakers everywhere the values and opportunities of home demonstration work, whether they are club members or not.

Home demonstration work, sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service and conducted partly with the aid of the many thousands of club members in the state, offers a unique and important service to every homemaker. The task of the Agricultural Extension Service itself is to disseminate information on better methods of farming and homemaking and encourage their adoption.

The Home Demonstration clubs have pioneered many improvements in the various arts of homemaking that have contributed greatly to better living on the farm and, indeed, to better living in all homes. But the scope of home demonstration work is even broader than that. Through their clubs the homtmakers take an active part in community life.

Through their affiliation with the Associate County Women of the world, an association of similar groups from other free countries, they even have worldwide interests. The home demonstration work carried on by extension is not exclusively for home demonstration club members. But there is a place in her local home demonstration club for every homemaker who wants to share the activities of this busy and progressive organization.

The Home Demonstration program of Ouachita parish is planned to reach both youth and adults. It is under the supervision of a home demonstration agent and two associate home demonstration agents, namely Mrs. Audrey H. Dawson, who devotes her time to work with girls in 4-H; and Mrs. Mildred Swift, who is in charge of marketing information for consumers. All three agents are happy to serve Ouachita parish's people in any way they can.

To Attend State Meeting

Mrs. E. M. Granberry, president, and Mrs. L. A. Whitlock, general director, of the Ouachita Home Demonstration Council, accompanied by the agent, will attend state meeting at L. S. U. May 6-7.

Club Activities

Each of the 23 communities in which there is an organized home demonstration club will have a clean - up campaign May 2. These clubs urge the support of the entire community in this clean-up campaign. Thirteen Home Demonstration clubs will observe National Home Demonstration Week by having a community night meeting at which time a program will be given showing the value of the work.

Five clubs will have a church program relative to homemaking. Other activities which home demonstration clubs will have during the week are tours, window displays, posters, and visits by city clubs. Each club member will receive an identification card signed by Miss Ellen leNoir, state home demonstration agent, under whose guidance the work has made wonderful progress.

All clubs will participate in a casual dress revue, including girls and women as a part of this observance. But since there are so many community activities during the week of April 28-May 4, this revue will be May 18.

If you would like to enroll in a club, call 3-2251 and give my secretary, Mrs. Lila L. Fite, your name and address. I will see that you are enrolled.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Warm Weather 'Lilies' At Home In The South

By William Lanier Hunt

Southern gardeners are slowly beginning to realize that they can grow a kind of "lilies" that are not as difficult as many true lilies are. The large, bell-shaped crinums look like lilies but are really tough, heat resistant bulbous plants from the hotter parts of the world. Most of the true, "scale-bulb" lilies are native to the world's cooler and cold sections.

In our hot and sometimes dry Southern gardens the crinums are perfectly at home. They will respond to watering and fertilizer amazingly. Most of them are large and need plenty of space in a garden, but they can be worked into the shrub border to give it a touch of color in spring, summer or fall.

Old gardens and towns all over the middle and lower South have a few of the old-fashioned kinds of crinums. Some of these lily-shaped flowers are white, some are white with red stripes and are called "milk-and-wine" lilies. Then there are solid pinks, both light and deep. Do not think these old crinums are all, however, for there are named varieties in crinums just as there are named daffodils and tulips.

The crinum called Cecil Houdyshel, created by Mr. Houdyshel of La Verne, Calif., some years ago is possibly the finest named crinum one can buy because it is not only a beautiful pink "lily" in shape, but, after it has been planted two or three years, it seems to bloom almost continuously from early summer or late spring right through till frost kills the big leaves to the ground. It is heartening to see that some of the most up-to-date seed and bulb stores in the South are beginning to sell bulbs of this and other fine named crinums.

If you want a "lily" in true wine red, get a bulb of the crinum called Ellen Bosanquet. This was created in Florida by Mr. Louis Bosanquet. There is a pretty pink crinum that blooms early in the year named for Louis Bosanquet, too. In white, you can have the white form of Crinum Powelli, usually listed as C. Powell alba. This variety is upright and produces dozens of tall stems topped with heads of white flowers. It long ago received the coveted Award of Merit from The Royal Horticulture Society of England.

One of the great collectors and growers of crinums down in Florida is Mr. Wyndham Hayward at Winter Park. If you are travelling down there, you can stop and see his plants. Winter Park is near Orlando.

When preparing the ground for a crinum, remember that this bulb will be an enormous thing when it comes. Some are as big as your head. Others will be longish like a very giant onion. A crinum needs as much diet removed for its preparation as a tree! You will not be setting out something temporary but a "permanent piece" in the landscape. Dig out the soil two or three feet deep and remove as much as a bushel or two of soil. Replace this soil with the richest garden dirt you can find, and when you are working it up, stir a big double handful of bone meal per bushel into the dirt before you put it in the hole. Set the bulb so that at least all the green part of the leaves is out of the ground. Most crinums will want to have three or four inches of the neck out, too. Fertilize and water crinums once a month for lots of flowers.

Average Man Can Build Patio Roof For Himself

By ANDREW C. LANG

The dictionary defines a patio as "a house or building area open to the sky."

Presumably, then, if you put a roof on it, the patio becomes something else . . . just what, we don't know. But whatever it becomes, the transformation occurs thousands of times over every year as more and more Americans move along with the trend toward increased outdoor living.

A patio roof is something you can build yourself. In some areas you may have to obtain a building permit to make even this small addition to your house, but this would have to be done even if a professional were hired.

Many Types

There are several different types of framework that can be constructed to support the roof, with even more variations in the kinds of materials that can be used as the covering. The framework we're going to discuss now will support any kind of roof material. In addition, it will be for a carport or a storage area or even as the first step in the eventual construction of an enclosed porch.

So that we can be a little specific about dimensions, let's assume that the patio you wish to cover is 12 feet long by 8 feet wide, a fairly average size, and that the floor is made of concrete or some other form of masonry.

Three posts will be necessary to support the front end of the roof; that is, the part of the roof that will be farthest from the house. These posts should be 4x4s and should be placed in the ground just outside the paved part of the patio. The posts should be sunk in concrete, being sure that, at the very least, the part that is in the ground is soaked with a wood preservative. You will be even wiser to coat every bit of wood that goes into the frame with a preservative, using the colorless type if you desire to maintain the natural appearance of the wood.

7-Foot Clearance

The front end of the roof should be at least 7 feet from the patio floor. In buying the 4x4s, remember to allow for the distance the posts will go into the ground plus the thickness of the floor. The posts must be set into the ground at least 2 feet . . . and more in areas where there is much frost.

Your lumber yard or building supply dealer can advise you about this. Let's say the thickness of the masonry floor is 4 inches and you are going to set the posts into the ground to a depth of 2½ feet. That's a total of 2 feet, 10 inches which, added to 7 feet, makes a total of 9 feet, 10 inches. The 4x4s, therefore, must be at least that long. If you buy 10-footers, set them into the ground to a depth of 2 feet, 8 inches instead of the orignally - planned 2 feet, 6 inches. You then will not have to cut the posts, and you'll still have a roof with a front end 7 feet from the paved floor.

Allow For Slope

A long 2x4 . . . in this case, 12 feet long . . . must be attached horizontally to the house to support the back end of the roof. Since allowance must be made for a slope that will permit drainage, this attachment is made at a point on the house at least 8 feet from the ground. A 2x6 is run across the three vertical posts which are set into the ground — and more 2x6s are placed at right angles to it and the house, forming the rafter section of the framework. In measuring how long these rafters should be, a couple of inches should be allowed for an overhang. Some cross braces — small pieces of 2x4s — are used between the rafters for added strength.

This is the simplest kind of framework construction, yet it will be fully satisfactory no matter what kind of roof material is put on over it. Two precautions must be observed. First, make a sketch of what the completed framework will look like, ignoring its artistic merit as long as you can understand it. This will enable you to see ahead of time whether, and where, any notches have to be cut in the lumber for secure joints. And secondly, use the strongest fasteners that will do the job . . . not the kind that are easiest to use.

Shady Grove's Church To Be Dedicated

The Shady Grove Church of God is announcing the dedication of their new church this morning. Following Sunday school, held at the usual hour of 10 a.m., the dedication is to take place at the 11 a.m. service, the pastor, the Rev. Vernon Hibbard announces.

Dedicatory sermon will be delivered by the Rev. V. D. Combs, state overseer of the Churches of God in Louisiana.

After the morning message, a basket dinner will be served in the church dining room . The afternoon will be devoted to a musical program with solos, duets, quartets, and by the church choir. A handsome Baldwin organ has been furnished for this service by a Monroe music company.

Construction of this church was initiated last November and a handsome building, valued at $40,000, is now resultant from their personal efforts. The location is seven miles north of Holly Ridge. It is of buff brick and with green stained cathedral windows which are admired by all who have already made inspection. The plant comprises five Sunday school rooms, pastor's study, kitchen, a dining room area combined with a small auditorium, baptistry and two rest rooms.

Completing the decoration of the interior is a beautiful picture above the baptistry which is the workmanship of Mrs. Herbert Faust of Holly Ridge.

The outside of the church is made complete with a tall white steeple setting off the church as a whole as it blends into the colorful setting of trees and lawn. The church is climax to fifteen years of effort by the devoted members of the congregation.

The public is urged to attend the Sunday service of dedication.

Korea Hearing Gospel Given Thru Radio

The Christian radio station in Seoul — station HLKY, the "Radio Voice of the Church in Korea" --has now completed two years of broadcasting. A Methodist missionary, Donald T. Payne, of La Junta, Colo., is manager of the station which is operated by an interdenominational agency -- RAVEMCO. Other Protestant churches cooperate in the program.

The two years have seen steady expansion in the broadcasting of this evangelical radio station. Time on the air has increased in the two years from 31 to 50 hours per week, averaging more than two hours each morning and five each evening. Audience surveys in Seoel indicate that fully one third of the radio homes in the capital city prefer HLKY to all other stations. The first one hundred battery radios, "Portable Missionaries," are being assembled and will soon be doing duty in as many country churches. Each church will thus become a listening center for that village.

Equipment necessary for increasing the power output of the Christian radio station from 5,000 to 10,000 watts is en route to Korea and very soon will be installed. This will increase the strength of the signal all over North and South Korea. Although every form of religious activity has been suppressed in Communist North Korea, the air waves are daily piercing the iron curtain above the 38th parallel with the comfort and the challenge of the Gospel.

The church in Korea numbers about 1,000,000 Christians, but there are 29,000,000 persons who still need to hear the gospel message. These 30,000,000 Koreans and tens of thousands of servicemen still in Korea constitute the station's "target audience." They are reached by fine music, gospel messages, drama and every other form of good prograf.

College Pl. Will Have Week For Its Revival

The College Place Baptist Church will be engaged in revival services beginning today and continuing through Sunday, May 5. The pastor, Rev. T. Earl Ogg, will be the preacher for this series of meetings.

Coming to assist him will be Dr. Joe W. Bartlett, professor of sacred music and voice at the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary in New Orleans, Louisiana. Dr. Bartlett is much in demand for his ability as a music director and a soloist and will thrill the hearts of those who hear him this week. He is also an ordained minister and, at the present, is serving as interim pastor at the Trinity Baptist Church in Hattiesburg, Mississippi. He commutes between New Orleans and Hattiesburg each week end. Special music will be rendered at all the services of the revival, utilizing the five choirs of our church.

Services will be daily at 9:45 a.m. when Brother Ogg will teach the book of I John Monday through Friday. Evening services will be at 7:45.

Ridge Ave. Has An Anniversary; Traces To 1940

The sevententh anniversary of Ridge Avenue Baptist Church will be observed in a big way today. For the morning service at 11 o'clock, Mayor Allan Norris and City Judge Jasper Jones will attend as special guests, and each will deliver a brief talk.

The pastor, the Rev. A. T. Mitchell, will trace the unusual growth of this church which now in church membership and all departments ranks even in excess of all expectations. The Sunday school, for example, set a goal of 500 but last Sunday it reached a record of 550 in attendance.

At noon today, there will be a basket picnic dinner and everyone is invited to come with supplies for their families or others who may not be thus provided.

The Shady Grove Church of God is announcing the dedication of their new church this morning. Following Sunday school, held at the usual hour of 10 a.m., the dedication is to take place at the 11 a.m. service, the pastor, the Rev. Vernon Hibbard announces.

Dedicatory sermon will be delivered by the Rev. V. D. Combs, state overseer of the Churches of God in Louisiana.

After the morning message, a basket dinner will be served in the church dining room . The afternoon will be devoted to a musical program with solos, duets, quartets, and by the church choir. A handsome Baldwin organ has been furnished for this service by a Monroe music company.

Construction of this church was initiated last November and a handsome building, valued at $40,000, is now resultant from their personal efforts. The location is seven miles north of Holly Ridge. It is of buff brick and with green stained cathedral windows which are admired by all who have already made inspection. The plant comprises five Sunday school rooms, pastor's study, kitchen, a dining room area combined with a small auditorium, baptistry and two rest rooms.

Completing the decoration of the interior is a beautiful picture above the baptistry which is the workmanship of Mrs. Herbert Faust of Holly Ridge.

The outside of the church is made complete with a tall white steeple setting off the church as a whole as it blends into the colorful setting of trees and lawn. The church is climax to fifteen years of effort by the devoted members of the congregation.

The public is urged to attend the Sunday service of dedication.

Korea Hearing Gospel Given Thru Radio

The Christian radio station in Seoul — station HLKY, the "Radio Voice of the Church in Korea" --has now completed two years of broadcasting. A Methodist missionary, Donald T. Payne, of La Junta, Colo., is manager of the station which is operated by an interdenominational agency -- RAVEMCO. Other Protestant churches cooperate in the program.

The two years have seen steady expansion in the broadcasting of this evangelical radio station. Time on the air has increased in the two years from 31 to 50 hours per week, averaging more than two hours each morning and five each evening. Audience surveys in Seoul indicate that fully one third of the radio homes in the capital city prefer HLKY to all other stations. The first one hundred battery radios, "Portable Missionaries," are being assembled and will soon be doing duty in as many country churches. Each church will thus become a listening center for that village.

Equipment necessary for increasing the power output of the Christian radio station from 5,000 to 10,000 watts is en route to Korea and very soon will be installed. This will increase the strength of the signal all over North and South Korea. Although every form of religious activity has been suppressed in Communist North Korea, the air waves are daily piercing the iron curtain above the 38th parallel with the comfort and the challenge of the Gospel.

The church in Korea numbers about 1,000,000 Christians, but there are 29,000,000 persons who still need to hear the gospel message. These 30,000,000 Koreans and tens of thousands of servicemen still in Korea constitute the station's "target audience." They are reached by fine music, gospel messages, drama and every other form of good prograf.

College Pl. Will Have Week For Its Revival

The College Place Baptist Church will be engaged in revival services beginning today and continuing through Sunday, May 5. The pastor, Rev. T. Earl Ogg, will be the preacher for this series of meetings.

Coming to assist him will be Dr. Joe W. Bartlett, professor of sacred music and voice at the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary in New Orleans, Louisiana. Dr. Bartlett is much in demand for his ability as a music director and a soloist and will thrill the hearts of those who hear him this week. He is also an ordained minister and, at the present, is serving as interim pastor at the Trinity Baptist Church in Hattiesburg, Mississippi. He commutes between New Orleans and Hattiesburg each week end. Special music will be rendered at all the services of the revival, utilizing the five choirs of our church.

Services will be daily at 9:45 a.m. when Brother Ogg will teach the book of I John Monday through Friday. Evening services will be at 7:45.

Ridge Ave. Has An Anniversary; Traces To 1940

The sevententh anniversary of Ridge Avenue Baptist Church will be observed in a big way today. For the morning service at 11 o'clock, Mayor Allan Norris and City Judge Jasper Jones will attend as special guests, and each will deliver a brief talk.

The pastor, the Rev. A. T. Mitchell, will trace the unusual growth of this church which now in church membership and all departments ranks even in excess of all expectations. The Sunday school, for example, set a goal of 500 but last Sunday it reached a record of 550 in attendance.

At noon today, there will be a basket picnic dinner and everyone is invited to come with supplies for their families or others who may not be thus provided.

Forest Fire Fighting Maneuvers Set Monday

BATON ROUGE, April 27 (UP) —The first forest fire fighting field maneuvers in Louisanan history will be staged by the Louisiana Forestry Commission in Washington parish starting Monday, State Forester James E. Mixon announced today.

He said the maneuvers will last for three days and will involve about 60 men from th Louisiana agency, the Mississippi Forestry Commission and Gaylord Container Corp. in Bogalusa.

Purpose of the exercises is to test effectiveness of the south central states forest fire protection compact commission, Mixon added.

The compact was formed several years ago by Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma for mutual aid in case of a forest fire emergency in any of the states. A. D. Folweiler, Texas State forester, is chairman of the 1957 compact.

The field problem will begin early Monday morning when a simulated fire is spotted by the commission's sheridan tower near Bogalusa. The fire weather will be at the "critical" stage, Mixon said, similar to the condition in Sabine parish last fall.

The simulated fire, about 2,000 acres in size, will become progressively worse and it will be necessary for district forester Lee Sessions, Hammond, to request emergenck help from Wolweiler.

Mixon said 12 field umpires will judge the operation, similar to the procedure in military maneuvers. After the exercise, a critique will be held to review mistakes. In July another maneuver will be staged on the Alexander state forest involving units from other states, Mixon said.

W. C. Valentine, chief of forest protection, will be chief umpire Monday. He will be assisted by all district foresters of the commission and staff foresters of the Baton Rou office.

Assistant State Forester W. M. Palmer, district forester Harold Foil, and assistant chief forester for Gaylord Container Corp Wilbur Henderson, will be umpires at large.

FOR U.S. SECURITY

Sea-Level Panama Canal Would Cost $3.5 Billion

PANAMA, C.Z., April 27 (AP)—The Panama Canal probably could be made reasonably secure against bomber or missile attack or sabotage—by spending about 3½ billion dollars.

That, says Gov. William E. Potter, is the estimated cost of rebuilding the present three-lock system into a sea level waterway.

Potter, in talking to newsmen, made clear he was neither advocating nor opposing a change in the present canal or building the long-discussed ocean level route across Nicaragua.

However, Potter — who is an Army major general as well as governor of the Canal Zone — points out the following:

From the standpoint of national defense, the need is for a canal which could be repaired quickly and easily if damaged.

The present canal could not. If an explosion should destroy a lock or the dam which holds the big lake of Gatun it might take as much as three years to repair the damage and get the waterway back into operation. Just to refill Gatun Lake would take a year; the average annual net inflow into the lake is more than 173 billion cubic feet; the loss just from evaporation is over 21 billion cubic feet.

A study was made about 10 years ago of the possibility of a sea level canal. One could be built across the isthmus entirely within the confines of the present zone, Potter says.

The banks of such a canal would be sloped well back, with no high-walled areas like the Gaillard Cut. A crater produced by an atomic weapon would not cause a landslide to block the canal. The lip of such a crater would be dredged out fairly fast if one was blasted in the canal itself.

Because of the difference in tides between the Atlantic and Pacific (about 20 feet in the Pacific and only 2 in the Atlantic) a tidal gate or lock about 18 feet high might have to be built. But this would be of reasonably simple construction and easy to repair.

However, the amount of excavation for a sea level route across the canal zone would be tremendous. The bottom of such a canal would have to be 100 feet below the present water level of Gatun Lake, which is about 80 feet above sea level.

The estimated cost for modernizing the existing canal into a big lock system which could handle the largest ships is about 2½ billion dollars. The present canal cannot handle some of the biggest carriers nor even some of the new oversize tankers now operating or being built.

Ex-Convict Gets Life Term For Slaying Woman

COLUMBIANA, Ala., April 27 (AP) —Ex-convict Charles Edwards today was sentenced to life imprisonment for murdering a farm wife. His attorneys advised against an appeal.

A circuit court jury returned a verdict of first-degree murder in the stabbing death of Mrs. Helen Odell Falkner, 20, at her farm home near here last fall.

Edwards, 40, also was indicted in the knife murder of Mrs. Falkner's 3-year-old son, Jerome, who also was killed in the farm residence last Oct. 26. Edwar has not been tried in this case.

Principal witness against Edwards was Mrs. Inez Abel, 40, who testified that he went into the house while she waited outside on the day that the Falkners were slain. A toxicologist said the mother had been raped.

Mrs. Abel in her testimony described six months of narcotics use, drinking, burglaries and fights while she was the accused man's companion.

Edwards showed no emotion when the verdict was returned. He at first asked for an apptal from the life sentence fixed by the jury, but withdrew the request on recommendation of his court-appointed attorneys.

Mrs. Abel also was charged with the slayings, but was not indicted by the grand jury which returned true bills against Edwards.

Both she and Edwards were sentenced to 20 years each after pleading guilty to two burglaries committed in Shelby County shortly before the murders.

Almost eight per cent of the 500,000,000 tons of coal mined in the United States in 1956 was produced in Ohio where total state tonnage was 39,500,000, the Keystone Coal Buyers Manaual reports.

Officers said Adam Cline was killed when the car he was driving collided with a Kansas City Southern passenger train at the Ventress crossing about 12:25 a.m.

That, says Gov. William E. Potter, is the estimated cost of rebuilding the present three-lock system into a sea level waterway.

Potter, in talking to newsmen, made clear he was neither advocating nor opposing a change in the present canal or building the long-discussed ocean level route across Nicaragua.

However, Potter — who is an Army major general as well as governor of the Canal Zone — points out the following:

From the standpoint of national defense, the need is for a canal which could be repaired quickly and easily if damaged.

The present canal could not. If an explosion should destroy a lock or the dam which holds the big lake of Gatun it might take as much as three years to repair the damage and get the waterway back into operation. Just to refill Gatun Lake would take a year; the average annual net inflow into the lake is more than 173 billion cubic feet; the loss just from evaporation is over 21 billion cubic feet.

A study was made about 10 years ago of the possibility of a sea level canal. One could be built across the isthmus entirely within the confines of the present zone, Potter says.

The banks of such a canal would be sloped well back, with no high-walled areas like the Gaillard Cut. A crater produced by an atomic weapon would not cause a landslide to block the canal. The lip of such a crater would be dredged out fairly fast if one was blasted in the canal itself.

Because of the difference in tides between the Atlantic and Pacific (about 20 feet in the Pacific and only 2 in the Atlantic) a tidal gate or lock about 18 feet high might have to be built. But this would be of reasonably simple construction and easy to repair.

However, the amount of excavation for a sea level route across the canal zone would be tremendous. The bottom of such a canal would have to be 100 feet below the present water level of Gatun Lake, which is about 80 feet above sea level.

The estimated cost for modernizing the existing canal into a big lock system which could handle the largest ships is about 2½ billion dollars. The present canal cannot handle some of the biggest carriers nor even some of the new oversize tankers now operating or being built.

Ex-Convict Gets Life Term For Slaying Woman

COLUMBIANA, Ala., April 27 (AP)—Ex-convict Charles Edwards today was sentenced to life imprisonment for murdering a farm wife. His attorneys advised against an appeal.

A circuit court jury returned a verdict of first-degree murder in the stabbing death of Mrs. Helen Odell Falkner, 20, at her farm home near here last fall.

Edwards, 40, also was indicted in the knife murder of Mrs. Falkner's 3-year-old son, Jerome, who also was killed in the farm residence last Oct. 26. Edwar has not been tried in this case.

Principal witness against Edwards was Mrs. Inez Abel, 40, who testified that he went into the house while she waited outside on the day that the Falkners were slain. A toxicologist said the mother had been raped.

Mrs. Abel in her testimony described six months of narcotics use, drinking, burglaries and fights while she was the accused man's companion.

Edwards showed no emotion when the verdict was returned. He at first asked for an apptal from the life sentence fixed by the jury, but withdrew the request on recommendation of his court-appointed attorneys.

Mrs. Abel also was charged with the slayings, but was not indicted by the grand jury which returned true bills against Edwards.

Both she and Edwards were sentenced to 20 years each after pleading guilty to two burglaries committed in Shelby County shortly before the murders.

Almost eight per cent of the 500,000,000 tons of coal mined in the United States in 1956 was produced in Ohio where total state tonnage was 39,500,000, the Keystone Coal Buyers Manaual reports.

Officers said Adam Cline was killed when the car he was driving collided with a Kansas City Southern passenger train at the Ventress crossing about 12:25 a.m.

Old Man And Beard Looks Like Fiery Bibical Prophet

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — The old man, with his tremendous beard and an expression that somehow manages to be both benign and stern, looked like a Biblical prophet as he walked to the rostrum.

And there are those in educational circles who thin' that's exactly what Dr. Martin Buber of Israel is, a modern prophet bringing a message on how man can better understand himself.

The 80-year-old Buber is a writer and a religious philosopher. He studied, taught, wrote and edited in Germany until Hitler came along. In 1938 he moved to the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Buber has been in this country for a series of lectures on religion at Columbia University in New York. And here, sponsored by the Washington School of Psychiatry, he has had a lecture series with the formidable title:

"What Can Philosophical Anthropology Contribute to Psychology?"

Before looking at what Dr. Buber says, let's turn t what others have said of him.

"His whole personality," one scholar has decided, "tolerates no untruthfulness and no unclarity."

"Outside of Albert Schweitzer," another has written, "I know of no one who has realized in himself a similar great and genuine identity of truth and life.

"This little old man with the penetrating, incorruptible eyes has already today begun to project into the brokenness of our time like a legendary figure. Buber has accomplished what one can only say of a very few: he has reached the limits of his own being."

Despite this glowing endorsement, it's difficult for a layman to follow Buber's most celebrated accomplishment: his "I-Thou" theory of human relationships.

Even attempts by experts to explain it are likely to end in bewildering anyone not well schooled in psychology. For example, here's the explanation as prepared by the Washington School of Psychiatry:

"According to Buber, man's attitudes are twofold, in accordance with the twofold nature of the two primary words that he speaks in relation to the world. These are not isolate words, but combined words.

"One primary word is the combination 'I-Thou,' the other is the combination 'I-It 'he' or 'she' may replace 'it' without constituting, in Buber's terms, a change in the primary word.'

And so for four or five more paragraphs.

Unfortunately, because of his age, Dr. Buber will allow no interviews at which he might be able to simplify his meaning.

But all this needn't trouble anyone who drops in to listen to the doctor.

He bobs his head in recognition of the applause, steps to the rostrum and begins his lecture in a heavy German accent.

His point comes across: that each of us should strive to preser himself exactly as he is.

"Few men are indifferent to the impression they make," he says, "and others may be exclusively interested in the impression they make."

"It's the latter who worry Buber. And he gives the illustration of Peter meeting Paul, each desperately eager to make a good impression.

With this result:

There's the impression Paul wants to get across to Peter, and the impression Peter hopes to make on Paul.

Then there's the impression that Paul makes on Peter, and Peter's impression of Paul.

Finally there's the image of what Peter thinks he is, and there's the image of what Paul thinks he is.

"Two living persons," Buber says, "and six ghostly appearances.'

Fortunately, he says, "ghosts can be exorcized.'

His advice:

"Practice directness. Even if you are the last person on earth. practice directness.'

Pennsy Obtains Court Order To Halt Its Strike

PHILADELPHIA, April 27 (AP) — The Pennsylvania Rail Road yesterday obtained a federal court order temporarily halting a strike of 25,000 maintenance and other nonoperating employes at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The halt-strike order was issued by U. S. Dist. Judge John W. Lord Jr. who set next Friday for a further hearing on the matter.

The strike was called by the Transport Workers Union. Its international president, Michael Quill, said in a statement from New York that the membership in 52 locals had voted "overwhelmingly" to strike America's largest railroad.

The union said the dispute with the PRR was over work assignments.

Military Oil Board Changed

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — The Interior Department yesterday announced addition of six members to the Military Petroleum Advisory Board and reappointment of seven members to serve three-years terms.

The board, which will now have 28 members, was established to advise the government on oil and gas matters relating to national security.

New members include Walter E. Caine, Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., Shreveport, La.

RACIAL CONTEMP CASES

U.S. Asks Court To Refuse Pleas

KNOXILLE, Tenn., April 27 (AP) —The government asked a U.S. District Court today to deny dismissal motions filed in behalf of 17 persons accused of criminal contempt of court in the Clinton High School integration cases.

The 17 including segregationist John Kasper of Washington, D.C. are accused of criminal contempt of federal court for alleged violation of a permanent injunction prohibiting interference with peaceful integration of the school.

Defense counsel asked that the charges be dismissed on grounds among other things, that the injunction violated the defendants' rights under the First Amendment.

But U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford Jr. maintained in his petition asking Judge Robert L. Taylor to deny the dismissal motions that the injunction does not violate the First Amendment. He added that the amendment, which guarantees the right of assembly, "does not confer the right to persuade others to violate the law."

The government's petition added:

"Even if this court had no jurisdiction to issue the injunction, or if it is contrary to the First Amendment or if it is invalid for any reason, the defendants are properly chargeable for violating it.

"An injunction must be obyed until it is vacated by orderly process of law, and one who assumes to judge its validity and act in violation of it does so at his peril."

Taylor issued the court order last September to halt disorders at Clinton High which he had ordered admit 12 Negro students.

Kasper was sentenced in September by Taylor to a year in prison for violating the injunction He appealed and the case is under advisement by the U.S. Court of Appeals 6th Circuit, at Cincinnati.

He was arrested in March on a second contempt charge. Sixteen other persons were arrested on contempt charges in December in connection with an outbreak of violence at Clinton, 20 miles northwest of here. All are free under bond pending trial, date of which has not been set.

Taylor will hear oral arguments on May 2 on the various defense and government motions in the cases.

Several islands in the South Seas Polynesian groups have found an effective way to reprimand tardy tax payers. By law, those who pay their taxes on time are privileged to move into the homes of delinquent tax payers and live as free guests until the lacking taxes are paid.

A "portable platform" to drill for oil in the Gulf of Mexico tidelands sometimes costs $3,250,000.

Problem Drinker Institute Will Be Held In Shreveport

SHREVEPORT (Special)—Many of Louisiana's largest industries, and some of its smallest, will be represented at the Institute on the Problem Drinker which opens at Centenary College Monday.

More than 150 persons are expected for the four - day session, the first ever held in this part of the country by the world-famous Yale University Center of Alcohol Studies. Advance registrations have come in from New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Alexandria and Monroe as well as Shreveport, and from Austin, Brownwood and Orange, Tex. and Crossett, Ark.

The problem drinker costs Louisiana industry an estimated $8 million or more a year in lost time alone, according to some authorities. Those firms, along with labor union representatives, have a vital interest in the Yale plan to be discussed during the institute.

Worked out at the Yale University Center with cooperating industries, it can be adapted to any size business and is geared to help the problem drinker become a full - time worker instead of a "half man" on the payroll.

The institute will also direct considerable attention to education on alcohol and is expected to draw a representative group of school personnel, probation officers and social workers who are interested in that phase of the problem.

Seminars are scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday nights, with one section discussing the educational phase under the leadership of Raymond G. McCarthy and the other industrial control of drinking, led by Ralph N. Henderson. McCarthy is associate director of the Yale Summer School on Alcohol Studies and Henderson is industrial consultant for the Yale Center.

Other topics include the nature and extent of problems of alcohol, physiology and metabolism, psychological effects, treatment of alcoholism, instruction in schools and colleges, counselling, prevention of alcoholism, the Louisiana program and a panel on "The College Student Looks at Alcoholism."

The institute is sponsored by Centenary College, the Shreveport Medical Society and the State Department of Hospitals.

President Seeking Stronger GOP

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower, in a telephone talk to a party workers' regional conference here, called yesterday for "a stronger, completely up-to-date Republican party."

Urging a "more effective party" for the "all-important task of electing a Republican House and Senate in 1958," he repeated what he told an earlier regional coference at Omaha:

"Our never-ending task is to make the Republican party responsive to the modern-day needs and aspirations of all the people."

The President spoke from Augusta, Ga., where he is vacationing.

Eisenhower conceded that there are "differences of opinion within our party and I hope there always will be." Divergent points of view, he said, spell "a healthy condition as long as the fundamental beliefs within that party provide a common nucleus of thought, a common ground."

"We have that in the Republican party — a set of unalterable truths that bind us together into an inseparable whole . . ."

Old Man And Beard Looks Like Fiery Bibical Prophet

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — The old man, with his tremendous beard and an expression that somehow manages to be both benign and stern, looked like a Biblical prophet as he walked to the rostrum.

And there are 'those in educational circles who thin' that's exactly what Dr. Martin Buber of Israel is, a modern prophet bringing a message on how mar can better understand himself.

The 80-year-old Buber is a writer and a religious philosopher. He studied, taught, wrote and edited in Germany until Hider came along. In 1938 he moved to the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Buber has been in this country for a series of lectures on religion York. And here, sponsored by the at Columbia University in New Washington School of Psychiatry, he has had a lecture series with the formidable title:

"What Can Philosophical Anthropology Contribute to Psychology?"

Before looking at what Dr. Buber says, let's turn t what others have said of him.

"His whole personality," one scholar has decided, "tolerates no untruthfulness and no unclarity."

"Outside of Albert Schweitzer," another has written, "I know of no one who has realized in himself a similar great and genuine identity of truth and life.

"This little old man with the penetrating, incorruptible eyes has already today begun to project into the brokenness of our time like a legendary figure. Buber has accomplished what one can only say of a very few: he has reached the limits of his own being."

Despite this glowing endorsement, it's difficult for a layman to follow Buber's most celebrated accomplishment: his "I-Thou" theory of human relationships.

Even attempts by experts to explain it are likely to end in bewildering anyone not well schooled in psychology. For example, here's the explanation as prepared by the Washington School of Psychiatry:

"According to Buber, man's attitudes are twofold, in accordance with the twofold nature of the two primary words that he speaks in relation to the world. These are not isolate words, but combined words.

"One primary word is the combination 'I-Thou,' the other is the combination 'I-It 'he' or 'she' may replace 'it' without constituting, in Buber's terms, a change in the primary word.'

And so for four or five more paragraphs.

Unfortunately, because of his age, Dr. Buber will allow no interviews at which he might be able to simplify his meaning.

But all this needn't trouble anyone who drops in to listen to the doctor.

He bobs his head in recognition of the applause, steps to the rostrum and begins his lecture in a heavy German accent.

His point comes across: that each of us should strive to preser himself exactly as he is.

"Few men are indifferent to the impression they make," he says, "and others may be exclusively interested in the impression they make."

"It's the latter who worry Buber. And he gives the illustration of Peter meeting Paul, each desperately eager to make a good impression.

With this result:

There's the impression Paul wants to get across to Peter, and the impression Peter hopes to make on Paul.

Then there's the impression that Paul makes on Peter, and Peter's impression of Paul.

Finally there's the image of what Peter thinks he is, and there's the image of what Paul thinks he is.

"Two living persons," Buber says, "and six ghostly appearances."

Fortunately, he says, "ghosts can be exorcized."

His advice:

"Practice directness. Even if you are the last person on earth, practice directness."

Pennsy Obtains Court Order To Halt Its Strike

PHILADELPHIA, April 27 (AP) — The Pennsylvania Rail Road yesterday obtained a federal court order temporarily halting a strike of 25,000 maintenance and other nonoperating employes at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

The halt-strike order was issued by U. S. Dist. Judge John W. Lord Jr. who set next Friday for a further hearing on the matter.

The strike was called by the Transport Workers Union. Its international president, Michael Quill, said in a statement from New York that the membership in 52 locals had voted "overwhelmingly" to strike America's largest railroad.

The union said the dispute with the PRR was over work assignments.

Military Oil Board Changed

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP) — The Interior Department yesterday announced addition of six members to the Military Petroleum Advisory Board and reappointment of seven members to serve three-years terms.

The board, which will now have 28 members, was established to advise the government on oil and gas matters relating to national security.

New members include Walter E. Caine, Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., Shreveport, La.

RACIAL CONTEMP CASES

U.S. Asks Court To Refuse Pleas

KNOXILLE, Tenn., April 27 (AP) —The government asked a U.S. District Court today to deny dismissal motions filed in behalf of 17 persons accused of criminal contempt of court in the Clinton High School integration cases.

The 17 including segregationist John Kasper of Washington, D.C. are accused of criminal contempt of federal court for alleged violation of a permanent injunction prohibiting interference with peaceful integration of the school

Defense counsel asked that the charges be dismissed on grounds among other things, that the injunction violated the defendants' rights under the First Amendment.

But U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford Jr. maintained in his petition asking Judge Robert L. Taylor to deny the dismissal motions that the injunction does not violate the First Amendment. He added hat the amendment, which guarantees the right of assembly, "does not confer the right to persuade others to violate the law."

The government's petition added:

"Even if this court had no jurisdiction to issue the injunction, or if it is contrary to the First Amendment or if it is invalid for any reason, the defendants are properly chargeable for violating

"An injunction must be obyed until it is vacated by orderly process of law, and one who assumes to judge its validity and act in violation of it does so at his peril."

Taylor issued the court order last September to halt disorders at Clinton High which he had ordered admit 12 Negro students.

Kasper was sentenced in September by Taylor to a year in prison for violating the injunction He appealed and the case is under advisement by the U.S. Court of Appeals, 6th Circuit, at Cincinnati.

He was arrested in March on a second contempt charge. Sixteen other persons were arrested on contempt charges in December in connection with an outbreak of violence at Clinton, 20 miles northwest of here. All are free under bond pending trial, date of which has not been set.

Taylor will hear oral arguments on May 2 on the various defense and government motions in the cases.

Problem Drinker Institute Will Be Held In Shreveport

SHREVEPORT (Special)—Many of Louisiana's largest industries, and some of its smallest, will be represented at the Institute on the Problem Drinker which opens at Centenary College Monday.

More than 150 persons are expected for the four - day session, the first ever held in this part of the country by the world-famous Yale University Center of Alcohol Studies. Advance registrations have come in from New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Alexandria and Monroe as well as Shreveport, and from Austin, Brownwood and Orange, Tex. and Crossett, Ark.

The problem drinker costs Louisiana industry an estimated $8 million or more a year in lost time alone, according to some authorities. Those firms, along with labor union representatives, have a vital interest in the Yale plan to be discussed during the institute.

Worked out at the Yale University Center with cooperating industries, it can be adapted to any size business and is geared to help the problem drinker become a full - time worker instead of a "half man" on the payroll.

The institute will also direct considerable attention to education on alcohol and is expected to draw a representative group of school personnel, probation officers and social workers who are interested in that phase of the problem.

Seminars are scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday nights, with one section discussing the educational phase under the leadership of Raymond G. McCarthy and the other industrial control of drinking, led by Ralph N. Henderson. McCarthy is associate director of the Yale Summer School on Alcohol Studies and Henderson is industrial consultant for the Yale Center.

Other topics include the nature and extent of problems of alcohol, physiology and metabolism, psychological effects, treatment of alcoholism, instruction in schools and colleges, counselling, prevention of alcoholism, the Louisiana program and a panel on "The College Student Looks at Alcoholism."

The institute is sponsored by Centenary College, the Shreveport Medical Society and the State Department of Hospitals.

President Seeking Stronger GOP

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower, in a telephone talk to a party workers' regional conference here, called yesterday for "a stronger, completely up-to-date Republican party."

Urging a "more effective party" for the "all-important task of electing a Republican House and Senate in 1958," he repeated what he told an earlier regional coference at Omaha:

"Our never-ending task is to make the Republican party responsive to the modern-day needs and aspirations of all the people."

The President spoke from Augusta, Ga., where he is vacationing.

Eisenhower conceded that there are "differences of opinion within our party and I hope there always will be." Divergent points of view, he said, spell "a healthy condition as long as the fundamental beliefs within that party provide a common nucleus of thought, a common ground."

"We have that in the Republican party — a set of unalterable truths that bind us together into an inseparable whole . . ."
